OUTDOOR FRUIT PROSPECTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

There is already much prophesying as to the fruit prospects this year, in consequence of the mildness of the winter and spring, and the chance thus given to the various pests to come through the winter unscathed. Where the spraying has been carefully carried out during the dormant season, and due attention is given to the repetition of the operation before the blossoms open, and after the petals fall, there need be no cause for worry in this respect. Apples are in general promising well so far, and if we are not troubled with frost in May, will be likely to turn out well. Pears and plums, however, have had a rather trying time up to this, but, on the whole, are looking well.

EGG RECORDS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

As well as conscientiously keeping the accounts in order and up to date, where it is found possible, the egg-records of the pullets should be made by means of trapnesting in the winter season. This process enables the birds with the best records, who are also of the proper type, to be used in the breeding pen in their second year; and, in so far as it provides for the keeping of only the best stock, is also very good business.

Undoubtedly, present conditions in national and international economics are responsible for much of the depression in the home poultry trade, but a great deal of the annual losses among individuals could be minimised, if not altogether cancelled, by the general application of business principles to the job of poultry-keeping. All that is involved is a little extra time each day, but of what immense advantage may not that little prove at the end of the year. The days of jogging along in the same old rut have passed, let it be hoped, for ever; poultry-keeping, perhaps, suffered more from this casualness and happy-go-lucky attitude than any other industry in Ireland.

THE TEACHERS' CONGRESS

"ATTENDANCE ACT A DEAD LETTER"

CHILDREN AND THE CINEMA

THE business of the 67th Annual Congress of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation, which was held for four days in the Mansion House, Dublin, concluded yesterday.

Mr. J. Hurley, T.C., Cork, presided.

The President said that it was his very sad duty, on behalf of the Congress and the Organisation generally to move, "that we extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Caraher and her family on the very sad death of her beloved husband, Eugene Caraher."

The late Mr. Caraher, said the President, was well-known, loved and respected by every member of their organisation, which he had served loyally and well. Mr. Caraher's work for the Organisation was a form of monument to his memory among the teachers of Ireland, and his death, occurring, as it did, in the midst of his activities on behalf of the teachers, would be sincerely lamented by every member of the Organisation.

The meeting stood for two minutes in silence, and the resolution was passed in silence.

A wire was received from Senator O'Farrell, expressing sympathy on the death of Mr. Caraher.

BUILDING SOCIETIES

Mr. A. McCabe, speaking of the work of building societies, said such societies play an important rôle in the life of Great Britain. In organising such a society, the Organisation was attempting to do, on a small scale in Ireland what has been so successfully accomplished in Britain. The financing of house purchase is one of the biggest problems our Government has to face at the moment. With the help and sympathy of the people, the Organisation could help in a substantial way in solving it. They were doing pioneering work for social and national welfare, and he hoped the teachers as a body would help in making the enterprise a success.

Mr. I. F. O'Grady, Roscommon, moved—"That, as experience had shown the necessity for amendment of the School Attendance Act, Congress directs the C.E.C. to take up this question with the Education Authorities during the coming year." He said that the time was now ripe to have the Act amended. Reports from all parts of the country showed that the Act was now almost a dead letter, and was not being enforced. The transfer system was too vague, and the procedure before a prosecution took place was too cumbersome. The terms of the Act were now well-known to children and parents, and warning notices should be dispensed with. There should also be some penalty attached to giving false excuses for non-attendance at school. It was nothing more or less than getting children to tell lies.

The resolution was passed.

CHILDREN AND THE CINEMA

Mr. O'Hagan, Dublin, moved a resolution from the C.E.C.: "That conferences be arranged with the ecclesiastical and educational authorities and others interested in the social welfare of children with a view to hastening legislation to regulate the admission of children to cinemas." He said that since a similar resolution was passed at the Congress in 1932 nothing was done in respect of it, and he now accused the Government of wilful negligence in the matter. District Justices in Dublin and all over the country had several times referred to the evil effects of certain films on the minds of children, and, in spite of that, the Government took no steps to introduce legislation on the matter. The thrill of the pictures induced children to steal money in order to get to the pictures, and groups of children stood round the picture houses begging money in order to get in. This Congress had no fault to find with the censorship of Mr. Montgomery, but his power to deal more drastically with the films should be increased. Pictures that adults would not suffer from ought not to be shown to children.

The resolution was passed.

On the motion of a delegate from Newbridge, a resolution was passed that the deductions for income tax should not be made in July or August, as teachers are then arranging for, or are on, their summer holidays.

Mr. J. McGarry (Dublin, South) moved a resolution stating that Congress was of opinion that immediate steps should be taken to relieve the alarming state of unemployment among teachers. There was an addendum to the resolution to the effect that, until a satisfactory remedy had been found, a subsistence allowance should be paid out of Government funds to teachers who were unable to obtain employment.

Mr. P. J. Looney, Lurgan, seconding, said that, unless the number of entrants to training colleges was limited, there could be no hope of easing the situation. The only way to settle the matter was for teachers to cease putting forward candidates for the profession.

The resolution was passed.

SCHOOL-LEAVING AGE

Mr. B. Thompson, Mullingar, moved that the school-leaving age be raised from 14 to 16 years. He said that the question was a very important one for this country, where 85 per cent. of the children ended in the primary, where they began. Irish children were really immature at the age of fourteen, and if their education ended at that there would be a poor foundation on which to build. If the age were raised, it would cost more money; but schools were cheaper for the community than jails.

Mr. T. O'Brien, seconding the resolution, said that about 2,000 children left schools in Dublin annually, and only a small proportion found work through the Labour Exchange.

The resolution was passed.

A resolution was passed urging, among other things, the deletion from the primary school programme of algebra, geometry and rural science, even as optional subjects, and demanding the fixing of a definite programme.

A resolution that there should be no penalisation of teachers who had not obtained certificates in Irish, as in the majority of cases they were in the service before the introduction of Irish as a compulsory subject, and that teachers who held the ordinary certificate in Irish be not debarred from obtaining increments either in the normal or super-normal scales, was also passed.

Congress also agreed to call upon the Government to make regulations so that it would not be permissible for any primary schools which received grants from public funds to admit pupils from outside areas until the normal needs of its own school area were met.

It was further decided that the education authorities be responsible for the provision and payment of substitutes.

A resolution calling for the abolition of the primary certificates examination was passed.

ADMINISTRATION

Congress also passed a resolution, stating that the difficulties of both teachers and inspectors in the Saorstat primary schools were largely due to defects in the administration of the primary education system, and demanding that a full and public inquiry into the working of the National Education Office be held forthwith.

Congress further adopted a resolution that young teachers who have successfully completed their probationary period of service be awarded their teaching diplomas immediately.

A motion was passed stating that training college students who successfully complete the course of training—that is, pass their final examination, be qualified in Irish, as they are in all other subjects.

A resolution asking that better facilities be afforded to teachers for obtaining University degrees was also passed.

A resolution was adopted urging that when a male teacher, who is paid at the rate applicable to women, is appointed as assistant or principal of a school with an average attendance of thirty or over, he should be raised immediately to the figure in the men's scale appropriate to his length of service.

This finished the business on the agenda.

It was decided to hold next year's congress in Killarney. There was an invitation from Clare to hold it at Kilkee.

Mr. Liam McSweeney (Killorglin), the newly-appointed president, then took the chair.

Mr. W. Ward moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Hurley, the outgoing president, the Press and the Dublin Committee. He paid a tribute to the memory of Mr. Caraher, who, he said, five years ago left the presidential chair, and installed him (Mr. Ward) as president.

Mr. O'Sullivan seconded the motion, which was passed.

Mr. Hurley briefly returned thanks, and the congress concluded.

HOUSING OF THE VERY POOR

NEW COTTAGE SCHEME FOR KILMAINHAM

It is the intention of the Association for the Housing of the Very Poor and Industrial Workers, Ltd., Dublin, to cater for the poorer and industrial classes, and in this way to give them decent housing accommodation at rentals within their means. In carrying out the proposed new scheme for the erection of forty-four cottage houses of the three or four-room type at Kilmainham, the intentions of the Association were being put into practical effect.

This statement was made by Mr. E. R. McC. Dixon, chairman, who presided at the ordinary general meeting of the Association, held at 39 Dame street, Dublin, yesterday. Receipts from rents, etc., which amounted to £3,282, were, he said, practically the same as for the previous year; but outgoings, which amounted to £1,542 were down by approximately £1,000. The net profit for 1934 amounted to £1,740, as against £831 for the year 1933, being an increase of virtually £900. To the sum of £1,740 there had to be added the amount brought forward at the credit of profit and loss account at the beginning of 1934, amounting to £992, thus leaving a balance at the credit of profit and loss account as at 31st December, 1934, of £2,732.

The directors recommended putting £700 to the property depreciation fund, £200 to repairs and renewals fund, and to pay the usual dividend of 3 per cent., free of tax, absorbing £850, and to carry forward the balance of £982. As a result of these appropriation their property depreciation fund would stand at £6,300 and their repairs and renewals fund at £600. The liability to the Board of Works, which was originally £3,000, was reduced to £450 as at 31st December last as a result of the annual instalments of £100 each.

The company had been successful in obtaining a two-acre site for further building operations at Kilmainham.

Rev. Canon D. H. Hall, in seconding, said that the report was very satisfactory.

The resolution was adopted.

It was decided on the motion of Captain O'Conor, seconded by Mr. Walter Sexton, O.B.E., to declare a dividend of 3 per cent., free of tax, for the year ended 31st December, 1934.

The Chairman, in proposing the re-election of Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co. as auditors, paid a tribute to the Press for its assistance.

Captain O'Conor seconded, and the resolution was passed.

Hopkins referred to the affection which Mr. Bond had won from all with whom he had come in contact during his five years' ministry in the parish.

The removal of the gallery has made a marked improvement in the appearance of the Diocesan Hall. Arrangements are well advanced for the bazaar which is to be held therein on behalf of the Board of Education, May 7th-11th. Mrs. Gregg is to perform the opening ceremony.

FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL

Financial Relations : Need for Inquiry : Australia's Premier : Educational Charges : Holiday Traffic : Aircraft Industry

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE financial relations between Great Britain and Northern Ireland are receiving more attention now than at any time since the Northern Government was formed. Before the Northern Parliament rose for the Easter recess the leader of the Nationalist Party (Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C.) endeavoured to find from the Minister of Finance if Northern Ireland as credited with the duty upon all foreign goods imported into Northern Ireland through British ports. Mr. Pollock assured Mr. Campbell that Northern Ireland had received its proper share of the duties through the medium of the residuary share of reserved taxes. Four-fifths of Northern Ireland's revenue is levied by the Chancellor of the Exchequer at Westminster, including Customs and Excise and income tax. It depends upon the amount of these credited to the Northern Exchequer whether Mr. Pollock can balance his Budget, or is compelled to make further calls upon the Northern taxpayers by increased transferred taxation, or by unloading some of his responsibilities on to the ratepayers. Consequently it will be seen that the financial relationship between Great Britain and Northern Ireland is the crux of the problem and the seat of all the present financial difficulty in the North. In the last published finance accounts of Northern Ireland—that of June, 1934—the amount of the tobacco duty allocated to Northern Ireland for the year ending 31st March, 1933, is £1,262,431. This is considerably less than the duty paid upon the tobacco and cigarettes manufactured in Northern Ireland, but it is supposed to represent the duty upon tobacco and cigarettes consumed in Northern Ireland. The question arises, how is this arrived at, and has adequate provision been made for the consumption of imported tobacco and cigarettes, and an exact transfer of the duty payable on these to the Northern Exchequer? The same applies to beer and spirits. In the former case the duty allocated is £726,545 and in the latter £818,271 for the year mentioned, while the goods liable under the Import Duties Act, 1932, were £392,629. No full explanation has been given how this is apportioned. The same applies to £32,221 for Ottawa duties. In this particular year the total receipts from reserved taxes—Inland Revenue, Customs and Excise and Post Office—amounted to £8,896,333. From this was deducted an imperial contribution of £75,000, cost of reserved services £1,446,610 19s. 3d., and other deductions amounting to £645,082—a total of £2,166,693, leaving the net residuary share of reserved revenue £6,729,639. The other deductions included £284,234, "new" land purchase annuities; £922,966, Royal Irish Constabulary pensions; £61,925, superannuation; and £1,600, portion of the salary of the Northern Governor. It will be seen that Northern Ireland pays all these reserved expenses, so that Northern Ireland in the past has paid its way handsomely. The complication of Customs and Excise and income tax adjustments, however, suggests that there should be a common financial unit for the United Kingdom.

Mr. J. A. Lyons

The visit of the Prime Minister of Australia, Mr. J. A. Lyons, to Northern Ireland was much too brief, and there is a general desire that he should return to the North when he visits Ireland again after the Jubilee celebrations. The cordiality of the welcome accorded to him was not only a personal tribute to a Dominion statesman of Irish nationality and many sterling qualities, but a recognition of the important part which Australia plays in the British Commonwealth. Similar honours were accorded to Mr. Scullin when he visited Belfast as Prime Minister of Australia a few years ago. It is to be regretted in connection with the visit that an effort should be made to raise the eternal religious question in the North. That both these Prime Ministers were Roman Catholics did not in the least affect the warmth of the welcome accorded to them by the Government, the municipality, and the public generally. One Nationalist paper remarked that "Catholics in Australia are about one-sixth of the population, but despite that fact they can obtain, without fear of bigotry or boycott, the highest honours the State has to bestow." But the attitude of the Northern Nationalists to the non-party Silver Jubilee celebrations, for instance, is quite different from that of Mr. Lyons, who declared that Australia was proud of her place in the Empire. There are many Northern Catholics equally proud of their association with the British Commonwealth, and the declaration of the Nationalist members of Parliament recently does not represent them. Unfortunately, they are unorganised. If they were organised, it probably would be found that Catholics as such are not deprived of high office in the State as Catholics, but upon political grounds. The religious element would tend to disappear from Northern politics if a number of Catholics, who are as proud of the Commonwealth and what it stands for as Mr. Lyons, had the courage of their convictions and made the same public stand for their opinions. English, Scotch and Dominion Catholics have no difficulty in doing so, and it is only in Northern Ireland that religious faith forms generally the boundary of expressed political convictions.

Education

In his address to the Ulster Teachers' Union at the opening of the annual conferences at Portstewart the Northern Minister of Education foreshadowed several changes in administration which will be of great interest to teachers. The proposal to give the education authorities power to appoint teachers who have become redundant owing to the amalgamation of schools to other schools in their area without being limited by the recommendations of the School Management Committee, has in it an element of fairness, so far as the teachers are concerned. School management committees, however, were given definite powers of recommendation under the Education Acts, and anything which deprives them of that power will be resisted, except, as in the present instance, it is of a temporary nature and applicable to redundant teachers. The proposals to do away with capitation grants for principals and vice-principals, and substitute block grants which will lead to greater equalities in the payments of grants to principals, will be examined closely when the actual scheme is put forward. The Minister has declared that it is not a "money-saving" device at the expense of the teachers, but that some teachers will lose and others gain. Greater equality in the payment of such grants is desirable, and the same applies to the normal and super-normal scales. While it is alleged that there is a good deal of injustice involved in the awarding of "highly efficient" ratings, teachers in infant schools are often rated "highly efficient," while teachers in senior schools, with large classes and advanced subjects, are rated "efficient," even when they possess degrees.

Holiday Traffic

If the Easter holiday traffic this year is any indication, the Northern seaside and holiday resorts will have a "record" season. Reports from Bangor, Portrush, Newcastle and other centres, and also from the railway and shipping companies, show that more people travelled on the various excursions than at any time since the War. On the L.M.S. Railway the traffic during the holidays from Belfast to Portrush, Portstewart, Castlerock and other places was considerably in excess of twelve months ago. Portrush had the busiest Easter holiday week-end for many years. All the hotels and boarding-houses were filled to capacity, and there was a notable increase in cross-Channel visitors. The Ulster Tourist Development Association is making a special effort to lengthen the Northern holiday season by attracting visitors and these efforts are meeting with a satisfactory response. There is also a notable increase in the tourist traffic between North and South. Many more people are coming to Bangor and Portrush from the Free State, while excursions to Killarney, Cork, Rosapenna and Glendalough are growing in popularity with the people of Belfast. At Easter a special train with 250 people from Belfast ran to Killarney, while there was also an excursion to Glendalough. Never so many motor cars crossed the border in both directions as this Eastertide, and a long week-end in the West and South of Ireland is the aim of many Northern motorists.

Aircraft Factory

The possibility of the establishment of an aircraft factory in Belfast is the only satisfactory feature of the proposed closing down of the shipyard of Messrs. Workman Clark, Ltd. Portion of the shipyard on the County Antrim side of the river, it is understood, may be utilised for an aircraft factory, while the south yard on the County Down side of the River Lagan and the engine works will be acquired by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, whose main works they adjoin. There is abundant accommodation for an aircraft factory on the shipyard site, and many of the existing buildings could easily be adapted to this purpose.

MOST FASHIONABLE IRISH MEETING

PUNCHESTOWN'S MANY ATTRACTIONS

PUNCHESTOWN, most fashionable of all Irish race meetings, takes place next week—on Tuesday and Wednesday. But really "Punchestown Week" starts to-morrow, when many people go down to inspect the course over which the Kildare and National Hunt Club Races are to take place. Walking over the course a day or two before the event one regains something of the excitement of previous meetings, of how so-and-so took this jump or that—a certain winner—years ago, and how he fell just at the last fence. Somehow one never forgets the excitement of these meetings, and they never lose their attraction for hunting people in every county of Ireland, and many from across the Channel.

Nobody ever thinks of Punchestown without the alliterative adjective "Peerless," and that, undoubtedly, sums up the meeting. The peers of Irish hunters are there, and Punchestown can always count on getting the best crowd in Ireland. This year's prospects for a splendid meeting are bright, and there is no doubt that the attendance will be as good, if not better, than for many years past.

Punchestown Races had their origin in a Kildare Hunt Meeting of something like ninety years ago. In those days the meeting was restricted to the Kildare Hunt and its farmers, with one or two races for regular steeplechasers. Steadily it increased in popularity, and, after fifteen years, became a race fixture which attracted attention from all over the country.

To-day everybody looks forward to the Kildare and National Hunt Steeplechases, as the meeting is officially described, and for weeks before dressmakers are busy providing the latest in spring fashions for the feminine visitors. In fact, Punchestown has a very important place in the life of Irish womenfolk. The most fashionable clothing is worn by some of the most charming women in the country, and carefully studied in the newspaper pictures by those who are not so fortunate as to be present at the races. For some people the fashion parade seems to be even more important than the racing, although, of course, they do not admit it.

This year there is an innovation in the provision of a new Tote building for the public who watch the races from outside the Kildare Hunt Stand, and it is anticipated that the Tote turnover at the meeting will be even better than last year. It is interesting to see how the turnover of the Irish Tote has increased, and this year it is up considerably, despite small attendances, due to unfavourable weather at the early meetings. At Fairyhouse the turnover was down by a few hundred pounds, but at Mallow and Tramore the takings were up by over £100 in each case.

Most people travel to Punchestown by motor car and omnibus, and special arrangements are made for the handling of the traffic by the Civic Guard authorities. There is plenty of parking space available at the course, and the Royal Irish Automobile Club has a special enclosure for its members.

For those who wish to travel down by omnibus, the Great Southern Railways Company is putting on a special service, and is making provisions for carrying three thousand persons from Dublin down to Punchestown, into the 'bus enclosure, almost on the course. A number of double-deck omnibuses will be used on this service.

The same company is also running a special train from Dublin to Naas on both days of the meeting, leaving Kingsbridge at 11 a.m., and arriving in Naas three-quarters of an hour later, after stops at Lucan, Hazlehatch, Straffan and Sallins to pick up visitors to the races. The return train leaves Naas at 7 p.m.

Of course, apart from the fashionable side of the racing, the important social functions dated for Punchestown Week also have to be remembered. After the first day's racing there is the All-Ireland Polo Club Ball, to be held in Oaklands, Rathgar, which has been lent by Mrs. Wisdom Hely. And on Wednesday night the Fourth Annual Punchestown Dance takes place in the Nas-na-Riogh Ballroom, at Naas, starting at 10 p.m., and finishing about 5 o'clock on the following morning.

FOOTBALL CLUB SUED

PLAYERS' CLAIMS

The Bray Unknowns Football Club, Ltd., were summoned at Bray District Court yesterday by four of its former professional players for work and service.

The plaintiffs were:—James Rorrison, 42 Southern Cross avenue, Inchicore, who claimed £6 5s.; Francis Harkin, 1 Bayview terrace, Seapoint road, Bray, £5 5s.; Denis O'Boyle, 27 Kent street, Belfast, £7 10s.; and William Frame, 1 Duncairn avenue, Bray, £20 1s. 4d.

Gerald Morgan, professional coach, 27 Kent street, Belfast, as football trainer and coach, claimed £10.

Mr. John P. Murphy, solicitor (Messrs. Murphy and Mallins), who appeared for the plaintiffs, said that he had received a letter from Messrs. Porter, Morris and Co., solicitors, consenting to decrees against the defendants.

Mr. Price, D.J., said that, though it was a technical matter, yet the procedure should be kept straight, and Messrs. Porter, Morris and Co. should send down a representative.

The defendants were a limited company, and they could not sign a consent in the ordinary way.

The cases were accordingly adjourned.

SWISS "COW BATTLES"

HOW SUMMER PASTURES ARE ALLOTTED

In the Canton of Valais, Switzerland, the cows themselves decide which herds shall have the best Alpine pastures. Towards the end of April "cow battles" take place.

Bred in the Val d'Herens, the cows have never had their fighting instincts suppressed, for they are accustomed to high altitudes. They are led in pairs into an arena and wrestle and push together. Injuries are hardly ever inflicted and are always slight. After elimination contests, the champion cow "queens" fight together to decided the "Queen of queens."

Winners take the best pastures for their herds and wear the largest bells. The cows will only fight wearing these bells.

JUBILEE AIR DISPLAYS

CATHCART-JONES TO LEAD DEMONSTRATIONS

One of the most comprehensive demonstrations of British commercial aircraft ever to make an extended tour has been prepared by Jubilee Air Displays, and will be led by Lieutenant O. Cathcart-Jones as chief pilot. Mr. T. Campbell Black, another prize winner in the great England-Melbourne air race, is also associated with the display, and will fly his own machine at many of the 180 centres which are to be visited throughout Great Britain. Cathcart-Jones will pilot the fastest machine in the display, a four-seater S.T. 12 Monospar, an improved type of machine, which won last year's King's Cup Air Race. The display has been arranged to show the supremacy of British commercial aircraft and the skill of British pilots. No more striking illustration of the great strides made in civil aviation can be found than the fact that only a few years ago a passenger flight in a machine of doubtful performance cost several pounds. Now a considerably longer flight is available at less than five shillings.

While the aeroplanes used are representative of various aspects of civil aviation, each of the pilots is an expert in some phase of his profession—aerobatics, blind flying and radio control.

Another important aspect of aviation, the parachute jump, has also been included, and the advances made in this industry will be demonstrated by two pilots jumping from machines simultaneously, and, by delaying the opening of the parachute, endeavouring to race each other to earth.

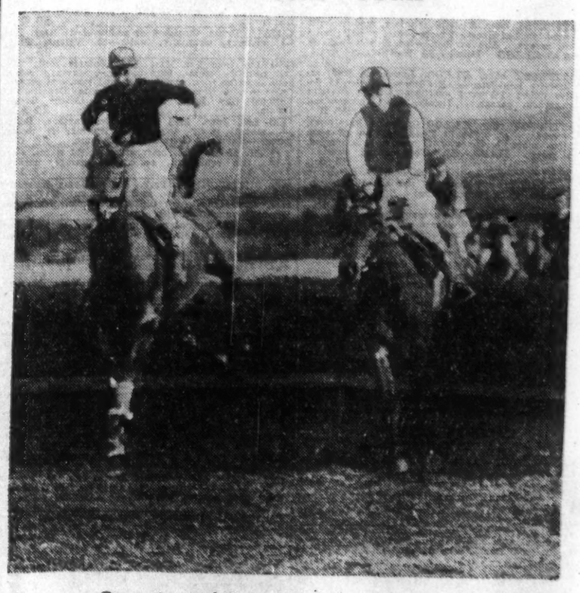

GERMAN OLYMPIC TRIAL

In preparation for the riding contests which will form a special feature of the International Olympic Sports in Berlin in 1936, a trial contest for riders is being held at Hanover this year on May 24. In addition, military riding competitions will be held in Berlin from June 25-27 and July 11-13.

The German Olympic Committee for Riding Sport has presented the equivalent of £500 in prizes for the best riding in half-blood horse racing at Aachen on August 18, 21 and 25.

Mayo Cattle-Driving.—During the past few days there has been an epidemic of cattle-driving in South Mayo. The stock were removed from five farms at Hollymount and Ballyglass, for the division of which local people have been agitating. The cattle were merely driven off the lands and left on the public roads. Notices were posted on the gates bearing the inscription: "The road for the bullocks; the land for the people."

Eighteen Papuan (New Guinea) native medical students, have just left for home after completing their course at Sydney University. They have been formed into the world's first scout medical troop. It will be affiliated with the New South Wales branch of the association.

As a sociological experiment, the formation of an official troop, based upon the high scout ideals, is considered to be full of possibility, states Austral News. Not only has scout law added enormously to the effectiveness of discipline among Papuan students generally at Sydney, but it is expected also, that as practised by the medical troop, it will demonstrate to Papuan natives the good in a white man's country, and thus help the work of colonisation for which Australia is responsible under the League of Nations mandate. The troop will conduct their work in scout uniforms over hundreds of miles of wild territory. Besides a medical qualification of "certified native medical assistant," each member of the troop has qualified as a second class scout with signalling badges.

Motor Car Abandoned.—A Morris-Cowley motor, the property of a Blackrock woman, which had been stolen from the streets of Dublin last Saturday, was found abandoned on the roadside near Wicklow.

A CLUB FOR STAMMERERS

BUT MEMBERS MUST NOT STAMMER

Believed to be the first of its kind in the world, a stammerers' club has just been formed in Melbourne with 68 members. Its formation, according to Austral News, was the outcome of the death of a Sydney man who sought relief from the effects of stammering in suicide; the first act of the new club was to send a wreath for his grave.

The one thing prohibited among members is stammering. At the initial meeting members were addressed by stammerers, all of whom, gaining confidence among fellow-sufferers, spoke with fluency. Only a few who wanted to ask questions passed them to the chairman on paper.

The main object of the club is mutual help. Most of the members have resolved not to resign until cured of stammering. Another object is to convince the Government of the necessity for keeping medical men or psychologists on permanent research work for the benefit of stammerers.

CORK I.R.A. LEADER SENTENCED

EXCHANGES WITH COUNSEL

SIX DUBLIN MEN CHARGED

BEFORE the Military Tribunal yesterday, Thomas Barry, a well-known Southern Republican, of Belgrave place, Wellington road, Cork, was charged with membership of an unlawful association, failing to answer police questions about his movements, and sedition.

The alleged sedition was contained in a speech stated to have been made by Barry at Tralee on January 6th, in which he exhorted those present to arm and organise themselves and to express thanks that they still had arms and the men to fight.

When he declined to acknowledge the Court's jurisdiction on the previous day, a plea of "not guilty" was entered.

Mr. W. Black, K.C., prosecuted for the Attorney-General (instructed by Mr. John S. O'Connor).

Counsel said that on the previous day Barry, when arraigned, had referred to a "vile attack on the I.R.A." made by counsel in an earlier case. Counsel considered that was unchivalrous. If ever a prosecution had been conducted without vileness or bitterness, it was the prosecution against Barry and other men in similar trials. If Barry was convicted, it would be out of his own mouth or from documents which showed his position, and not because of anything said by counsel.

Superintendent J. J. Meehan testified that he interrogated Barry, who refused to answer any questions, except one, concerning the policy, programme and outlook of the I.R.A. To this, Barry said the object of the I.R.A. was to force the British to evacuate this country, to destroy the two Dominion Parliaments of Britain, to break the connection with England, and to restore to the Irish people the unfettered control of their own destiny and resources.

The Superintendent said he knew Barry to be a prominent I.R.A. leader in the Cork area.

AN ILLEGAL ORGANISATION

Barry, in cross-examining the Superintendent, said he suggested that Mr. Black had been very properly "pulled up" by the Tribunal on the previous day for saying the I.R.A. was an illegal organisation. That, prisoner said, was a matter for the Executive Council.

"According to the 1925 Treason Acts," said Barry, "it was not essential for the Free State Executive Council to 'name' an illegal organisation. Under the Coercion Act, upon which I am prosecuted, it is essential."

The Superintendent—It is not essential.

Barry (to the Tribunal)—Is the I.R.A. an illegal organisation?

The President—It is not for us to answer your questions. There are three charges against you. We will decide whether you are guilty of these or not.

Barry—When the Cosgrave Government went out of power, Fianna Fail removed the ban on the organisation, and so far as we know it has not been reimposed. (To the Superintendent)—You yourself have seen 5,000 I.R.A men marching through Cork city on occasions?

Superintendent Meehan—Yes.

Barry—Well, there are another 24,000 in this country, making 29,000 in all By the time the Government have dealt with all those, it will have its hands full. It will be terribly difficult and dangerous ground if this so-called State is going to go ahead with it.

The prisoner asked the Superintendent—There is no suggestion that I attack people and property in your area?

Superintendent Meehan—No.

Or that I am a danger to the public?

There was no answer.

Guard Vaughan gave evidence of hearing Barry make the alleged seditious statement at a meeting of about 700 persons, held at Tralee, to protest against the imprisonment of I.R.A. men.

Barry asked the witness if he would swear that the alleged sedition did not consist of a quotation from Pearse, "Organise yourselves, arm yourselves."

The Guard said it was not a quotation. To a question as to why the alleged remark was not in a local newspaper's report, he said the whole speech was not reported.

Barry said he had, on the previous day, received from Maurice Twomey a letter that supported his contention that he never made the alleged remark.

"YOU ARE A PERJURER"

"I make no apology for the remark," said Barry, "but I never made it, and you are a perjurer."

When the State evidence had concluded, Barry, addressing the Court, said: Last time I appeared before this Tribunal you sentenced me to one year's imprisonment. I stated at the time definitely and clearly why I refused to recognise the Tribunal. The same reason still stands.

While grass grows and rivers run there will be men in this country in the I.R.A. and its associated organisations. In my opinion and the opinion of every republican leader, there is no hope of undoing the conquest of this country unless we have an armed manhood prepared to back up our efforts.

If I did not say what is alleged to be seditious at the Tralee meeting, I said it at many other recruiting meetings of the I.R.A. I have spoken, however, to several persons who were at the Tralee meeting, and they are emphatic that I did not use the remark there.

If what Mr. Black said was true, I would not be in the Army ten minutes. His principal charge was that the Army was a military oligarchy gathered together to force its will on the Irish people. I deny that. He quoted the Proclamation of 1916, and said: "I charge him with deliberately omitting the portion of the Proclamation—'Until our arms have brought the opportune moment for the establishment of a permanent National Government, representative of the whole people of Ireland, and elected by the suffrages of all her men and women, the Provisional Government, hereby constituted, will administer the civil and military affairs of the Republic in trust for the people.'"

ARMY COUNCIL POWERS

Before Mr. de Valera went to America (said Barry), the second Dail decided that, if through arrests or other persecutions of the British, the Provisional Government could not function, its functions were vested in the Army Council:

Referring to another passage of Mr. Black's speech of Wednesday (the prisoner had before him the Irish Times and Irish Independent), Barry said: I challenge Mr. Black to say where in the I.R.A. constitution occurs "The civil and military powers of the Government are delegated to it by the Army Council."

Barry read another passage of counsel's speech—"He thought the Irish people would rub their eyes in amazement when they learned what was the constitution of the I.R.A."

I should like to make it very clear (said the prisoner) that we are an organisation that accepts the Government elected by the people for the whole of the people in the Republic of Ireland. There will be no citizens of the Republic more law-abiding than we who are to-day denying the jurisdiction of the twenty-six counties Government and the six counties Government to rule this nation.

Barry quoted further from the speech and commented: If there has been, before any Court, any misrepresentation of an honourable organisation greater than Mr. Black's misrepresentation of the Army of the Republic, I have yet to learn of it. But Mr. Black will ensure that the Irish Press and the Irish Times and the rest of the reactionary organisations in this country will help him in his misrepresentation of the Army. I congratulate him on his very capable felon-setting.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

Mr. Black, closing for the prosecution, said that the objects that in his statement to the police Barry said were the objects of the I.R.A. were not the gist of the accusation against him. The charge was based on the profession that those objects would be achieved by force of arms. Barry said an I.R.A. object was to "destroy the Dominion Parliaments of Britain" in this country. One of these was the Parliament to which all of them were subject and whose authority they recognised, whether they liked it or not.

Counsel proceeded:—

Barry said that this was a political arrest and that the charges were framed up afterwards. The arrest could probably be so described. It was none the less undertaken by the authorities in the belief that it was essential to the security of the State.

As regards the charges being "framed afterwards"—of course they are. They are always framed afterwards by a lawyer upon the evidence sent up by the Guards.

Barry must have a sense of humour. He must in his private moments, his kindly moments, be tickled to consider that he can come here to describe an act as a "Coercion Act"—and can call upon his men to "arm and organise themselves" for the purpose, presumably, of making the civilian population accept his views on matters political.

Barry—I object to that statement.

Mr. Black—The suggestion in the charge is that Barry exhorted his audience to arm and organise for the purpose of destroying a certain Parliament established for the time being by the vote of the people. I don't quite know what Mr Barry intends for the political betterment of the country. Does he want the young men to chase the warships from Berehaven—if they are there—by scoring their steel sides by rifle bullets; or make war on some foreign Power; or make use of this Power to attack Irishmen in their own country, who owe their position to the votes of the people? It looks very much as if he could have no other object.

If he is out to destroy the existing Dail and Government by means of armed force, then I think it rather absurd that he should complain of coercion being exercised against him to restrain him as kindly and impartially, and leniently and generously as it can be done. The first thing for a man who complains of coercion to do is to give it up himself.

I am glad that Barry does not approve (counsel referred to the local newspaper report of Barry's speech at Tralee) of "undisciplined acts" by Volunteers. I don't think that is a proper description, however, of what he alluded to. Some cases have occurred of very abominable, shocking, and cowardly attacks upon women and children; breaking into houses shooting at houses, and that sort of thing.

When I have prosecuted in such cases I have always done my best to prevent the I.R.A. being accused of them where the individuals said they were members of that body. But I think Barry ought to use, in describing such acts, words different to those which are applicable to a soldier who had not cleaned the buttons of his tunic or broke ranks during a parade

There is such a thing (said counsel) as encouraging with faint damnation.

Barry had said that until a Government has been elected by the entire country he would not recognise twenty-six-counties government. There must be anarchy, then, until such time as it is possible for this country to recover its Alsace-Lorraine. It was like the case of a Frenchman who in 1870 would say that until his Government had recovered their lost province there would be no more government in France.

SCRUPULOUS FAIRNESS

The President, at the close of the case, said that Mr. Black had never in any case before the Court behaved otherwise than with scrupulous fairness towards accused persons.

The Tribunal found Barry guilty of membership of an unlawful association, of refusing to give an account of his movements, and of contempt of Court. He was found not guilty of the charge of sedition. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment to date from the time of arrest.

OTHER ACCUSED MEN

The following, all of Dublin, were next arraigned:—

John Nalty, East road.
William Scott, New road, Inchicore.
Leo Burdock, Marrowbone lane.
Michael Price, St. Michael's road.
Michael Kelly, Eccles street.
Joseph Hendley, Fitzgerald street, Harold's Cross.

They were charged with belonging to an illegal association, and (with the exception of Michael Price) with refusal to answer police questions

Pleas of "not guilty" were entered at the President's direction, when the prisoners made various answers to the indictment.

Mr. W. Black, K.C., prosecuted (instructed by Mr. J. S. O'Connor) for the Attorney-General.

Mr. Black said that Michael Price had answered the questions put to him under the Public Safety Act in a way that (counsel supposed) Price thought rather humorous. The unlawful association of which it was alleged he was a member, was not, as usual, the I.R.A., but the Irish Citizen Army.

Detective-Officer Keelan said that he arrested Price. Among the documents he found in Price's office was one entitled "The Constitution of the Irish Citizen Army" and another the "Citizen Army Council Bulletin."

Price cross-examined the witness at great length, and put the lengthy documents to him, sentence by sentence.

Mr Black protested against the waste of public time by such reading of documents for "advertising or propaganda purposes."

The Court permitted Price to continue.

Detective Officer Keelan produced a document which he said he found in Price's office, which was dated 25th March, 1935, and addressed "The Adjutant, Irish Citizen Army, Belfast." It complained of the apathy of the "Army" in Belfast, and asked "the Belfast Battalion" to take immediate steps to organise for the Connolly commemoration ceremonies in May next.

Detective Officer Brady, who gave evidence of taking Kelly into custody, said that he found in the prisoner's room documents (produced)

The Prisoner—One of them is the manuscript of a plot for a play called "The Guests of the Nation."

The President said this document was dated 1920 and would be discarded.

Detective Officer Ryan said that Price, when asked if he knew where any ammunition was kept, answered: "Yes, it seems to be kept in magazines, and in a good state of repair, as seen on parades." Price accounted for his movements on the night of the 23rd-24th March last by saying that he "was out, returned home later, and went to bed."

The hearing was adjourned until Monday next.

Richard Batterberry, St. Kevin's parade, Dublin;

Patrick McElroy, Nash street, Inchicore;

Thomas Merrigan, Charlotte place, Dublin; and John Nester, Tram terrace, Phibsborough, were indicted on charges of being members of an unlawful association and refusing to answer questions.

All the accused men refused to plead, and by direction of the Court pleas of "not guilty" were entered.

The further hearing was then adjourned until Monday next.

EASTER LAW TERM

MANY IMPORTANT CASES

FISHING, LABOUR AND WILL SUITS

CONSIDERING the fact that the Easter Law Sittings, which will open in the Four Courts, Dublin, on next Monday, will end in a little more than five weeks, it is very improbable that the mass of business now awaiting to be dealt with will be disposed of during the term.

One of the interesting questions that the Supreme Court will be asked to decide concerns the domicile of a Cork woman who died in Paris, leaving an estate valued at approximately £14,000. Miss Annie O'Connor was born in Cork in 1858, and, having attended a private school in her native city, and the Ursuline Convent, Northampton, she went for the purpose of completing her education to a convent in Nice. She spent two or three years at home and then went to Spain as a governess, returning from that country in 1888. After three or four years in Cork, she went to Paris. There she took up a position as a book-keeper in a hairdressing establishment, and some time later opened business as a beauty specialist, conducting the business at 10 Rue de Florence, where she died on the 29th March, 1934.

Miss O'Connor came to Cork for some weeks almost every year, and her last will was made in Cork in 1932. She had made a will in Paris bequeathing her Institut de Beautie to Mlle. Olga Koukar. The High Court held that she was domiciled in France at the time of her death, which meant that her estate would be liable to pay French death duties.

The Free State Revenue Commissioners and the Attorney-General are asking for leave to appeal against this decision, although they were not parties to the action in the High Court which raised the question of Miss O'Connor's domicile, and they say that the order of the High Court affects their interests; that they were not served with notice of the hearing, although the French Government had received notice; and that, if the judgment stood, the Revenue Commissioners would lose a considerable sum in estate duty. The application, probably, will come before the Supreme Court early next week.

DISPOSAL OF FARM

An appeal that will involve the consideration of the use of the words "or" and "and" in the construction of a will relates to the disposal of a farm of about 322 acres in Westmeath. The appeal is brought on behalf of Mrs. Mary Anne Reilly, of Athboy, and Denis Clinton, of Rugby road, Dublin, the plaintiffs in a summons against James Reilly, of Lower Mountpleasant avenue, Dublin, and other defendants, and is from a judgment of the High Court in relation to a gift over.

There will be an appeal in an action of Fry-Cadbury (Ireland), Ltd., against Joseph Synnott, a Dublin confectioner, in relation to the use of the word "Crunch," the appeal being brought on behalf of the defendant from a judgment of the High Court declaring that the word "Crunch," registered by the defendant as a trade-mark, was not registerable as such.

Whether a bequest left by the late Daniel Byrne, of Earl street, Mullingar, for the absolute use and benefit of the Jesuit Order in Ireland is void for uncertainty will be argued in two appeals—one on behalf of the Very Rev. Michael Kirwan, S.J., and the Very Rev. Laurence Kieran, S.J., and the other on behalf of the Attorney-General. The appeals are from a judgment of the High Court on a construction summons relating to the will of the late Daniel Byrne.

The ownership of County Limerick lands is raised in another appeal.

In the Court of Criminal Appeal there are two appeals—one on behalf of Elizabeth Edwards and one on behalf of Rose Edwards, who were convicted of the murder of the newly-born illegitimate child of Elizabeth Edwards; and applications for further witnesses on behalf of Martin Murray and John McNamara, who were sentenced to eight years' penal servitude and six years' penal servitude respectively on a charge of shooting with intent.

There is a considerable amount of work, too, in the High Court. Four actions are in the nature of a sequel to the judgment of the Supreme Court in the action of a number of British ex-Service men against the Sailors' and Soldiers' Land Trust, that British ex-Service men occupying cottages under the Trust are entitled to them rent free for their lifetime. The plaintiffs in the forthcoming actions are claiming a refund of the rent paid by them.

A summons has been served raising the question of the exclusive right of fishing in the Bay of Ballisodare, County Sligo, and the Dublin Port and Docks Board are claiming £1,312 from the Electricity Supply Board for rates and dues in respect of cargoes of coal discharged at the Pigeon House Harbour between 6th December, 1931, and 28th September, 1934. The Electricity Supply Board claim to be exempt from liability.

RAILWAY WORKERS

Some cleaners and firemen have an action against the Great Northern Railway Company claiming a declaration that they were employés of the company in the conciliation grades and were within the class known as permanent officials and entitled to specified benefits.

In addition to these, there are the usual type of administration and construction summonses and a long record of motions.

There are five cases of certiorari, one case of mandamus, one of prohibition, two cases stated, one special case stated on the Revenue side, and one Revenue petition.

The two cases stated deal with licensing prosecutions. One arises out of the failure of a defendant to pay licence duty, and raises the question whether the Probation of Offenders Act of 1907 applies to an excise prosecution. The other relates to the failure to pay Customs duty and turns on the interpretation of the Customs Consolidation Act of 1876.

In the special case stated on the Revenue side, the Cloghran Stud Farm Company are the appellants, and the question of law for the Court is whether the Commissioners for the Special Purposes of the Income Tax Acts were right in determining that the profits derived from stud fees were not profits arising in respect of the occupation of lands, but profits of trade assessible to income tax under Schedule D.

Up to the present the jury cases total fifty and the non-jury cases sixteen. Most of the jury actions are for damages for personal injuries. There are two matrimonial suits and two libel actions. One of the non-jury actions is a nullity suit and one is a libel action.

There are 185 Circuit appeals.

HOWTH WOMAN'S WILLS

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

Two probate suits arising out of wills of Annie Murtagh, late of Tara Hall, Kilrock road, Howth, County Dublin, were listed to have the mode of trial fixed.

In one suit the plaintiff was William H. Roper, solicitor, Dublin, suing as executor of the will of Georgina Roper the sole or principal legatee named in the will of Annie Murtagh, dated December 16, 1927; and the defendants were James Hendrick, Dolores O'Neill, a minor, suing by her mother, Mrs. Nellie Lane O'Neill, and Augustine Murtagh, all stated to be now residing at Howth. In this suit plaintiff sought to establish the will of December 16, 1927.

In the second suit, brought by way of counter-claim, the plaintiffs named are James Hendrick and Dolores O'Neill, suing by her mother, and they seek probate of a document dated March 21, 1934, which they allege to be the true and last will of the testator.

The Master fixed trial before a judge and jury, and settled the issues.

Mr. H. R. Poole (instructed by Messrs. H. and W. Stanley) appeared for Mr. Roper; Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Reddin and Reddin) for Mr. Hendrick and Miss Dolores O'Neill; and Messrs. J. C. O'Meagher and Son, solicitors, for Mr. Augustine Murtagh.

SCHOOLBOY'S DEATH

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST

STATE PATHOLOGIST EXAMINED

THE death of a fifteen-year-old pupil of Artane Industrial Schools was investigated at an inquest held in the Mater Hospital, yesterday, by Dr. MacErlean, the City Coroner, sitting with a jury.

The boy was John Byrne, and he had been in the institution about three years. The Coroner, in opening the inquest, informed the jury that, when the boy had been admitted to the Mater Hospital, where he had died, he had complained of a pain in his leg. It had been stated that the boy was supposed to have received a kick a short time previously from one of the lay teachers of the school.

After hearing the evidence the jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.

FATHER'S EVIDENCE

Patrick Byrne, of York street, Dublin, said that his son went to Artane about three years ago. When his daughter called at the school last Sunday she was told that he was in the Mater Hospital. On going there, the boy, who was ill, told him that while playing football the ball happened to strike a master, who then kicked him. When the witness asked the Sister if that were true she replied: "He keeps saying that."

In reply to Mr. Clinch, who represented the Christian Brothers, Byrne said that his boy never had been seriously ill in his life.

To Mr. J. J. O'Connor, for C. Lynch, a lay teacher at Artane, he said that the boy had told him that the master turned round and kicked both him and his comrade, William Doran. The boy had not stated shortly before he died that Mr. Lynch was not in any way to blame; and the boy had not made any effort to change his statement before his death.

Dr. John McGrath, State Pathologist, said that on April 19 last he performed a post mortem examination, and had found no bruising or marks of violence on any part of the body. In his opinion, death was due to the numerous abscesses in the lungs, heart and hip, and to septicæmia, due to staphylococci.

Replying to Mr. R. McLoughlin, who (instructed by Mr. D. O'Donovan, Chief State Solicitor's office) appeared for the Civic Guards,

Dr. McGrath said that the abscesses in the various organs caused death, which could have been caused if the skin was broken, but was unlikely to be caused if the skin was unbroken.

Replying to Mr. O'Connor, he said that the boy had died from natural causes, but the origin might have been unnatural.

PUPILS EXAMINED

James Doran, a pupil at Artane, said that he was playing football with Byrne, who took up the ball and said that he was going to hit Mr. Lynch with it. He did so, but there was no force in it. Mr. Lynch turned and asked who kicked the ball. Byrne started to laugh, and Mr. Lynch punched him. There was no force in the blows. Byrne fell to the ground, and Mr. Lynch kicked him for a couple of minutes on the soles of the boots. Byrne kept wriggling around, and accidentally received a kick on the thigh, where witness later saw a black mark "about the size of a shilling."

NO COMPLAINT

A Brother from Artane School said that no complaint was made to him that the boy was injured. When he saw Byrne in the infirmary before he was taken to the hospital, the boy said that Mr. Lynch was not serious when he had kicked him, and that the matter was a joke.

The City Coroner—Did you reprimand Mr. Lynch in any way?—I did not care to do that, as the thing was sub judice.

Is it customary for members of the staff to knock boys down?—No.

Cornelius Lynch, having been cautioned, said that he gave Byrne two slight taps somewhere on the hips or thigh, while the boy was in a kneeling position. After a few minutes he rose from the ground, and said in a friendly way that he (witness) had struck him on the leg. The witness had not the slightest intention or desire to inflict any injury.

GREAT SWEEPSTAKES HALL

TO BE BUILT IN THREE WEEKS

A great hall, accommodating 1,000 clerks and covering 8,500 square feet, will be built in less than three weeks at the rear of the Irish Sweepstakes building in Exchequer street, Dublin.

It will be a steel and concrete structure. The orders were given by the directors of the Irish Sweepstake Organisation to the architect, Mr. J. J. Robinson, at 12 o'clock on the day that the fire occurred at the Plaza. He and his staff worked the night through preparing plans and specifications, and by 11 o'clock next morning had the contracts completed with the joint contractors, Messrs. Murphy Bros., and Messrs. Smith and Pearson.

Work was started immediately, and since then has gone on unceasingly day and night, 100 men being employed the whole clock round.

FILM TRADE STAFFS

Last night in the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, a very enjoyable dance was held under the auspices of the Film Trade Staffs. The ballroom was decorated with portraits of the leading film "stars." "KING OF SPAIN'S DAUGHTER"

NEW PLAY AT THE ABBEY

An interesting event at the Abbey Theatre next week will be the first production of "The King of Spain's Daughter," a new play by Miss Teresa Deevy. Miss Deevy's first play, "The Reapers," was staged at the Abbey in the spring of 1930, and was followed in the autumn of the next year by "A Disciple."

In 1932 the theatre held a prize competition for new plays, and the independent judges confirmed the directors' judgment of Miss Deevy's abilities as a playwright by awarding the first prize to her "Temporal Powers," which was produced at the theatre in September of that year, when it received high praise from the critics.

Next week's programme will also include "Wrack," by Mr. Peadar O'Donnell.

CATERING BY MRS. LAWLOR, NAAS

EXTRAORDINARY STORY IN COURT

MAN WITH AN IRISH NAME

Joined the Army at the age of 14, being one of the youngest soldiers to see service in the War; went through the Irish trouble; worked as a lumberjack; arrested on a murder charge, his conviction on a reduced charge of manslaughter being quashed—these have been incidents in the life, according to his own story, of Terence O'Keefe, aged 32, of Beverley road, Hull, who pleaded guilty at Nottingham yesterday to two charges of attempting to steal £32 by means of a trick from Nottingham bookmakers.

O'Keefe said that at eight years of age his father, a parson, deserted his mother, and he was taken away from a good school. After the War, at the age of 17, he joined the Royal Irish Constabulary, and went through all the Irish trouble. Going to Canada at the age of 20, he worked as a lumberjack, and then as a reporter on a Montreal newspaper. Returning to England, he met a woman.

"My association with this woman was the cause of all my trouble," he said.

During the general strike he served in the Special Police, afterwards getting a job at the Stationery Office. He alleged that through the woman he was discharged. Subsequently he went to Brighton as manager of a publishing company, and later worked for an advertising company and Press agency.

One night O'Keefe said the woman got drunk and tried to enter the flat through the window and fell into the area. She died of a fractured skull, and he was arrested for murder. On a reduced charge of manslaughter he was sentenced to three years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey, but on appeal the conviction was quashed.

He borrowed money and with a partner started a weekly newspaper. He had changed his name, but gossip ruined him, and they had to cease publication.

He returned to Canada under an assumed name and married a Canadian girl. Eighteen months' later he was arrested for breaking prison and was sent to London with his wife. She fell ill through want, and, sooner than allow her to starve, the Canadian authorities in London sent her back to her own people, where she died.

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

SANDFORD PARISH CHURCH

On Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock, there will be a parade of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of Sandford Church. The preacher will be the Rev. W. E. Rea, M.A., formerly curate of the parish, and Rover Leader, and now chaplain in the Royal Navy.

TRAMWAY AND 'BUS STRIKE

MR. NORTON'S QUESTION

The situation in connection with the Dublin tramway and 'bus dispute remains unchanged.

Members of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, who went to draw their strike pay yesterday, learned that, in addition to the usual payment of 22s. a week for married men, those who were in full benefit would receive 2s. per week for each child.

The revised list of speakers for to-morrow's meeting includes:—Messrs. J. Everett, T.D., R. Corish, T.D., J. J. Farrelly (Vice-President, Dublin Trades Union Council), P. T. Daly (Secretary, Dublin Trades Union Council), E. P. Hart (A.T.G.W.U.), J. Ellis (Irish Seamen's and Port Workers' Union), and Miss H. Molony (Irish Women Workers' Union).

A number of trade union branches met last night and decided to make contributions to the Dublin Trades Union Council fund in aid of the strikers.

Mr. William Norton, T.D., has given notice that in the Dail on May 1 he will ask the Minister for Industry and Commerce whether he is prepared to promote legislation to enable the Dublin Corporation to acquire the road passenger services within, and contiguous to, the City of Dublin.

TWO SHOWS ABANDONED

CLARE AND CLONAKILTY DECISIONS

On the motion of Mr. Michael Lyons, seconded by Mr. T. Hewitt, the Clare Agricultural Show Committee adopted a resolution expressing the opinion that it would be unreasonable to ask now for subscriptions in the county, and deciding to abandon the show for this year.

At a meeting of the committee of the Clonakilty Agricultural Show Society Mr. Charles J. Hurley, U.C.D., proposed, and Mr. J. Sullivan seconded, that a recommendation from the New Land League be adopted, stating that under existing conditions the holding of shows was not in the interests of the farming community, and that no show should be held in the City or County of Cork until such time as farmers were in a position to earn a living and their leaders free to advocate the just claims of the farming community without being treated as criminals.

With six members dissenting it was agreed to abandon the show for this year.

David Graham, Mullyconnor, Dungannon, was, at Dungannon, remanded on bail to Armagh on charges of larceny of eleven head of cattle, value £120, the property of Albert McCarragher, Enagh, Milford, Co. Armagh.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Two Portmarnocks : An "Emergency Man" : Cuchulainn's Statue : A Mournful Advertisement

Cuchulainn's Statue

My recent paragraph about Mr. Percy Metcalfe's designs for the Jubilee medals has prompted a correspondent to remind me that Mr. Oliver Sheppard, whose statue of Cuchulainn was unveiled in the G.P.O. on Sunday last by President de Valera, also submitted designs for the Free State coinage. Although his designs were not accepted, Mr. Sheppard has executed some very beautiful medals, including four for Trinity College, Dublin, and that for the Tailteann Games. He has also done a great deal of bronze and marble work, the best-known examples being the "Bench and Bar" War Memorial, the Solicitors' War Memorial, the figures for the pediments on the façades of the College of Science, and his bust of John O'Leary in the Municipal Gallery. In explaining how he came to make the statue of Cuchulainn, Mr. Sheppard said the other day that when he first read the story of the death of Cuchulainn of Muirthene he was struck by its suitability as a sculptor's theme. His work on the statue took nearly a year before the clay model was cast in plaster of paris by Orlandi, the moulder in the National Museum. The bronze casting was made in Belgium.

Mr. Murray Smith

I noticed young Mr. Murray Smith in Lady Helen McCalmont's Fairyhouse party. He was with his mother, Mrs. John Pollok, of Mountainstown, Navan. Mrs. Pollok, who is a daughter of the late Sir John Ainsworth, married the late Arthur George Smith, of the Life Guards, in 1912. He died of wounds during the early days of the fighting in 1914. His boy, who came of age last year, succeeded to his grandfather's place in Leicester. Young Mr. Murray Smith is going into the Army, if he has not already gone. Very tall, he is a typical young man of the period—by which I mean that he is quite unassuming.

A Mournful Advertisement

I yield to none in my admiration for American advertising (writes a correspondent). Most of it is forceful, snappy and full of pep. However, I should feel rather upset to find in my favourite newspaper or periodical invitations to "choose your funeral director, as you would your doctor or lawyer. It's not nice to be informed the morning after a hectic night that 'now is the best time.' If you feel as many people do, you do not like to talk or think about caskets and funerals. . . . Here are several reasons why we suggest that you decide now to buy a casket: First, there is a wide variety from which to choose—caskets are made of wood or metal, in many beautiful designs and finishes. Second, the range of prices is wide enough to meet any and every individual need. . . . We have prepared a booklet called 'Funeral Facts.' We urge you to get a copy now."

I see a number of drawbacks to this misanthropic scheme. A streamlined pessimist of thirty might, for instance, purchase a casket and have it made to measure, and, when he or she "went west" in middle age, the casket might be most unsuitable. I think it much more convenient to leave this sort of thing until the last. Anyhow, I see very many objections to parking my casket in the garage or in the hall or under the bed.

Two Portmarnocks

A friend who had not visited "the Velvet Strand" for several months tells me that the geographical definition of Portmarnock is no longer adequate. He says that there are two quite separate and distinct places of the name; one of which is being pulled down, and the other in process of almost equally rapid construction. While hut-wreckers are busy at one end, roadmakers and builders are equally busy at the other end preparing new building frontages and erecting refreshment saloons and bungalows. The news is welcome; but I confess that I receive it with somewhat mixed feelings. I cannot resist the hope that the "truce" which has been called between the hut-owners and the Board of Health will result in some kind of compromise which will be equally satisfactory to the Medical Officer of Health and to the poor people whose undoubted illegalities in sinking their few pounds in the erection of unsanitary groups of shacks, was unfortunately so long condoned by the County Council. Far be it from me to say a word which might now conceivably delay the Board of Health in their efforts to get rid of unsightly and dangerous conditions. But, at the same time, I cannot entirely withhold my sympathies from city wage-earners, whose ambitions to get their families into the open air unfortunately outran their knowledge of the law.

Electricity and Sewerage Promised

On another aspect of Portmarnock's grievances I was glad to hear from Senator O'Neill—now accepted as de facto "Lord Mayor of the Velvet Strand"—that the E.S.B. have at last been persuaded that it is their duty to supply light to the residents of a rapidly growing seaside resort and to their thousands of week-end visitors. When the new sewerage scheme, at present being prepared by the Board of Health for the district, is completed, and a serious effort is made to improve the water supply, "new" Portmarnock—with its new, wide coastal road to Malahide—will undoubtedly take its proper place as the premier popular seaside playground of North Dublin. Meanwhile I would like to know what the County Council is doing about Mr. Morgan Good's town-planning resolution. It is one thing to order the removal of galvanised iron and timber huts; but if, as seems now to be quite possible, concrete and brick bungalows are to be allowed to spring up in splendid disorder, the future of the whole district will be permanently destroyed. So I repeat: What is the County Council doing about planning the hinterlands of the Velvet Strand?

Commissioner Meghen

During the Easter holidays it was my good fortune to come across Commissioner Meghen taking a seaside rest in Bray from his administrative worries in South Tipperary and Kilkenny; and, to my great satisfaction, to find him enjoying a copy of the Irish Times in which reference was made to his former housing activities in Bray. I found, however, that more recent events, recorded on another page of the same paper, were not less interesting to the "emergency man" of the Free State Local Government. He was studying the table of returns of county council rate collections for last year, which showed that, while his present bailiewick of South Tipperary was the worst delinquent when he was put in charge, it is now far from the foot of the list. Last year only £45 of each £100 due had been collected. At the end of last month £66 of every £100 had rolled in. So I think Diary readers will agree that Mr. Meghen's little holiday has been quite well earned.

An "Emergency Man's" Views

But, of course, our chat got back to our immediate surroundings, and, though he was careful not to say so, I think I discovered that his heart still remains somewhere in the vicinity of Bray's Esplanade. Warm in his appreciation of the way in which the members of the new Urban Council are carrying on, and extending, the forward policy initiated some years ago, Mr. Meghen seems to think that the full possibilities of Bray, with its seaside attractions and incomparable mountain environment, are only now beginning to be realised. With the unique experience of having managed the affairs of Howth and Bundoran and Ennis and Wicklow, he should be a first-rate judge of urban possibilities. At all events, I felt gratified to find that so knowledgeable a man appreciates the efforts of the Irish Times to educate public opinion on town-planning and its allied problems.

QUIDNUNC.

TO COMBAT UNEMPLOYMENT

NATIONAL PLANNING SCHEMES

DEVELOPMENT OF PORT OF DUBLIN

NATIONAL planning, as a means of relieving unemployment until new industries are big enough to absorb the maximum amount of labour, was referred to by Mr. T. F. Laurie, chairman of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, in the course of an address on "The Port of Dublin," delivered in Jury's Hotel, Dublin yesterday.

"Unless we conquer the problem of unemployment," he said, "it will conquer us, and I suggest that war measures are necessary. It seems futile to hand out unemployment relief for no return to men who are anxious to earn the wherewithal to live as decent artisans. I take this opportunity to refer to several schemes which could be usefully pursued under national planning as war measures against unemployment. I feel that these schemes are essential for the development of the country's internal and overseas trade, and would be important factors in ameliorating the unemployment problem.

OVERSEAS TRADE

"The Port Board have within recent years constructed a deep-water quay on the north side of Alexandra Basin for the accommodation of the overseas trade, and they have in hands a further short extension which, when completed, will make inevitable a decision as to whether the Board will or will not proceed a step further in the development of the port by the construction of a spur wharf, springing from the eastern termination of the deep-water quay and extending in a south-easterly direction for approximately 1,300 feet. This proposal would involve an expenditure of approximately £250,000 for the first section and an additional £200,000 to complete. About one-half of this expenditure would be upon unskilled labour, and a considerable amount upon skilled labour at home for the fabrication of the special plant and material required for a work of this magnitude.

"If the present progress in the development of overseas trading is maintained, the construction of this spur wharf will become imperative.

"With the development of housing on the Northern and Southern shores and in the hinterland of Dublin Bay, the problem of facilities for traffic crossing the River Liffey becomes daily more pressing. The Port Board obtained an Act of the Oireachtas in 1929 which authorised the reconstruction of Butt Bridge, and thereby gave material relief to cross-river traffic. While the widening of portion of Tara street provided a suitable approach to the south of the bridge, the approach from Amiens street has not been dealt with, and to some extent, therefore, cross-river traffic has not reached the full advantage of the facilities which the new bridge provided. The Port Board offered to the Corporation part of the Customs House Docks, which would enable this arterial road to be laid out on good lines, and to generally improve the amenities of the area contiguous to the Customs House, but the Corporation could not face the cost of the scheme.

VERTICAL LIFT BRIDGE

"The Act of 1929 included not only the reconstruction of Butt Bridge, but provided for the construction of a special type of bridge lower down the river—namely, between Guild street and Cardiff lane. The Board, in accordance with the Bridge Act, submitted plans for a transporter type of bridge to the Local Government Department.

"Since this bridge was proposed progress has been made in the science of bridge design. Road traffic has become the life stream of commercial activity. In view of these altered circumstances, the proposed construction of a transporter bridge might be reconsidered, and consideration might be given to a much larger proposal—namely, the construction of a vertical lift bridge similar to that recently erected across the Tees at Newport, near Middlesbrough. The cost of such a bridge would be considerably greater than a transporter bridge, but the enhanced facilities would far outweigh the extra cost.

"The bridge rate area could not be expected to bear the financial responsibility for a bridge of this type. Across the water the Ministry of Transport made a grant of 75 per cent. of the approved cost of the Newport Bridge for the purpose of giving employment to labour.

"I would suggest that the bridge problem be investigated and considered by the Inter-Departmental Committee of Public Works. The construction of the bridge and the arterial approach roads would give a large amount of employment and provide the city and suburbs with a facility which is daily becoming more and more essential to the business community.

"I would also refer to the bridge over the Royal Canal at Sheriff street. It must be replaced with a bridge of an improved type. To-day traffic uses the much congested North Wall rather than use the hazard of Sheriff street. It should be understood that the Sheriff Street Bridge is not on the port estate.

A FREE PORT

"Consideration should also be given to the question of the development of a free port within the amenities of the Port of Dublin.

"A very enterprising local committee has submitted a detailed scheme in connection with the proposed marine lake between Dollymount and Sutton. The Committee scheme is presently under the consideration of the Inter-Departmental Committee of Public Works, and, while the actual cost of carrying out the work is likely to be greatly in excess of the estimate, the degree of employment envisaged would be about 75 per cent. of the total expenditure. Naturally, in giving consideration to a scheme of this description, the requirements of the port must be safeguarded to ensure that no hazard is likely to arise which will affect the navigable approaches to the port."

The Rev. T. J. Johnston, M.A. (curate-in-charge of Skerries), who will deliver the Trinity Monday Memorial discourse on Henry Flood (1732-1791), the famous Irish statesman and orator, was Auditor of the College Historical Society in the session 1924-'25. He graduated with the Large Gold Medal in History and Political Science in 1923. The Rev. C. H. Smyth, M.A., who preaches on May 5th, was formerly Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and Tutor and Lecturer in History at Harvard University, U.S.A. He is curate of St. Saviour's Parish, Chelsea. The Rev. Canon J. S. Bezzant, B.D., who preaches on June 2nd, was formerly Chaplain and Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford, and sometime Vice-Principal of Ripon Hall, Oxford. He has been Select Preacher on several occasions to the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and is at present Canon and Chancellor of Liverpool Cathedral.

Professor Morgan

The recent appointment of Professor Arthur Eustace Morgan, M.A. (Principal of University College, Hull) to the important post of Vice-Chancellor of McGill University, Canada, will give pleasure to all Trinity men. Principal Morgan (who was one of Professor Dowden's pupils) graduated in 1912, and after holding posts at Bristol University and University College, Exeter, became Professor of English at the latter college in 1919, and at the University of Sheffield in 1924. He was appointed Principal of University College, Hull, in 1926. During the war Principal Morgan served in the Royal Artillery from 1915-1919. He has lectured at various American Universities, and is well known to the Canadian academic world, of which he now becomes one of the most important figures. The congratulations of many friends will be extended to Principal Morgan, who paid a welcome return visit to his Alma Mater last year, when he was one of the speakers at the Historical Society's opening meeting.

We regret to record the accidental death in a cliff accident last week of Major Robert Hemphill, D.S.O., R.A.M.C., who graduated in 1912. The late Major Hemphill, who had a brilliant record in the athletic world, having played for Ireland at Rugby football on several occasions, gave distinguished service in France during the Great War. The tragedy of his death was heightened by the fact that his wife, in going to his aid, was also mortally injured. To his family the deepest sympathy of the University will be extended.

Scholarships

A notice at the front gate announces that the Deutsche Studentenschaft (German Students' Association) are offering for the forthcoming academic year two scholarships tenable at the Universities of Berlin and Munich. The scholarships, which will be tenable from November next to July, 1936, include free board and lodging at the University Hostels, and possibly also full remission of fees. Particulars may be had from the Hon. Secretary, Irish Students' Association (Mr. Desmond Bell, B.A., University College, Dublin), or from Professor M. F. Liddell, Ph.D., 36 Trinity College. The Deutsche Studenten Schaft have also invited the Irish Students' Association to send two representatives to tour Germany, as the guests of the German Students' Association, at the end of July. A further concession, which will be of interest to Irish University students, is the offer of free tuition (with low guaranteed cost of living) at the famous University of Heidelberg for two consecutive semesters to selected Irish students. Particulars of the various concessions may be had from the Foreign Department of the University.

In the list of barristers called to the Inner Bar of the Irish Free State recently appear the names of two well-known Trinity men—Mr. T. C. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., and Mr. R. Brereton Barry, K.C. Both of the new Senior Counsel were formerly Auditors of the Historical Society (the former in 1918-19 and the latter in 1921-22), and both held the distinction of being gold medallists in oratory during their auditorial term of office.

The congratulations of many friends in the University will be extended to Mr. W. B. Stanford, F.,T.C.D., on his marriage to Miss Dorothy Wright, and to Mr. O. L. Sheehy-Skeffington, M.A. (Lecturer in French), on his marriage to Mlle. Andrée Denis, L.-ès-L. of the University of Paris.

Sporting Successes

The Rugby Club completed the season with the distinction of having appeared in the finals of both the Leinster Senior and Junior Rugby Cups and the Leinster seven-a-side tournament, though being unsuccessful in all three engagements. It is to be hoped that next year will see the re-appearance of the Leinster Senior Cup among the club's trophies.

The hockey eleven completed a most successful season by winning the Leinster Senior and the Irish Senior Cup. Mr. D. J. Coulson, the team's international centre-half, was given the honour of captaining the Irish team, and has been included in a British eleven which will play on the Continent shortly.

The Senior Eight, in spite of being handicapped by the illness of several of the crew during training, did well to achieve sixth place in the Head of the River Race rowed at Putney during the vacation.

The Cricket Club, captained by Mr. E. S. Barber, begins the season to-day with a match against Merrion C.C. in the College Park.

The harriers hold their first club handicap meeting on Tuesday next at 5 p.m. in the Park.

HAIRDRESSERS' ACADEMY

The second annual competition of the Dublin Hairdressers' Academy for the "Kavanagh Cup" took place on Thursday evening at the Eugene Rooms, Henry street. The trophy was presented to the academy by Mr. T. Kavanagh, to be won annually in competition for permanent waving. Last year the winner was Mr. J. Thuillier, and when the adjudication was completed it was announced that Mr. Thuillier had again obtained the highest number of points.

The President of the academy (Mr. Joyce) congratulated Mr Thuillier on his success in winning the challenge cup for the second year in succession. Mr. P. Keeley secured second place and Mr. P. Butterly third.

The judges were Messrs. F. Jules Vambeck, J. Marin van Miert, J. O'Toole, G. Whelan and P. Collins.

Daily Programme Review

TO-DAY

DUBLIN: Variety, "Grand Slam," 8.30.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Feis Doire Columcille, Prize-Winners' Concert, 8.15.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: "Music Hall," 8.30.

REGIONAL: Band of H.M. Royal Air Force, 6.30.

MIDLAND: Chamber Music of Elgar, 8.

MUNICH: Operetta, "Frühlingsluft" (Strauss-Reiterer), 8.10.

ROME: Opera, "Castor and Pollux" (Rameau), from Florence, 9.

"GRAND SLAM," the variety programme for broadcasting by Dublin, Athlone and Cork to-night, will be given by Fay Sargent and Company. The list of artistes includes J. C. Browner, Michael O'Higgins, Kitty Fagan and Fay Sargent. At 7.15 in the Dublin programme Ian Priestly Mitchell will give listeners an actor's impression of Canada.

The Cup final provides rather more than the usual football running commentary for broadcasting. A feature of this relay always lies in the community singing which precedes the match. This year it is expected that a massed choir of some 95,000 will join in the singing of the old choruses and national hymns, to the accompaniment of the Band of H.M. Welsh Guards, under the direction of Major A. Harris, M.V.O., Senior Director of Music to the Brigade of Guards. Once more it is expected that the vast throng singing "Abide with Me" will be heard by exiles in the farthest outposts of the Empire.

Comments and a running commentary on the game will be given by G. A. Allison, and the whole programme will be relayed from the Empire Stadium, Wembley, from 2.30 to 4.50, by Athlone and B.B.C. National transmitters. The teams playing in the Cup final to-day are West Bromwich Albion and Sheffield Wednesday.

Another outside broadcast of interest in the B.B.C. programmes is the microphone tour of the River Tyne. Listeners will be taken fourteen miles down the river, when the Chairman of the Tyne Improvement Commission will tell how it has been made navigable for ocean-going liners. The Harbour Master is to escort the Northern Outside Broadcast Squad down the river in a launch. Among the many striking features of the broadcast will be the arrival of the boat train at Newcastle, and the last good-byes of the Norwegian mail boat, Venus, as she passes between the twin lighthouses at Tynemouth (Regional, 7.30).

DUBLIN: Station Orchestra, 8.30.

NORTHERN IRELAND: Orchestral Concert, Italian Opera, 6.45.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Recital by Frederick Ranalow (baritone) and Max Rostal (violin), 7.15.

WEST: Band Programme, with Ivor John (tenor), 6.

VIENNA: Festival Concert, 8.40.

THE most important B.B.C. musical broadcast to-morrow comes from Belfast. A programme of Italian Opera music will be performed by the Belfast Wireless Orchestra, conducted by E. Godfrey Brown, with Lenghi Cellini (tenor) as soloist. It must be many years now since Lenghi Cellini was heard in this country, but those who remember his singing during one or two of his visits in the past remember it with delight.

In the course of the concert he will sing arias, to orchestral accompaniment, from "La Boheme," "Tosca," "Rigoletto," "Pagliacci" and "Traviata." The orchestral items include two portions from Verdi's "The Sicilian Vespers," selections from "La Boheme" (Puccini), and selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni.

A dramatic reconstruction of the death of the Venerable Bede has been made from the only existing account of the death scene by D. G. Bridson, and will be broadcast to-morrow night. It is based on the famous letter from Cuthbert to Cuthwin, recording how Bede, racing with death, spent his last hours in finishing a translation of the Gospel according to St. John. The anniversary of the death of the Venerable Bede, twelve hundred years ago, is being commemorated at Durham Cathedral next month. Robert Farquharson, who took the name part in the same author's "Samuel Coleridge Taylor" broadcast at the end of last year, will take the part of Bede. The other parts will be taken by local (North of England) players. The production is by Felix Felton (North, 6.15).

Elizabeth Schumann (soprano) will give a recital, with Ernest Lush (pianoforte), in the Regional programme at 9.30; Frederick Ranalow (baritone) and Max Rostal (violin) will share a recital in the National programme at 7.15; and a third recital occurs in the Scottish programme at 5, to be given by Heloise Russell-Fergusson, who sings Hebridean songs to the accompaniment of the Clarsach (harp), and Peter McKinley (violin).

A special Service for Scouts will be relayed from St. George's Chapel, Windsor, when an address will be given by the Dean of Windsor (National, 3).

THE DODDER AT RINGSEND

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I and the members of my club have read with interest Mr. Daniel Cregan's letter in your issue of the 24th inst. on the above subject, and we heartily endorse the hope that the Port and Docks Board will use their powers to remedy the present dangerous and unsightly condition on the Dodder estuary.

This part of the Dodder appears to be used as a base for the scuttling of derelict schooners and other ownerless boats. These, with the other obstructions mentioned by Mr. Cregan, constitute a serious danger to fishing and racing boats, and it is only by skilful manœuvring and navigation that the number of more serious accidents, involving serious financial loss to the parties concerned, has not been greater.

Speaking purely from the rowing clubs' point of view, this part of the Dodder, which in former years was extensively used for training and racing purposes during high water hours, has been rendered useless by the obstructions, and the clubs are compelled to undertake the risks of the open sea. During the holding of regattas much delay and inconvenience is caused to the crews participating by the difficulty involved in negotiating this stretch of the river.

We, too, appreciate the considerable efforts that the Port and Docks Board have already made to improve the port, and, in suggesting that the Dodder might claim a small portion of their attention, have in mind the fact that the expenditure incurred would be very small and of a non-recurring nature—an expenditure that would confer considerable benefits on the fishermen and oarsmen of the locality and, at the same time, help to brighten a sight that is fast becoming so unpleasant as to constitute an eyesore.—Yours, etc.,

B. HOOPER,
Assistant Hon. Secretary.

Ringsend.

A novel machine has made its appearance in same of Berlin's streets. For a few pence dropped into the slot machine a bunch of fragrant fresh flowers can be purchased, thus giving an opportunity to do justice to the pleasant German practice of presenting flowers to the hostess of the house one has decided to visit after the shops are closed.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

Anthology of Armageddon

The Literature of the Great War

Anthology of Armageddon. By Bernard Newman and I. O. Evans. London: Arcner. 8/6 net.

THE authors of this anthology state that more than twenty thousand books have been written about the Great War, but that the classic war book has yet to be written. With some idea of supplying the complete and ideal record, they have selected passages from most of the major works on the subject and joined them up with a connecting narrative, which follows strictly the chronology of the War.

It is difficult to criticise an anthology. One may be annoyed that a favourite author has been left out, or that too much emphasis has been laid on one particular aspect of the subject. In the case of this book, neither criticism is applicable. All the great stories are included, from "All Quiet" to "Death of a Hero," and, although greatest emphasis has been laid on the horrors of war, one feels that this is as it should be. A number of interesting facts emerge from a study of the anthology. Passages which deal with the Western Front are devoted almost exclusively to the inhuman side of modern warfare. Nearly all of them contain dreadful descriptions of men blown to pieces by shellfire.

Other Fronts

On the Italian and Eastern side, however, one gains the impression more of a battle of wits, where individual courage and intelligence have a chance to play their part. Again, the philosophy of the High Command is vastly different from that of the man in the front line. The High Command is able to talk of honour and the freedom of the world, while the fighting man complains of vermin, hunger and fear. Frequently the military leaders are depicted as utterly callous incompetents, interested only in the retention of their jobs at the base camp, and through it the safety of their skins. One is tempted to wonder if the burden of responsibility weighing on the shoulders of the Generals was less tolerable than the fear of an agonising death which tortured the private soldier. The general tone of the anthology is not particularly pacifist, though anyone who reads it with intelligence inevitably must refuse to countenance the thought of another war.

A Land of Wonders

Dark Justice among the Afghans

Afghan Journey. By Ben James. London: Cape. 10/6 net.

ALL the wonders of the "Arabian Nights" still seem possible in Afghanistan. There a peasant may still battle to kingship, a priest lead a crusade against infidels, and a ruler subdue a number of rebellious subjects by the simple expedient of putting out their eyes.

Mr. James voyaged extensively in that wild country, and seems to have been well received. In his own words, "I lived in the Royal palace at Kandahar. . . I ate Oriental food in a ghostly carpeted mansion in an oasis, and rode at night with warriors and priests across barren, starlit plateaux." He appears to have been occupied largely with sociological problems, which loom menacingly in a country that so recently rejected not only European innovations, but destroyed the promoters of the improvements or drove them out. His pictures of the insanitary conditions under which the people live and suffer, the fanaticism and the extraordinary heroism and stoicism of the various tribes which constitute the Afghans, make a tapestry of romance and squalor. So far the Afghans have resisted external influences to a great extent, but they are beginning to filter in, and the author's reported conversations with the various Afghans show how deeply the influence of many Western ideas have penetrated.

Last Ditch

As an instance of the temper of this fierce people he relates the following. After an engagement in the late Afghan War a detachment of British were pursuing the enemy into the hills. On the battlefield a major suddenly tripped as he felt a stinging wound in the calf of his leg. He had been bitten by a fallen Afghan tribesman, who, though dying, contrived to catch the officer's leg as he ran past. As the English soldier turned to fire at the wounded man the Afghan said: "I could kill your whole army alone, and would do it now, if Allah had not given me a bad bellyache."

Though desperately wounded, he simply would not admit that the enemy had been the real cause of his discomfiture, and insisted that his unfortunate stomach-ache had exposed him to mortal injury, in which the foe had only been indirectly concerned. Small wonder that Afghanistan remains unconquered.

The Poetic Pilgrimage of W. B. Yeats

An Philibin's Intimate Study

William Butler Yeats. By J. H. Pollock (An Philibin). Noted Irish Lives. Dublin: The Talbot Press. 2/6 net.

THERE can be few writers who could have written a book on Dr. W. B. Yeats like Dr. Pollock's, which is almost a mosaic of quotations; such intimacy with the poet's works hardly could belong to the poet himself. The reader feels that the author has made a world for himself out of the Yeatsian poetry, has dwelt therein, going over well-loved poems again and again as over a favourite garden path, never wearying of the flowers, their colours and their scents. Has the poet himself dwelt as constantly amid the beauties that he has created?

As Dr. Pollock shows, there are phases in Mr. Yeats's development, in which he has passed from one achievement, either because he has wearied of it, or because he has exhausted its scope, to another; so we find him advancing from old, epic themes, when his song was—

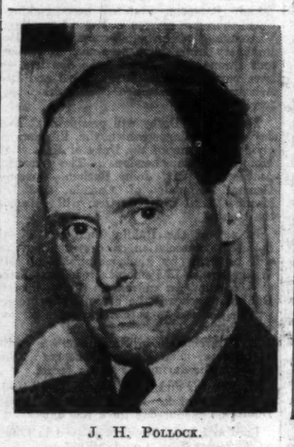

Covered with embroideries
Out of old mythologies
From heel to throat—

to that severe, satiric verse which contrasts so remarkably in theme and in style alike. Yet behind the change of subject, even of allegiance, it is the same proud spirit that goes questing. The same purpose, the same vision, remains. Still the singer praises "the wasteful virtues," which he dramatised in the legend of the Green Helmet, but later comes to identify with a caste that is passing away, leaving empty—

. . . . this house,
where passion and precision have been one
Time out of mind.

The Irish Land

Ireland cannot forget that it was in her natural beauty that the young Yeats was nurtured. To the glamour of the West, and of the spacious olden home life, we owe such poetry as that great piece on the child that the fairies stole; no more would he see the mico bob around the oatmeal chest; likewise, those heroic poems which depicted the wanderings of Oisin and the death of Cuchulain. If Dr. Douglas Hyde and the other early Gaelic enthusiasts had not drawn attention to the great stories which have the seas and skies and mountains of Ireland as their setting, it is likely that Mr. Yeats would have followed the English poets in the choice of abstract or classical themes. Then he would have been arid; but Ireland, ancient Ireland, cast a spell on his young genius, and gave him matter for his song. It is no accident that Yeats describes an exploit of the Red Branch chief as one that gives "the long-remembering harpers matter for their song," echoing a line out of Homer, who has almost exactly the same comment on the griefs of the warriors before Troy.

J. H. POLLOCK.

The Abbey Theatre

The heroic hope faded. The Abbey Theatre, which was to give the Gaelic kings a fresh embodiment as images of the racial desire, became the home of sharp, modern satire. Either the public did not want to hear about Tara and Emania or the playwrights did not want to write about such themes. At any rate, a declension followed, and Dr. Pollock becomes indignant as he tells how—

To-day, the buffooneries of "Professor Tim," alternating with the "twopence coloured" melodrama of "Juno and the Paycock," can be counted upon to fill the house to capacity with a chocolate-consuming audience, who, presumably from weekly familiarity, anticipate each succeeding joke with indiscriminate and immoderate laughter, which results, perhaps, mercifully, in rendering the ensuing joke inaudible; whose crescendo chatter during the intervals drowns even the most strenuous chords of Wagner or Beethoven; and who have, to their lasting discredit, insulted Dr. Larchet's delicate talent as a pianoforte executant.

Philosophy is the poet's refuge from a world of disappointment. Of this aspect of his subject, Dr. Pollock writes a little doubtfully, as need not be wondered; for the poet's mystical writings never yet have been reduced to a series of logical propositions, nor are they, perhaps, consistent in themselves. Long ago Dr. Yeats said that his religion rested on symbols, which have come down from the remote past in the pages, or in the words, of poetry; these symbols, he holds, are primitive, and all formal religions, including Christianity, however serviceable to souls, are of newer growth. This idea seems to remain with him. It cannot be reconciled with dogma or revelation, as Christians understand these things; it renders truth wholly subjective and indeterminate. So—

The abstract joy
The half-read wisdom of daemonic images
Suffice the ageing man as once the growing boy.

Service of Beauty

On the other hand, the need for some doctrine more tangible seems sometimes to have been felt in the poet's spiritual pilgrimage, and he wondered, as Dr. Pollock reminds, on the eve of age, whether "now that I shall in a little be growing old" [I shall take] "to some kind of simple piety like that of an old woman."

Like his fellows, those turbulent spirits of whom he wrote, perhaps, too candidly in his prose autobiographies, Yeats always was scrupulous in art, conscientious in the service of beauty as he saw it. To him it may be said, as he said to them, that he—

. . . Never made a poorer song
That you might have a heavier purse,
Nor gave loud service to a cause
That you might have a troop of friends.

This is not the worst of epitaphs that a poet might compose for himself.

Ruling Without Punishment

A Rascal in the South Seas

Autobiography of a Rascal. Edited by S. W. Powell. London: Selwyn and Blount. 8/6 net.

WHEN a rascal writes his autobiography, one expects a literary style slightly worse than the worst in the Sunday Press, a large amount of moralising, pages of self-adulation, and constant protests that the author is not as evil as he seems to be. The author of this book, however, has avoided nearly all these pitfalls. He appears to have been something of a philosopher, and his philosophy is seldom false. Thus he says of women: "From her tendency to discuss and argue, her egocentricity, and her defective sense of proportion and of reality, she is, in the theatre of virile action, a nuisance." Mr. Powell lived on an island in the South Seas, near the author of this book. They became friends, and on the death of the adventurer Mr. Powell found his autobiography. It is published as it was written.

The author was compelled to leave England in disgrace while he was still very young. His experiences in the South African War are amusing. He had a genius for extracting money with a likely tale. Later he found himself in the South Seas and became manager of a copra estate. Eventually he murders the owner, and marries his widow. The murder is described simply and bluntly, without excuse or over-emphasis of the horrors. Soon he tires of a planter's life, and buys a schooner. In his travels he comes upon an island which is run on the lines of a monastery by a missionary. He organises a revolution, and becomes dictator.

Strange Economics

This is the best part of the book. The author makes a logical examination of his political and economic position. When the missionary was in power revenue was obtained by fining the people for the smallest moral lapse. Now, under the new administration, there are no more punishable offences, and the people refuse to work. The financial position seems to be hopeless; but the author's plan to save the situation is not only quite unexpected, but a complete success. Throughout the book there is a parade of ladies, coloured, but lovely, of whose charms the author avails himself with impressive prodigality.

Five Men in a Boat

From Hong-Kong to Dartmouth

Voyage of the Tai-Mo-Shan. By Martyn Sherwood. London: Bles. 10s. 6d. net.

ON June 1st, 1933, five young naval officers left Hong-Kong in a fifty-four-foot sailing boat. One day under a year later they arrived in Dartmouth. This is the record of their adventures. The boat they had built to their own design, and it seems to be the ideal cruising vessel. They used the Bermuda rig, with a mizzen mast, and the ship had no bowsprit.

In the earlier stages of the book the reader gains the impression that he is in for a dull and exasperating time. The subject is a wonderful one, but the author treats it in so reserved, so superficial a fashion, that he kills all interest. The Navy is famous for the way in which it performs the most heroic of deeds in the most casual of ways, and Mr. Sherwood seems to follow in the "It wasn't much" tradition. No emphasis at all is laid on the discomforts of small boat cruising; there are no rows between the members of the crew; the whole thing reads like an official report of a naval manœuvre.

Later on, however, the author gives extracts from the diary he wrote on the spot, and these are fresh, amusing and interesting. One of the most enthralling incidents is the grounding of the Tai-Mo-Shan on Crooked Island, near Cuba. For many days they strove to drag her off the beach with anchors, warps, rollers, skids and jacks, and every time something broke. Eventually, however, they turned the bow so that it faced the open sea, and one day the ship moved. The travellers were off again.

Help for the Amateur

At the end of the book the author has given a list of necessary supplies for ocean cruising, a short description of ocean winds and some remarks on navigation. For the enthusiast these should be of inestimable value. By far the best part of the book, however, is the photographs. They are very numerous, technically excellent, and often beautiful. The reader knows from them exactly what the boat looks like and what sort of men made up her crew. The grounding on Crooked Island has twelve photographs all to itself, and they illustrate clearly the hopeless position into which the boat was driven.

THE LITTLE THAT IS LEFT

A PERSONAL, BUT POOR, ANTHOLOGY

LIGHT THAT FADES

I CONFESS that it took me aback, and gave me seriously to think, when an overbearing friend asked me yesterday how many poems I could quote from memory; for after prolonged meditation I was forced to admit that there were not more than half-a-dozen or so. Even now, having occupied myself with thought for the best part of a night, I can rake up only about a dozen of which I can honestly claim to know more than three or four lines. And a strange mixture they are. There is Shakespeare's sonnet, "Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?" there is, rather surprisingly, that charming and dreamy poem of Sir Walter Ralegh's, which begins:

Give me my scallop-shell of quiet,
My staff of faith to walk upon,
My scrip of joy, immortal diet,
My bottle of salvation—

and there is another poem whose author I have completely forgotten, but he was an early Elizabethan, and the poem can be found in "The Oxford Book of English Verse"—the poem called "Vixi Puellis Nuper Idoneus"—

They flee from me that sometime did me seek,
With naked foot stalking within my chamber.

And those pretty nearly account for my recollection of Elizabethan English poetry, unless you are willing to count speeches here and there from Shakespeare; but somebody would be sure to point out that they are not complete poems.

Then there are others—so few others. If put to it, I think, I could manage the whole of Wordsworth's "Ode on the Intimations of Immortality," which, now that I come to look at it, is not a mean achievement, because the poem is long, and not all of it is as inspiring as the opening lines. I can recite either to myself or before an interested audience the three stanzas of Yeats's "Who Dreams that Beauty Passes Like a Dream," not to mention that admirable poem which accompanies the unfolding and refolding of the curtains in his "Resurrection"—

I saw a staring virgin stand
Where holy Dionysus died.

And, though bits elude me at the moment, I have no doubt that, after five minutes with the book to refresh my memory, I could rattle off "Lycidas" from beginning to end. The same applies to Keats's "Ode to a Nightingale." Two poems of Shelley I can—and often do—manage without a prompt; one is the tiny lyric beginning

When the lamp is shattered,
The light in the dust lies dead—and the other is the sonnet about Ozymandias, king of kings. Of George Gordon Noel, Lord Byron, I have

She walks in beauty, like the night
Of cloudless climes and starry skies ready on my lips. There is also the invocation to ocean from "Childe Harold," which I learnt at the fantastic age of ten—though, as part of a long poem, it cannot count. There is Tennyson's "Ulysses." And that is all.

In regard to Irish poetry I am rather better supplied, in proportion to what there is to know. Quite a lot of Moore and Davis comes trippingly to my tongue—largely, I presume, because so much of their work has reached me in the form of songs. I know the whole of that cruelly poignant poem (was it by "Speranza"?) beginning and it will take a good man to fool me—allowing for a little judicious prompting—on any of the poems and translations which are found at the end of Thomas MacDonagh's "Literature in Ireland." I know Fred Higgins's "Old Galway," and his lament for Padraic O Conaire; Seamus O'Sullivan's superb elegy on Sean MacDermott, and a couple of poems by Lyle Donaghy. But, speaking generally, I am lamentably ignorant of the moderns, Irish or English—at least, so far as the ability to quote whole poems by them is concerned.

Weary men, what reap ye? Golden corn for the stranger—

It was not ever thus. There were days when I could have doubled and trebled this poor list of poems that I remember. Once I knew the whole of "Adonais" by heart, and even, because I had to study it for an examination, and a literal knowledge seemed the easiest course, the first book of "Paradise Lost." Some day, perhaps, when a little leisure falls to my lot, I shall sit me down and relearn some of these great poems that I have forgotten—"Adonais", certainly, many more of Shakespeare's sonnets, Browning's "The Grammarian's Funeral," and—am I forgetting even their names?

But it may be that the power to learn poetry by heart will have left me by the time I make the effort. For one of the tragedies of education is that poetry is best learned by children, who do not want to learn it, but the adult who loves poetry and would be glad to know whole books of it, too often finds that he has lost the ability. Sometimes I think that, if the remoulding of this State's educational system were in my hands, I would stuff the youngsters with poetry whether they liked it or not, confident that when they reached man's estate some of them at least would be grateful beyond measure for the verses they had learned. Looking over my list, I cannot find more than a very few poems which I learned after I had left school; and now I could wish that I had paid less attention to conic sections, which can be studied at any time, and a great deal more to the mechanical learning of poetry—a facility which I can never acquire again.

Charles Villiers Stanford

The Folk Music of Ireland

Charles Villiers Stanford. By Harry Plunket Greene. London: Arnold. 15/- net.

SIR CHARLES VILLIERS STANFORD is admitted to have been one of the greatest musicians of modern times. He composed many famous songs, some good operas, and devotional music; he edited traditional Irish music, and wrote a well-known Irish Fantasia. He was noted as a conductor, and infused his own genius into many a learner as teacher at the Royal College of Music. Dublin possesses no memorial of this talented son of the city, save a tablet on the wall of No. 2 Herbert street, which records his birth there on September 30th, 1852.

Stanford's kinsman and admirer, Mr. Harry Plunket Greene, has written a long and thorough life, which music-lovers will welcome. It is an absorbing book, even for the common reader, despite its exhaustive treatment of what is so largely technical; and it will rank as a chapter in the annals of Irish music. Mr. Greene insists throughout his work on the radically Irish temperament of the musician, and traces his nationality in his mode of speech, his humour, his swift wrath that never bore malice, and his acute sensibility.

Cambridge

His father was a legal expert of high rank, and his mother came of the great juristic family of the Hanns of Galway, one of whom defended Daniel O'Connell. He was reared in Dublin in what Mr. Greene describes as the most brilliant period in one of the most brilliant of cities; a Dublin that has changed, if not passed away. The lad was designed for the law, but never doubted his own calling. When he was eighteen he told his father of his desire; and, though it came as a disappointment to the Examiner in the Court of Chancery, no objection was made. Only it was insisted that he should go through Cambridge first. Thus did he become attached to Cambridge in his early manhood; there he first distinguished himself as the reviver of the Cambridge University Musical Society, which had been founded by another Irishman thirty years earlier—namely, by William Thomson, who became Lord Kelvin. If only Stanford had been sent to an Irish university instead of to Cambridge, might he not have proved the long-awaited Irish composer who shall create from our rare folk tradition a new musical art? He studied in Germany, and met the most famous composers of the age.

ANDRE TARDIEU.

The Partnership with Graves

His opportunity in the field of folk music came from his friendship with Alfred Percival Graves. The composer and the poet worked together for fifty years. Graves translated from the Irish, or composed new songs with old themes, always with facility and neatness; Stanford moulded the music that matched the words. The joint result is seen in three "arranged" collections of songs and other pieces.

On this subject Mr. Greene remarks that "no country can compete with Ireland in the quantity and quality of its folk music. The various collections of airs in song form which Stanford, and, after him, his pupil, Charles Wood (of Armagh), produced in company with Alfred Graves are a wonderful record of beauty. Open them where you will," Mr. Greene adds, "you will catch a glimpse of the spirit which has made Ireland the most romantic country in the world." Among the first of the tunes which these collaborators brought back from oblivion was that which we know as the Londonderry Air. It was recovered from Petrie's manuscripts in the early 'eighties. Stanford "arranged" it, not faultlessly, but at least highly successfully. Graves wrote to it the words called "Emer's Farewell." Thereby it became famous. Parry said that it was the most beautiful tune in the world.

"Father O'Flynn"

Another notable success of the Stanford-Graves collaboration was the song called "Father O'Flynn." This was based on a dance tune. Stanford condemned it as merely comic, although Graves held that it was humorous. At any rate, it served a lucky turn in making the collaborators' work known. Graves got airs in many unlikely places. Three precious tunes were got from Captain Francis O'Neill, formerly Superintendent of Police in Chicago: one of them was "The Enchanted Valley." That joyous air, "The Beautiful City of Sligo," was taken down by Graves himself from an old Irish barrel-organ man in Harlech.

Stanford died in 1924 at a ripe age, and was buried in Westminster Cathedral in recognition of his pre-eminence among modern composers.

France's Danger

An Ex-Premier's Warning

France in Danger. By André Tardieu. Translated from the French by Gerald Griffin. London: Archer. 15s. net.

WHEN a statesman of M. Tardieu's importance speaks of the dangers facing the French Republic, it behoves not only his own country, but Europe, to listen. M. Tardieu has been ten times a Minister of the French Cabinet, and three times President of the Council, or, as they call it elsewhere, Prime Minister. He has wielded all the power of the great French State, and has held in his hands the keeping of peace or the making of war in Europe, and he may occupy this responsible position again.

Mr. Griffin has performed a useful service in making the warning addressed last year by M. Tardieu in his "L'heure de la décision" available for English-speaking readers. His translation comes not a moment too soon; for some of the fears about Germany to which Tardieu gave expression early in 1934 must be confirmed by what has happened in Germany in 1935.

France's Internal Weakness

M. Tardieu examines the position of the French Government at home and in relation to her neighbour and late enemy. Like so many of his countrymen, he seems to live in continual dread of German aggression. He would fortify his country against this ever-present menace, but to do that France, he argues, must put her own house in order at home. If there are not drastic changes in her domestic government, France, he concludes, will be unable to hold her own in the new situation brought about by Germany's rearmament and France's internal weakness.

If M. Tardieu is right, the present state of France is little short of deplorable. And that there is some reason for his misgivings has been amply demonstrated by the convulsions in French politics since he wrote the work here translated. With brutal frankness he declares:

> In reality the whole system of representative government has become discredited. . . . . A great offensive has been opened against our civilisation, and, in order to defend that civilisation, France needs to be in a healthy condition. Now, at the present moment, she is far from being in a healthy condition. She is like all nations of too long standing. Abuses, the outcome of her very antiquity, have corrupted her principles and dethroned her ideals. Personal interests have killed the sense of general interests. The coalition of oligarchies has shattered the controlling force needed for the collective success and for the individual liberty of our people. A radical reform is needed—a reform alike of our laws and our customs.

Steps to Reform

Among the evils he sees in France's present position are the excessive power of the State servants and their use of trade unionism and revolutionary propaganda, defective machinery of administration, and very serious weakness and error in constitutional practice. The remedy is not to be found in what he calls neo-capitalism or neo-communism; and he is so far from being a pessimist that he believes that "the public morale, of which throughout the ages our country was the most perfect example, offers us other means of regeneration." To France these means may appear revolutionary, but most of them are in reality commonplaces in other States governed under a system of representative democracy. M. Tardieu would have "a minimum of executive authority, a minimum of parliamentary freedom, a minimum of financial order, and a minimum of civic morality, failing which democracies evolve either into anonymous or personal dictatorships." His reforms would give the Executive power to dissolve without, as now, getting the assent of the Senate to dissolution; take away from deputies the right to propose expenditure; give women, as a conservative force, the vote; institute the referendum, at least as an advisory organ; and curb the power of trade unionism among State employés.

From peoples to whom, as we have remarked, these proposals are familiar in everyday operation, M. Tardieu's scheme will not be likely to draw criticism. Not so in France, where several of them are hotly contested, and is not the present French Ministry evidence of France's tenacity in giving her Second Chamber powers denied by so many other States?

Mr. Griffin's translation has been done with his usual competence, but how many marks would he deduct for "either . . . nor"?

Apologia

A Pilgrim's Progress

The Unfinished Universe. By T. S. Gregory. London: Faber and Faber. 8/6 net.

WHEN he began to write this book Mr. Gregory was a Nonconformist preacher, held in high esteem for his rich scholarship and persuasive style. Holding that religions are of two kinds—the anthropomorphic, in which man constructs a theory of the universe from his inner consciousness, and the faiths which made God the centre, and acknowledge the creaturehood of man—he set out to test the chief creeds by this standard. He found that Greek religion was of the groping and unsatisfactory kind. Lovers of Homer will be pained, perhaps, by his drastic, but erudite, treatment of that part of his theme. Proceeding to Jewish religion and Christianity, Mr. Gregory was led to a conclusion that surprised himself. Protestantism, he found himself led to consider, was anthropomorphic, and so his line of reasoning—followed as Plato followed the argument whithersoever the wind should carry his craft—led him into the Roman Church. His reception as a convert took place on the same day that his book was published.

Mr. Gregory's intense subjectivity makes the work hard reading. He does not carry his learning lightly. He never says a thing simply if there is a difficult and allusive way of saying it. To some scholars his allusions will be a literary treat, but many will think that a more objective treatment of his theme would be better.

In Quest of Sheba's Mines

In Quest of Sheba's Mines. By F. E. Hayter. London: Stanley Paul. 12/6 net.

DURING a long series of travels in little-known Abyssinia the author came across traces of one of the lost mines, the source of the fabulous wealth of the Queen of Sheba. After many vicissitudes, including a nightmare experience in "The Forest of the Dead," he reached a range of mountains in whose sides he found a number of entrances evidently made by human agency. Within he discovered a vast series of caverns, with, at certain times, the booming sounds of tremendous subterranean cataracts. When his companions rejoined him they made an attempt to explore this underground system, and the author nearly lost his life as the subterranean waters overflowed the cave. During the explorations the guide was terrified by the myriad red points of light which sprung into life in the path of the electric torch. They gathered a number of these light-reflecting stones, which later proved to be fine rubies. In his ignorance, the author left the larger of them behind, thinking that no precious stone could be so big, and thus lost a great fortune. The search for the mines was hazardous in the extreme. Hostile tribesmen, an evilly-disposed chieftain, the Atto Bayenns, and wild beasts exposed them to many dangers. The author tells of some strange things besides the mines—such as the sport of lion "calling," which makes the moose calling of North America seem tame and feeble by comparison.

New Novels

The Pinnacle of Glory. By Wilson Wright. Macmillan. 7/6 net.
Fiddler's Folly. By Joy Baines. Harrap. 7/6 net.

THE "Pinnacle of Glory" is a story about Napoleon, and it reveals him in a very unheroic light, struggling towards yet another pinnacle of fame—the martyr's crown.

The scene is laid in St. Helena, and the period the last five years of his life. Napoleon and the few friends who have gone into voluntary exile with him are badly on each other's nerves, and we are presented with the lamentable spectacle of interminable nagging and bickering. In addition to this, Napoleon resents the restrictions placed upon himself and his followers by the governor of the island, and he is prepared to stoop to any depths to combat them. His plottiing and scheming to do so, and also to arouse sympathy in England, reveal him in a very mean and petty light, and as Lowe is also petty and tyrannical, he and Napoleon are a well-matched, but rather despicable, pair. Although we have the deathbed scene to move us, our sympathy throughout is with the underlings of these two protagonists, and particularly with those of Napoleon, who loved him and were loved by him, but who could do nothing but irritate one another.

* * * * *

It is not everyone who will select a novel about a Sussex family of yeoman stock and the dark stranger, a gypsy, who brought sorrow and suffering to them all; but Miss Baines has a gift for creating atmosphere and of compelling our interest in her characters, and few people who start "Fiddler's Folly" will lay it aside unread. No one could like the Godfrey family. They are hard, bitter, and unyielding, and unpleasantly quarrelsome, but they are real, they have forcible personalities, and once one has met them one is concerned in their future. Lovell, the gypsy, is not a distinct character; he is more like a voice or an enchantment, but, even so lightly sketched as that, his influence is intelligible, and it is clever of Miss Baines to make us realise his character through the portrait of his son rather than through any direct effort at portrayal.

Men of Good Will, Vol. VII.: The Lonely. By Jules Romains. Lovat Dickson. 7s. 6d. net.
The Lord's Anointed. By Ruth Eleanor McKee. The Bodley Head. 7/6 net.

M. JULES ROMAINS is generally recognised in France as the greatest of her contemporary novelists, and one who can be ranked with the greatest novelists of any country or period. We have before us Volume 7 of "Men of Good Will," and are consequently only one volume behind the French in following this remarkable "work in progress." Mr. Gerard Hopkins, whom practice has made quite perfect as a translator of M. Romains, calls this volume "The Lonely," although the French subtitle is "Recherchez d'un Eglise." It deals chiefly with those very representative young students of 1910, Jean Jerphanion and Pierre Jallez. They are deeply interested in such questions as Church and Anti-Church, Freemasonry and the Third Republic, but they also regale us with conversation of a lighter nature. They have some illuminating and "educational" contacts with women, and, as ever, are as real as M. Romains can make them. We await the translation of Volume VIII. with interest.

* * * * *

Novels of missionary life seem to be on the increase, and, on the whole, they are rather unflattering to the missionaries. In "The Lord's Anointed" Miss McKee deals with the missionaries of the Sandwich Islands. Of the little group that set out from New England in 1819 for Hawaii, only Constancy Williams still lives when the story closes in 1887. It was love of her rather fanatical young husband, and not any desire to convert the Hawaiians to Christianity, that brought Constancy to the islands; but she lives to be the mainstay of the little group about the missions. On the death of her favourite son, she almost loses her faith, but conceals the fact in her devotion to the work in hand. Her husband dies, her children are scattered, her mind deepens and broadens with experience. The later missionaries may have doubts as to whether Constancy is orthodox in her Calvinism, but she is accepted as a kind of mother-superior by the community. She dies at the age of a hundred in the arms of her grandson.

The novel is complete with some delightful descriptions of native life; but it is the character of Constancy Williams, admirably drawn, that holds the interest to the end.

Grammar of Love. By Ivan Bunin. Hogarth Press. 7s. 6d. net.

THERE are ten short stories in this collection by Ivan Bunin, entitled "Grammar of Love." The first few are relatively trivial, and one suspects that they may have lost something essential in the process of translation. Certainly, one reads them with the feeling that one has just been told a good and humorous story, and missed the point. Patience, however, is rewarded, and one comes upon two really wonderful specimens of peasant literature. Even allowing for one's ignorance of Russians, and of Russian peasants in particular, these stories persuade one of their authenticity, and give an unforgettable impression of the episodes they depict. The difficulties of translating Russian into English are very apparent in this volume, and readers who recall that Ivan Bunin won the Nobel Prize in 1933 will regret their inability to appreciate his style in the original.

Journeying in Unfamiliar Places

World-Wide Wanderings. By Rachel Humphreys. London: Heath Cranton. 7/6 net.

IN the course of extensive travels in the East, America, Africa and Europe, the author visited a number of places, which, though known widely by reputation, remain unviewed by the average globe trotter as being "off the scheduled route." In Java she toured the hill districts, and dared the precipitous sides of the volcanoes of Bromo and Papandayan. In China she risked a possible attack by river pirates, and voyaged up the West River, the Si Kiang. In Japan she was initiated into the mysteries of the Shinto rites in order to see the inner shrine of the Mausoleum of Iyeyasu, since without these ceremonies it is not possible for foreigners to enter the sacred place. She lived for a while on a ranch in British Columbia and hunted crocodiles in Jamaica, and on the return journey to the mainland investigated the banana industry at Costa Rica. Later, accompanied by her faithful companion, one Gertrude, of unspecified surname, she made the journey by car of a thousand miles along the North Equatorial road from Nairobi to Rejaf, on the White Nile. Miss Humphreys is a careful observer, but her wanderlust, like Io's gadfly, keeps her journeying too continuously. The book gives an impression of incessant travel. One would like to read of her settling down for a protracted stay somewhere, say, Jamaica, and writing about that one particular country. She would do it famously, and would avoid the travel film effect that her present book conveys.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

Dublin competitors scored a series of successes at the Sligo Feis Ceoil yesterday.—(Page 10.)

At a largely attended meeting of magistrates in Belfast, yesterday, it was decided to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council against the Summary Jurisdiction and Criminal Justice Bill, now before the Parliament of Northern Ireland.—(Page 9.)

Mr. W. T. Norton, T.D., has given notice that, in the Dail on May 1, he will ask whether the Minister for Industry and Commerce is prepared to promote legislation to enable the Dublin Corporation to acquire the road passenger services within, and contiguous to, the city.—(Page 5.)

At the annual meeting of the Dublin Mercantile Association, Limited, yesterday, the annual report and statement of accounts showed that the past year had been marked by steady progress, and that the Association's activities had been appreciated by the trading community.—(Page 15.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Speaking at the Manchester Luncheon Club, yesterday, the Earl of Derby said that what had endeared the King to Great Britain was that he had tried to be one of themselves—that he was as loyal to them as they wanted to be loyal to him.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets closed the three weeks' account on a bright rate. The feature was a sharp advance in several Industrial issues, Tate and Lyle being the most prominent.—(Page 14.)

Silver soared to 36¼d. per oz., the highest since 1922. Gold rose to 144s. 9½d. per oz., and £477,000 was sold. The Treasury bill rate was again 10s. per cent.—(Page 14.)

Dublin Market was somewhat uncertain. Local securities were rather dull, but British Industrials were strong.—(Page 14.)

SPORTING

At Stockton Scarlet River won the North Yorkshire Handicap.—(Page 12.)

Germany's Problems

On the 1st May Herr Hitler will deliver what is described as a general statement of policy. We may presume that there will be nothing novel about it. Herr Hitler, following the example of his fellow-dictator, Signor Mussolini, delights to do things in the dramatic fashion—to keep the world tiptoe with expectation by the promise of an exciting speech, which actually turns out to contain nothing that a statesman in another country would not have announced in the quietest possible manner. There is little doubt concerning the contents of Herr Hitler's speech. It will call attention to the League of Nations' vote on Germany's re-armament, will repeat that her attitude towards peace is unchanged, her determination to rise again unshaken; and it will reaffirm her unbroken solidarity in the face of an actively or passively hostile world. What else, after all, can the Chancellor do? By the conscription law of last month he made a tragic mistake, which has weakened his country's position. Only a short while ago the sympathies of the nations were veering towards Germany, and France's sternness towards her was finding less and less favour. Herr Hitler's blunder has caused the pendulum to swing in the opposite direction: he has played into France's hands. The arrogance, the bad faith, the disregard of international opinion with which he effected the conscription law have sent a shiver of distrust throughout Europe and America. Only one member country of the League of Nations refused to condemn her action; and it is safe to say that Germany never has been disliked so thoroughly and so widely as she is disliked to-day. Even Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, who is unaccustomed to speak harsh words about anybody or anything, has been moved to indict her. "Germany," he says, "has acted in such a way as to destroy the feeling of mutual confidence in Europe . . . has broken up the road to peace, and has beset it with terrors."

Realising his fatal blunder, Herr Hitler hardly will include any further gestures of defiance in his forthcoming statement of policy. What, then, will he say? Can he affirm with truth that the German nation is united in support of his leadership and his strategy? The evidence suggests that a great deal more opposition to the Hitlerite doctrines exists throughout the Fatherland than Dr. Goebbels and his colleagues are ready to admit. There are the Jews, who, for all their persecution by the Nazis, are still a formidable body, and still present a thorny problem to Herr Hitler's Government. Short of extermination, it is hard to see exactly what can be done with them; and the problem threatens to become more acute when the question of their service under the new conscription law arises. The Jews at present are deprived of the rights of German citizenship; but any of them whom Herr Hitler decides to draft into the army must re-acquire those rights. If this course is distasteful to the Government, it has no alternative but to exempt the Jews from conscription, thereby bestowing on them a privilege that the mass of German citizens would be grateful to receive. More important than the Jews, however, and far more formidable to the Hitlerite régime, is that huge section of the German people which clings to its Christian faith. The religious sentiment of all creeds has been outraged by the pagan antics of the Chancellor and his Government, loathes their efforts to dethrone Christ and establish Wotan in his stead, and is bitterly resentful of their attacks upon the ministers of the Church. The gallant stand which has been made by so many priests of all the Christian communities against the new religion of "Aryanism" implies that they must be supported by the deep and strong sympathy of millions of Germans.

News which we printed yesterday, and further news which we print to-day, cast, indeed, a curious light upon Chancellor Hitler's insistence on the solidarity of the German people. His new Press law is designed to eliminate at one stroke all serious competition with the Nazi Press. One of its clauses enacts that only persons who can produce proof of their "Aryan" descent back to the year 1800—a fantastically stringent regulation—can have any share in the ownership of a newspaper. Another ordains, inter alia, that no religious organisation can publish a newspaper; and this clause must mean the extinction of many of the great newspapers which still retain a vestige of freedom of thought. What motive could have impelled Herr Hitler to take such a step except the conviction that many Germans are opposed to his policies, and the desire to muzzle the dangerous expression of their views? To-day we read that three more of the pastors who have put up so gallant a fight against Nazi paganism have been arrested, and it is rumoured that their arrest is merely a prelude to a wholesale "round-up" of Christian clergymen. Chancellor Hitler in many ways has shown the qualities of a great leader, but in other ways he is sadly slow to take warning from the examples of history. He ought to know that religion flourishes under persecution, and that the surest means to combine German Christianity against his own régime, and thus to disrupt the vaunted solidarity of Germany, is to suppress the people's right to worship as it pleases. The charge against the three newly-arrested clergymen is that of "having had relations with the foreign Press, and also of having maintained contact between the Protestant opposition pastors and the Catholic Church." It seems that one of the first results of the Nazi Government's tyranny has been to unite German Christianity against him; and, if the Churches were powerful when apart, how much more powerful will they be, standing shoulder to shoulder?

The Parents' Share

A child in a city school has not done his task, and is reprimanded before the class. Asked if he has any excuse for his neglect, he seeks to evade reply, then breaks into tears. Through sobs the story is told. The child is one of a large family; the father is out of work, and cannot spare the money needed to buy lesson books. This is a piteous little scene, which is common enough in the schools of Dublin's tenement area, and, no doubt, in other urban parts of Ireland. Perhaps, the Lord Mayor of Dublin had such cases in mind when he addressed the Teachers' Congress. The Constitution of the Free State, Alderman Byrne said, > provided for free elementary education, but he could not understand how education could be said to be free while the responsibility for supplying books rested with the parents. The present Government had gone far to provide for those in needy circumstances, and he did not see why it should refuse to provide books to necessitous children.

If the proposal to supply books freely applies to the children of needy parents alone, no one will find fault; but two criticisms may be suggested. Firstly, far too many books are prescribed. Continual changes of programme, the frequent scrapping of one year's books in favour of some new fad, make the supply of books a greater tax than it need be; the well-bound, standard book that went from one child to another in successive years is a thing of the thriftier past. In the second place, we think that parochial effort should not be supplanted by State action. In some parishes collections are taken in church once a month to provide winter firing for the schools. This practice keeps alive a direct, personal interest between the people and the schools which their children attend. It is true that the mean citizen escapes contribution; but to legislate for meanness is to debase the State. A similar parochial school fund, out of which the clergy could help distressed parents when books are needed, would lift the stigma of the pauper from the acceptance of help. Hard cases make bad law. We should be sorry to see the parents of the whole land exempted from direct contribution to their children's education merely because the abnormal cases require relief; let these cases receive help in some inoffensive form. The objection to free school books is not that the taxpayer is threatened with another burden; for the taxpayer will have to pay for books in direct fashion, if not indirectly. What is wrong is that the parents' interest in their children's education tends ever more to be transferred to the State, thus loosening the very basis of the Christian system—family responsibility. Has not the present Pope—than whom no authority will be heard with greater respect by most of the people of Ireland—urged that parents in all lands should be encouraged to concern themselves in their children's schooling, and, to that end, should be asked to take a direct share in the means of provision? Books, we think, should be fewer and better; but parents ought not to be relieved of the duty to provide them, save in those hard cases which are relatively few. The parent who grudges for his children's education a few shillings a term—as much as he spends in tobacco in a week or two—is a poor citizen, with no claim to relief at the cost of persons of greater public spirit. In the demand for free school books for all children we see one more manifestation of that disguised socialism which is undermining our superficially orthodox economy.

Where Every Prospect Pleases

"Oh to be in England, now that April's there," cried Browning; and, no doubt, our neighbouring island has much to offer in this month of girlish laughter and girlish tears. We venture to say, however, that there can be few more pleasant places on the face of the earth at present than this much-maligned little island of our own. The Irish climate has become a joke. Retired colonels, eating out their hearts on the Riviera or in the South of England, protest that they cannot live in Ireland because of the incessant rainfall; and even those of us who, for one reason or another, remain at home, rarely cease to cavil at our climate. With the possible exception of Paris—which is peerless in the springtime—Dublin probably is the most pleasing city in Europe during the months of April and May. Nature has been exceptionally generous this year, and, if it were not for the unhappy transport strike, which keeps a large proportion of the city's population immobilised, the people of Dublin would be reaping the benefit of a luxuriant springtide. A walk through the Phœnix Park in these days of early sunshine and burgeoning growth is an experience that can fall to the lot of few city-dwellers in other countries. There were wind and rain at Fairyhouse last Monday; but the drive back to town through the Park was ample compensation for any discomforts that may have been suffered by race-goers. Already golf courses and tennis courts are packed. Some hardy souls even have started to bathe, and during the last few days the water round the Hill of Howth has been as limpid as the Mediterranean. Next week we shall have Punchestown. If the present weather holds, Kildare will be looking at its best, and, in spite of the Dublin strike—in spite even of the economic war—sporting Ireland will muster in force to see one of the finest race meetings in the world. Those whose lot has been cast within our shores have much for which to be thankful. Lilac and laburnum are beginning to brighten our suburban gardens; within a few weeks Merrion square will be a blaze of sweet-smelling blossom, and, if we all had a little more sense, we might be the happiest people in Europe.

Youth at the Helm

A dictatorship has a curious effect upon youth. Creatures which under normal conditions would be mere brats become the living symbol of the new nationalism, or the corporate State, or the return to economic prosperity. To keep them at their job the dictator supplies them with neat, but serviceable, short trousers, and something to go on top. Herded then into vaguely gesticulating hordes, they are marched through the principal streets of the city. The spectacle, in the opinion of the dictator, has a salutary effect upon the patriotic feelings of the citizens. So far the thing is very good, indeed; but sooner or later the living symbols realise their value, and get out of hand. It strikes them that the fatherland would benefit more if they themselves took over complete control, so far as was feasible. Thus the German youth has adopted a line of his own in the collection of money. At first the Hitler Jugend was ordered out with its red collecting boxes, and with suitably modest and respectful demeanour it asked the German people to help. Now, however, the boys have become aggressive and unpleasant. They rattle the tins continuously in the face of the public, crying all the time in loud and penetrating tones. It is useless to wave them away. The rattling sound merely increases in intensity, and the collectors surround their victim stealthily, but surely. But for the patronage of the secret police many of these lads never would return to their homes after the first flag-day. Much the same kind of thing happens in Italy, where children of nine or ten summers trudge round with knives; but apparently it is only in China that the young have formed themselves into Vigilance Committees. Chinese Boy Scouts (according to Reuter) do not like to see generals in uniform embracing their wives in parks. This is queer.

LONDON LETTER

THE JUBILEE PROCESSION

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Jubilee procession to St. Paul's Cathedral is to be augmented, and it will now include representatives of the cavalry units of the Army, including Lancers, Hussars, Dragoon Guards, and Royal Horse Artillery—more than two hundred mounted men in full dress uniform. These troops will precede the escort of Household Cavalry. A conference took place last night to discuss the matter, and this was attended by the Lord Chamberlain, Major-General B. N. Sergison-Brooke, Sir Arthur Erskine, and representatives of the Home Office and Scotland Yard. This addition to the procession is a recognition of the disappointment generally expressed when it became known that the procession would be comparatively short.

Gay London Streets

The West End of London is richly bright in borrowed plumes for the several Jubilee processions which take place within its borders. Miles of streets are lined with Venetian masts of red and white or purple and gold, each mast having a pennant banner fluttering in the air. In Oxford street a series of enormous gilded pylons occupy the centre of the roadway, while in Trafalgar square there is a forest of poles and garlands. Private buildings are being freely decorated to-day, and some quite elaborate schemes are being revealed. The Strand will be a very gay spectacle, while Piccadilly and Bond street will both present a bright appearance. The floodlighting at night will be on a most elaborate scale everywhere, but it is doubtful whether it will prove so effective as the now old-fashioned method of coloured lights.

Mr. Macdonald Attacks Germany

The article in the News-Letter, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's official organ, attacking German policy, is of such a character that it has surprised the other members of the Cabinet. It is a recognised rule that Cabinet Ministers do not comment freely on foreign affairs in newspaper or magazine articles, and the feeling is that Mr. Macdonald should be bound by the same principle. In his article the Prime Minister says that "Germany has broken up the road to peace, and has beset it with terrors. . . . . It claims a measure of armed power which puts most of the nations in Europe at its mercy. . . . . It asks other nations to accept a verbal pledge of pacific intention, which it itself would not accept from its neighbours. . . . . Germany has roused the suspicion of practically every nation in Europe. . . . . Germany has acted in such a way as to destroy the feeling of mutual confidence in Europe." It is not surprising that these remarks have come as a shock to the German Government, while giving great satisfaction in Paris.

Unrest in Conservative Circles

It is no secret in political quarters that there is much unrest among the younger members of the Conservative Party regarding the policy of their leaders, and when the members of the Junior Imperial and Constitutional League meet in conference at Friends' House, in Euston road, on May 4, a resolution is to be submitted calling upon the Government to formulate a policy and give a platform on which the general election can be fought on real Conservative lines. An authoritative pronouncement is regarded as imperative, in view of the many rumours that a general election is likely to take place in the autumn.

The German Navy

The delegates who are coming from Germany next month to discuss naval matters with the Board of Admiralty and other Government representatives are expected to put forward demands which are unlikely to be given any great consideration. Herr Hitler is said to want the right to build a navy equal to fifty per cent. of the British naval tonnage, a rather extravagant idea, inasmuch as all the vessels would be maintained in home waters, Germany having no colonies to guard like Britain and France. In addition the ships would be of the most modern character, and this would compel Britain and France to build new vessels at the same rate. If Germany's demand was to be accepted it would completely destroy all possibility of naval disarmament.

A Monarchy in Greece

King George of Greece is such a well-known figure in London that it is not surprising that the story that he has been invited to resume his Throne has been received with great interest. King George himself declares that he knows nothing of any such project, and the Greek Legation in London is also ignorant of any such invitation. It was asserted to-day that King George would certainly want something more definite than a vague intimation that he would be welcomed back in Athens. In any event it is highly improbable that King George would receive a formal invitation to resume the Throne until a new Parliament has been elected in Greece, and possibly a plebiscite held on the subject. Restoration of the Monarchy has been predicted for some time by confident Royalists, but the recent Greek revolt upset all plans, and as General Kondylis, the War Minister, who did more to put an end to the revolt than anybody else, is not at all anxious to see the Monarchy restored, there is a great element of doubt about a restoration in the near future. M. Tsaldaris, the Greek Premier, is monarchist in theory, but he will wait on the course of events. He has, however, promised a new election at the earliest moment.

Russian Pact with France

The Russian Government is making further effort to resume negotiations with France for a pact of mutual understanding and military assistance in case of necessity. A few days ago the negotiations were suddenly broken off, and M. Litvinoff departed for Moscow in a temper, but new instructions have been forwarded to M. Potemkin, the Soviet Ambassador in Paris. It is suggested that these instructions may form a basis on which conversations with M. Laval can be renewed immediately, but in Paris the view is that Russia will have to modify considerably her proposals if they are to be acceptable to the Quai d'Orsay.

French Fortifications

The French Air Ministry has declared that any foreign aeroplane which crosses the frontier illegally, and flies over French fortifications, will be forced down. This threat follows upon a fourth illegal flight made by a 'plane presumed to be German. The Air Ministry has arranged for the firing of blank shots from anti-aircraft guns as a warning to any unwelcome visitor, and, if "invasion" is persisted in, the machine will be surrounded by fighting 'planes and forced to descend. It is explained by the French Government that the precautions have become necessary because frontier defence works are now in progress in the forests of Alsace and along the Moselle, and these are being constructed with the greatest possible secrecy. In order to ensure this, the work is being carried through by Senegalese and French troops instead of civilian workers.

REVOLT OF NORTHERN MAGISTRATES

BILL "TO BE FOUGHT WITH BACKS TO THE WALL"

DECISION TO APPEAL TO THE PRIVY COUNCIL

DAYS OF THE STAR CHAMBER RECALLED

A LARGELY attended meeting of Northern Ireland magistrates, in Belfast yesterday, decided to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council against the Summary Jurisdiction and Criminal Justice Bill.

The bill proposes to deprive Justices of the Peace of most of their judicial functions, and to entrust these solely to the Resident Magistrates.

The bill has passed the Northern House of Commons, and soon will come before the Senate.

Sir Robert Kennedy, on whose motion the resolution to appeal was passed, said that they must fight this matter with their backs to the wall. Other speakers also condemned the bill, one observing that there had been nothing like the system which the bill would set up since the Star Chamber.

The appeal to the Privy Council will be taken under Section 51 of the Government of Ireland Act, 1920. A guarantee fund for the purpose has been formed.

BILL STRONGLY CONDEMNED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

Magistrates from all parts of Northern Ireland assembled to-day at a meeting in the City Hall, Belfast, convened by the Lord Mayor (Sir Crawford M'Cullagh), to consider what action should be taken in view of the fact that the bill limiting the powers of Justices of the Peace nas passed the Northern House of Commons, and shortly will come before the Senate.

The Lord Mayor of Belfast, who presided, said that the object of the meeting was to decide what course should be adopted when the Summary Jurisdiction Bill came before the Senate. The feeling was general that certain rights were taken from the magistrates under the bill, and that this was not as it should be. Magistrates fulfilled an important function in their civic life and in the life of the country, and did good and noble work.

The following resolution was then submitted:—

"We, Justices of the Peace of Northern Ireland, at this meeting in the City Hall, Belfast, under the chairmanship of the Lord Mayor of Belfast, note that the above bill, which deprives us of our judicial powers, has, without reference to the electorate, passed its third reading in the Northern House of Commons, the voting list showing—Ayes, 20; Noes, 5; Abstentions, 27 (of whom 11 are members of the Government). And as we have been advised by counsel that our subordinate Parliament has no power to pass such an Act, we resolve to obtain a speedy determination of this question, as provided for under Section 51 of the Government of Ireland Act of 1920, and, pending a decision, to take no action prejudicial to our rights."

THE CRUCIAL POINT

Sir Robert Kennedy, K.C.M.G., in moving the resolution, said that the crucial point of the new bill was the clause: "Except as otherwise provided by this Act, the powers and duties of a Justice of the Peace shall be exercised by a Resident Magistrate, and no Justice of the Peace, not being a Resident Magistrate, shall have jurisdiction to exercise or perform the same." The exceptions referred to seemed to many of them so trivial that they added insult to injury.

The resolution which he submitted clearly indicated the way in which the bill had been forced through their local House of Commons, ignoring all the suggestions made during the last five years by the Magistrates' Association, by deputations, speeches and pamphlets. Upon this point he wished to make no harsher remark than that an immovable Executive and an irresponsible Legislature could not, according to all the lessons of history, make for harmony. Representative government had become a farce when Parliament existed only to register decrees of an autocratic Cabinet. To him it appeared that the only alternative open to them was, metaphorically, to fight it out with their backs to the wall, in the full belief of the justice of their cause.

Alderman D. Christie, M.P., in seconding the motion, said that, as one of the minority who voted against the bill in the House of Commons, he had not heard from anyone in the Six Counties anything which would make him change his attitude. He felt that the Government were placing a slur upon those who held a high public honour, and he could never understand why the Government should offer an insult to a man like the Lord Mayor, the chief magistrate of Belfast, one who had given not only his time, but his wealth, in the public service; and the Cabinet did not do that. (Hear, hear.)

He could never understand why the Northern Government was so keen to appoint a paid official to do a job when a loyal, conscientious citizen was prepared to do it without fee or reward. He agreed with the proposal to bring the matter before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The Government was forcing this bill through Parliament against the wishes of the electors.

THE STAR CHAMBER RECALLED

Mr. George McElroy, a former Resident Magistrate, said that the Magistrates Bill had passed the House of Commons by 20 votes out of a total of 52. The new model magistrates were to be set up by a minority of the House. They had already one new model, the re-valuation, and the popular welcome to it was not encouraging. The Attorney-General had boasted that until this Magistrates Bill was drafted by officials in the Home Office, no one, not even in England, knew what a Summary Court was. He granted him that; for no such court as was proposed existed in England since the Star Chamber was closed.

Under this bill a Resident Magistrate could sit behind closed doors, and send any man, woman or child to jail for six months. Even J.P.'s, who were supposed to have no judicial capacity, and were not allowed to sit in court, could sit in a back room and send any man to jail for three months. That was how the bill respected the liberty of the poorer subjects. But the Home Minister cared for none of these things, he was only concerned with the morality of the magistrates. He declared that the magistrates, in their leaflets, made false statements; but he did not specify them.

He would like to know how the Churches were induced to believe that this bill was meant to close the betting houses. If they thought the new bill would do that, they would soon find that it was only a delusion. He would not be surprised if the Minister of Home Affairs, in his enthusiasm in taking things from the Free State, would adopt their plan of licensing the gaming houses. Of the twenty members in the Northern House of Commons who supported the bill, Mr. McElroy said, at least eleven were members of the Government, or were paid officials.

If the Minister of Home Affairs or the Attorney-General had any sense of decency they would drop the bill, or refer it to a committee for examination. He predicted that the 26 Senators would so amend the bill that it would be acceptable to the Justices of the Peace, but if not, and the bill was passed, that would not be the end of it. Under the 1920 Act the powers of the Northern Parliament were very strictly limited, and, if they attempted to pass a law that went beyond this limit, any Court of law in the land would declare it to be null and void.

NOT AN ORDINARY BILL

The bill was not an ordinary one. It attempted to curtail the King's prerogative, to appoint the Justices of the Peace by Commission, and take from Justices already appointed what they had enjoyed for centuries. If the Justices and the people tamely submitted to this revolutionary change the Parliament would regard their powers as unlimited, and would be encouraged further to invade popular rights.

The Government had reached a critical stage owing to its recent measures, and high and low were in revolt. The Corporation of Belfast—hardly second to Parliament—had had to make a stand against its attempt to impose taxation of a kind hitherto unknown. For a Parliament forbidden to impose any income tax or any general levy on capital that was a very bold claim. The Corporation was going to resist it, and appeal to the Privy Council.

The English magistrates were interested in their proposed appeal to the Privy Council, and they had promises of support in providing counsel to fight the appeal.

The resolution was supported by Commander F. Forde, Lurgan; Messrs. Frank McLoughlin, Castlederg; David Johnston, Lurgan; R. J. Paul, Glarryford; Samuel Orr, Ballycarry; Mrs. Anderson, Ballymena; Mrs. McMordie, D.B.E., Belfast; Major Procter, of Moy, and Albert J. F. W. Anderson, of Kesh, Fermanagh, and was passed with only one dissent.

MUTINY IN FRENCH PRISON

WARDER SHOOTS CONVICT

News of a serious mutiny in the prison at Draguignan, Var, has just leaked out. An inquiry into the outbreak has been opened, but the causes have not yet been definitely established.

It appears, however, that a convict named Bazioli seized a piece of broken window-glass during meal time and threatened a warder with it. The warder shot Bazioli in the chest, wounding him seriously, and this started the mutiny.

The shot convict is now in hospital.

No mention of the mutiny was made by the authorities, but public curiosity was aroused by the arrival of an ambulance at the prison gates. Draguignan, the capital of Var department, lies about 25 miles west of Cannes. It has a population of 10,000.

EX-KING GEORGE OF GREECE

ARRIVAL IN LONDON

RECALL TO THRONE DENIED

A REFERENDUM POSSIBLE LATER

EX-KING GEORGE OF GREECE, a cousin of the Duchess of Kent, arrived at Dover yesterday from Calais.

He travelled on the Southern Railway steamer Canterbury, and was met on board by Mr. F. J. Wymer, Divisional Marine Manager, Southern Railway, at Dover.

Immediately after landing he proceeded to the boat train for London.

"ALL IMAGINATION"

In a short personal interview which he gave to a reporter who travelled on the train from Dover to Victoria, he referred to reports from Paris that he had been invited to return to the Greek throne.

"There is really nothing to say about these rumours," he said, "except that they are all imagination.

"I know nothing of any meeting in Paris, such as has been described, and at which it is said I presided. I know nothing at all about it."

Asked the object of his visit to London, he replied: "I am here on holiday, and that is all there is to say."

To another question as to whether he was taking any part in the Jubilee celebrations, he answered: "I cannot say."

UNRECOGNISED IN LONDON

When the cross-Channel steamer tied up at Dover the ex-King was one of the last passengers to leave.

Wearing a grey flannel suit, soft felt hat, and carrying a small leather case, he walked down the gangway, accompanied only by an official of the Southern Railway and followed by his aide-de-camp, Colonel Levidis.

On his arrival at Victoria the ex-King, who wore a monocle, passed through the barriers almost unrecognised. The only indication of his presence on the train was an extra force of police, who immediately rushed forward and kept the people away from his carriage.

He was met by Mr. Constantinidi, representing the Greek Embassy, and Mr. A. Statharopoulo, representing the Anglo-Greek Association, and was driven direct to his hotel.

NO RECALL AT PRESENT

VICE-PREMIER'S HINT OF LATE REFERENDUM

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Friday.

There is no question at present of recalling ex-King George to the throne of Greece, but when the country has settled down again after the suppressed revolt the Greek people will, if any considerable section wishes, be asked to answer "Yes" or "No."

That seems to be the plain effect of a statement made here this evening after consultation with the Prime Minister by the Vice-Premier, General Condylis, the man who put down the recent revolt.

Greeks abroad will not be allowed to dictate to the Greek Government, General Condylis said. The reported Paris invitation to the King was not acceptable, for the Greek throne was in Athens, not Paris.

QUESTION FOR PEOPLE

"The monarchist question is one for the people to decide. They will be allowed freely to express their wishes after the National Assembly has met, and when the nation is calm and able to think things over quietly.

"If the election programme of the Metaxas Party includes the return of the monarchy, the Government will allow propaganda as long as public peace and order are not disturbed."

An official communiqué represents the Vice-Premier as saying:—

"As is known, a Republican régime has been functioning in Greece since March 25th, 1924, and is recognised by all political parties.

"Up to the present the question of a change of régime has not been raised.

"The Government has proclaimed elections for a National Assembly. The Government is of opinion that the question of the régime cannot be subject of party antagonism. Party antagonisms make enemies for the régime.

"It is a matter of national interest that the régime, whether it be a country with or without a King, shall not rest on political parties, but on a majority of the Greek people, coming from all the political parties.

ROYALIST VIEW

"When the urgent national questions arising from the recent cruel domestic experiences have been settled, when the Greek people is calm again, and able freely and coolly to form its judgment, the Greek Government will not hesitate, if a considerable part of the nation so wishes, to place before it the question of the régime, free of all party connections.

"It goes without saying that the verdict of the Greek people will be respected by all."

Royalist circles here, it is stated, attach no importance to the reported Paris meeting.

AIR GIRL'S BAD LUCK CONTINUES

JEAN BATTEN AT MARSEILLES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MARSEILLES, Friday.

Persistent bad luck has robbed Miss Jean Batten of her attempt to set up a new solo record for women in flights between Australia and England. After a period of feverish activity mechanics in Rome had apparently rectified the trouble which forced her down at Foggia yesterday afternoon, and at 5 o'clock this morning the plucky young New Zealand air-girl left Rome on what was hoped to be her last lap.

Fighting against a very strong head wind, especially over the Alps, Miss Batten reached Marseilles just before noon. Here her machine was re-fuelled, but a punctured tyre caused delay, and a crowning piece of ill-luck followed almost immediately, the machine developing magneto trouble. This frustrated her declared intention of flying non-stop from Marseilles to London, and means she cannot reach England before noon to-morrow.

FREE STATE BUDGET

MR. MacENTEE'S SECRET

TAXES REMISSION UNLIKELY

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

FREE STATE taxpayers are looking forward with interest to the Budget, which Mr. Sean MacEntee, Minister for Finance, will introduce in the Dail on next Wednesday week, the 8th May.

Just what surprises the Minister has in store for the public are the Minister's well-preserved secrets. Financial experts find it difficult to venture on any prophecies—particularly in the absence of the authoritative White Paper showing the estimated revenue and expenditure for the coming financial year. Without such guidance speculation is rather futile.

BUSY MINISTER

An inquiry in authoritative quarters yesterday elicited the information that this document will be issued "some time before Budget day."

The Minister is having a busy time discussing various points with his high officials, and certain interested parties are volunteering their advice, which it is customary to present at this time.

The general impression appears to be that Mr. MacEntee will endeavour to make ends meet, while causing as little upset as possible to the normal business life of the country. No new direct taxation is apprehended, although it is possible that by indirect means the Minister will find it necessary to supplement his revenue.

NO TAX REMISSION

Those who hope for remission of taxes will very likely be disappointed. The most obvious remission—if remissions are possible—would be the removal, or mitigation, of the 5s. per ton tax on coal; but, in view of the figures so far available, it is very unlikely that anything will be done in this respect.

Neither is it likely that the Minister will follow the British Chancellor in regard to income tax allowances—particularly as Free State taxpayers have already received most of these concessions.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

JUBILEE GRANTS

The Times, in a leading article to-day on the three grants to be made by the Pilgrim Trust in honour of the King's Silver Jubilee, says:—With the help of the Pilgrim Trust and certain public-spirited landowners, the National Trust has now secured for all time against destruction the indispensable and controlling portions of so much of the Malvern Hills as could still be saved, and a great expanse it is. It is good news that the result has been brought about with no change of ownership and scarcely any disturbance of existing conditions. Nice adjustment between the claims of the public and the rights of the landowners has been achieved by years of thought and care, which have involved no small expenditure of money, and in helping the National Trust towards the completion of the scheme the Pilgrim Trust has helped to provide a leading instance of what can be done to combine the requirements of the old times and of the new.

The example will be all the more potent because the Malvern Hills are one of the best known and the most frequented of the major beauties of England, and because, in the words of the Pilgrim Trust, there is, perhaps, no part of Great Britain which contains within so small an area more historic and literary interest than the country that spreads at their feet. It is earnestly to be hoped that the National Trust will be enabled by a grateful public to put the finishing touches to a dream of which all but a little has now been most happily realised.

TO PREVENT, NOT PROVOKE, WAR

THE FRANCO-RUSSIAN PACT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

M. Laval, the French Foreign Minister, who is seeking re-election as Mayor of Aubersvilliers, a suburb of Paris, defined his attitude to the Franco-Soviet pact in a speech in preparation for the municipal elections on May 5th.

"If the Franco-Soviet pact were to be such as French Communists recommend," he said, "it would land us in war, and I would refuse to sign it."

"The Communists want the pact to be an unlimited contract of mutual military assistance.

"The pact, as I envisaged it in agreement with Moscow," M. Laval continued, "aims at preventing war, not provoking it. It must form part of the necessary organisation for the collective security in Europe, but it must not be directed against any country."

It is expected that early initialling of the Franco-Soviet pact will follow new instructions sent from Moscow to-day to M. Potemkine, the Soviet Ambassador here.

APPEAL FOR NAZI PRISONERS

"IN DANGER OF EXECUTION"

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

PARIS, Friday.

The German Refugees' Committees in Paris have issued a pressing appeal in favour of three prisoners who were arrested at the end of March and who are believed to be in danger of immediate execution for having been found in possession of military information.

They are Max Maddalena and Robert Stamm, former members of the Reichstag, and Adolf Lembke, a journalist.

It is alleged that they were brutally maltreated by members of the German secret police directly after their arrest. The appeal includes a list of anti-Nazis recently executed for giving military information.

It is noticeable that several of these people were inhabitants of places in the Rhineland, such as Barmen and Elberfeld, which are within the demilitarised zone.

THE INDIA ASSEMBLY

A STRENUOUS SESSION

THE INDEPENDENTS' POLICY

GOVERNMENT REFUSAL TO COMPROMISE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SIMLA, Friday.

ONE of the longest, the most strenuous and the most interesting sessions of the Assembly has just ended. Its chief outcome has been more to bring out the points of difference between the Government and the Indian Nationalist opposition, led by the Congress Party, than to emphasise points of contact.

The last Assembly had taught the Government the need for organising its votes on a party basis, and this lesson had not been lost in the new Assembly. But the advent of the Congress Party, with rigid discipline in its ranks, left the fate of every issue in the hands of the "Independent" Party, led by Mr. Jinnah.

This party has no electoral organisation, but has, in every assembly, sprung up through combination among those who are elected to the house from Muhamedar constituencies. It has never voted on any subject en bloc. Its members are permitted to vote as they like, but a majority of them have generally joined the Congress Party in opposing the Government.

The result has been that throughout the session the Government has found itself frequently outnumbered by the Opposition—namely, on 28 occasions, as against ten only when the Congress was defeated.

ULTERIOR OBJECTIVE

The Government on their side felt that the issues before the House were not being discussed on their merits, but with an ulterior objective—namely, to destroy the prestige of the Government in the country. In fact, they were glad to seize at a phrase in one of Mr. Satyamurti's speeches, which openly admitted this to be the Congress Party's policy.

The Government met these tactics accordingly—and for this Sir James Grigg may chiefly be regarded as responsible—with a refusal to compromise. By this they hoped to give a lesson to the Congress.

The Congress Party's chief asset is undisputedly Mr. Bulabhai Desai, its leader. He is by far the best speaker of the House, one who has always held the House spellbound and whose brilliant advocacy has often won applause even from the Government benches.

While Government spokesmen have maintained throughout the session that the British Government is the best friend of the masses of India, the Congress Party has claimed to speak for the masses, and has asserted that the answer of the Government to their constitutional method of work clearly proved the need for an early establishment of "Swaraj" Government.

ARMY BANDS AND IRISH BLUE SHIRTS

DISCUSSED BY SCOTTISH T.U.C.

A resolution of protest against the action of the Government in allowing Service bands to accept civilian engagements, often at rates which constituted unfair competition with professional musicians, was carried at the Scottish Trade Union Conference at Montrose yesterday.

Mr. J. S. Ratcliffe (Musicians Union, Glasgow), who moved it, said that the Governments were dominated by the War Office. The appearance of Army bands in public parks and bandstands, in military uniform, was the most potent recruiting force that existed.

Mr. Robert Morrow, conveying greetings from the Irish Trade Union Congress, said that the menace of the Blue Shirt movement, which was definitely Fascist, had been smashed by the efforts of the Irish trade unionists. The Irish Republican Army was now a Socialist Army, well disciplined and well-trained to fight for the Irish worker.

LIMERICK'S NEW FACTORY

DIRECTORS' VISIT TO SITE

Sir Lingard Goulding, Bart., and Mr. Plunket Dillon, solicitor, two of the board of directors of the company which has been formed to erect a factory in Limerick for the manufacture of nuts and bolts, screws and nails, visited the city yesterday.

With the Mayor, Mr. J. M. Casey, Mr. P. F. Quinlan, and Mr. T. F. O'Sullivan, Harbour Engineer, they went to the docks, where they inspected the factory site, which the company has acquired on lease from the Harbour Commissioners.

The site covers four acres. The capital of the company is £125,000. The prospectus will be published, it is understood, in the course of a few weeks.

It is stated that the factory will provide employment for at least two hundred skilled and unskilled workers.

INSURANCE SCHEMES IN FREE STATE

ENGLISH ACTUARY'S APPOINTMENT

It was officially announced yesterday evening that Mr. F. Percy Symmons, F.I.A., has been appointed expert adviser on insurance matters by the Free State Minister for Industry and Commerce.

Mr. Symmons, who is a recognised authority on insurance matters, recently resigned from the service of the Prudential Assurance Company, where he was formerly Secretary and Chief Actuary.

It is understood that his duties will be to assist in an expert capacity in connection with the Free State Government's insurance schemes.

JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS IN WASHINGTON

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

A Service in the National Cathedral, attended by leading officials of the United States, will form part of the celebrations here of the King's Jubilee on Monday week. The use of the cathedral, which is still in an unfinished state, has been offered by the Bishop of Washington and accepted by the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay. There will also be a garden party in the grounds of the British Embassy.

WORLD 'PLANES FOR DUBLIN

IRISH AVIATION DAY

COBHAM CIRCUS IN BIG DISPLAY

THE most ambitious display of flying and of aircraft ever seen in the Irish Free State will be staged in the Phœnix Park, Dublin, on Saturday, 11th May, which will be Irish Aviation Day.

The co-operation of Sir Alan Cobham has been obtained, and spectacular feats by that famous airman's "circus" will be a feature of the day's entertainment. In addition, a number of continental pilots are likely to appear, so that the proceedings will be truly international.

Dublin will be not the only part of the Irish Free State to see the display, which has been arranged with the object of making this country "air minded." Arrangements have been made for the following meetings:—

May 3rd—Ballybar, Carlow.
" 4th—Hollyfort, Enniscorthy.
" 5th—Marsh Farm, Dundalk.
" 10th—Scardenmore, Sligo.
" 11th—Phœnix Park, Dublin.
" 12th—Leopardstown, Dublin.
" 13th—Bloomfield, Maryboro'.
" 14th—Drinagh, Wexford.
" 15th—Dunmore, Kilkenny.
" 16th—Kilcohan Park Racecourse, Waterford.
" 17th—Ballycummin Castle, Limerick.
" 18th and 19th—Farmers' Cross Aerodrome, Cork.
" 20th—Racecourse, Tralee.
" 21st—Oranmore Aerodrome, Galway.
" 22nd—The Old Aerodrome, Castlebar.
" 23rd—The Big Meadow, Athlone.
" 24th—Clooncoose Racecourse, Longford.

An object of this programme is to show the pilots outside Ireland the country's natural geographical position on the shortest direct land-to-land route between the old and the new worlds.

Through the Free State Department of External Affairs and its Legations abroad, as well as through Army, Air Service and private contracts in many lands, touch is being made with almost everyone who is anyone in the realm of flight. As a result, it is expected that a large number of the latest types of 'planes will set out from England and other European countries for Ireland next month.

For the visitors a special arrival competition has been arranged. A valuable trophy, presented by the Irish Hospitals' Trust, and substantial money prizes, will be presented to the competitors whose machines cross the finishing line nearest to the secret sealed time determined by the Executive Committee of Irish Aviation Day.

Other items include aerial battles between anti-aircraft guns and Army machines, bombing displays, parachute displays, aerobatics, crazy flying and gliding.

ANOTHER BORDER DEATH

LITHUANIAN-GERMAN TENSION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

KAUNAS, Friday.

Another shooting incident on the Lithuanian-German frontier has been reported.

This time a farmer named Henning, his son, and a German named Neumann, are stated to have been hit as they were crossing the frontier. The son was killed and Henning, senior, and Neumann were seriously wounded.

The German authorities stated that Henning was trying to convey into Germany a hundredweight of peas, and Neumann eighteen pounds of butter.

It is semi-officially stated here that the German frontier police now fire at everyone seen crossing the frontier. Yesterday it was reported that two Lithuanian subjects were shot dead while trying to cross the frontier.

IMPORTED BUTTER AND CHEESE

CONTINUANCE OF RESTRICTIONS

The importation, save under licence from the Minister for Agriculture, of butter, cheese and dried or powdered milk was prohibited by the Dairy Produce (Price Stabilisation) Act, 1932, and regulations made thereunder. That Act has now expired, and in order to continue restriction on the importation of these substances the following Customs duties have been imposed by the Emergency Imposition of Duties (No. 68) Order, 1935, on imports, on or after 27th April, 1935—viz.:—

1s. per lb. on butter;
1s. per lb. on cheese, and
2s. per lb. on dried or powdered milk other than that imported in a package containing not more than 2 lb. of such milk, on which the existing duty (if any) will be charged.

The duty specified will be chargeable unless importation takes place under, and in accordance with, a licence granted by the Revenue Commissioners after consultation with the Minister for Agriculture.

RETAIL BUTTER PRICES

The new bill for stabilising the price of butter at the source of production in the Irish Free State, which Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, will submit for second reading in the Dail next Wednesday, is causing a good deal of speculation among consumers.

It is generally feared that in his efforts to satisfy producers the Minister for Agriculture may fix a retail price for butter greater than that now prevailing. No price has been fixed in the measure now under discussion, and some exponents of the bill contend that it will not increase the present retail price, which, it is generally agreed, is far too high for the average consumer.

At the moment, Cork butter in many shops is only a penny per lb. cheaper than creamery—due, no doubt, to the method of financing the subsidy scheme.

FALL IN FRENCH REVENUE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

The trend of international politics is officially held to be the cause of a fall in French revenue receipts in March compared with the amounts received in the first two months of the year.

Total receipts for the first quarter of 1935 were 7,484,139,500 francs (£102,500,000)—a decrease of 353,426,600 francs (£4,841,500) from the figure for the corresponding quarter of 1934.

The official Note accompanying the statement says that the fall is a very strong argument for a reduction in public expenditure, especially as the Government must undertake new spending to ensure national security.

CHRISTIANITY A DANGER

DECLARATION IN GERMANY

MORE PASTORS ARRESTED

FRESH DISPLAY OF FORCE EXPECTED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

WHOLESALE arrests in a new drive against the opposition pastors are feared to be impending in Germany. To-day, coinciding with a huge mass meeting of the pagan "German Faith" movement, three more opposition pastors were arrested in Berlin alone.

They are Pastor Harnisch, the Press chief of the opposition pastors; Pastor Praetorius and Pastor Bronisch, the secretary of the chief of the Berlin opposition organisation, Dr. Jacoby.

These three men are accused of having had relations with the foreign Press, and also of having maintained contact between the Protestant opposition pastors and the Catholic Church.

To-day's arrests, along with those which have been taking place in the past ten days in Saxony and other parts of Germany, seem to indicate that the authorities have decided on a fresh display of force as a means of crushing Church opposition.

UNSUCCESSFUL TALKS

The opposition pastors had planned a Synod meeting for next week. They fear that further arrests will prevent this taking place. Discussions which Bishop Mahrarens, the opposition leader, has had with Dr. Frick, Minister of the Interior, appear to have met with no success.

Meanwhile thousands of supporters of the "German Faith" movement, whose battle cry is, "For there is only one holy land—Germany," crowded into the Sports Palace, the Olympia of Berlin, to hear speeches to-night by Professor William Hauer and Count von Reventlow, the leaders of the movement, which now claims a million members, including many Nazi officials.

Professor Hauer declared: "Christianity has virtue as its ideal, but our ideal is the heroic man. Because Christianity is not the religion of the German people it cannot claim to be the determining power governing the German people. On the contrary, we regard Christianity as a danger to the unity of the people."

HECKLERS

To-night's meeting was rudely interrupted by a clash between hecklers and others in the audience. Count Reventlow had been speaking for about three-quarters of an hour in the overcrowded hall, when suddenly remarks were hurled at him from the gallery.

There was a general stir, heads turned, and within a few minutes men in semi-civilian clothes, apparently "Black Guards," were rushing up and attacking the hecklers.

Count Reventlow could be heard shouting: "Don't let us be disturbed by these hecklers." But the remainder of his words were drowned in the general uproar and confusion.

Finally police rushed through the crowd, grasped the victims, and half-carried, half-dragged, them off, together with some of their assailants.

FALL OVER PRECIPICE

DRIVER IN MOROCCO MOTOR RALLY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GIBRALTAR, Friday.

A motor car driven by Miss Labouchere, who was competing in the Morocco rally, with her cousin, Mr. John Everett, as passenger, left the road near Marbella, Spain, this morning and fell over a precipice. Both Miss Labouchere and Mr. Everett were injured, the latter much more seriously than the former.

They were brought by Lady Scott, who was motoring to Gibraltar from Malaga, to the Bristol Hotel, but it was found necessary to take Mr. Everett to hospital, as he was found to be suffering from multiple injuries. No one has yet been allowed to see him.

ANOTHER FREE STATE SUCCESS

CAPTAIN AHERN AT VILLEFRANCE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

VILLEFRANCHE, Friday.

His mount was Blarney Castle, who covered the course in 45 seconds. Captain Ahern made eight faults and lost eight points.

Five competitors finished equal at the end of the first course and a second had to be ridden. Captain Ahern did the best time, and won the prize of 2,000 francs (about £27).

Lieutenant Leonard, on Owen Roe, finished 14th.

JUBILEE TRUST FUND

RUGBY UNION'S GIFT

The London Football Association have made a donation of 100 guineas to the Trust Fund.

EXPORT TRADE WITH U.S.A.

ADVERTISING AND DISPLAY NEEDED

LORD MAYOR ON ITS POTENTIAL VALUE

INTRODUCING the Lord Mayor of Dublin to a special meeting of the Council of the Federation of Saorstat Industries at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, yesterday, the President, Mr. Joseph Milroy, thanked Alderman Byrne for his efforts to foster Irish trade in the United States.

Ireland gave big orders to America, but got very little in return, and he assured the Lord Mayor that any suggestions he made for the promotion of Irish export trade to the United States would be carefully considered by the Council.

Mr. D. McCullagh also welcomed Alderman Byrne, and spoke of the inevitable smallness of industries in this country, and wondered if the Lord Mayor had any suggestions to make regarding this.

A comment that the American business men were "the hardest nuts to crack" was made by Mr. F. H. O'Donnell, who spoke of the difficulties which Irish exporters to the United States had encountered.

After congratulating the representatives of the Free State on the progress they had made in the home market, the Lord Mayor described his experiences concerning Irish trade in the United States.

A SPLENDID CASE

President Roosevelt had power to make alterations in tariffs to compensate the trade for reciprocal purposes, and all the Senators and Congressmen to whom the Lord Mayor had spoken agreed that there was a splendid case for special terms for Ireland. One Mayor had commented that the Free State was asking for a "fair swipe," and he would do all in his power to see that special terms were given to Ireland up to the £2,000,000, which is the annual value of Irish imports from the United States, and after that he thought a dollar-for-dollar agreement would be possible.

A leading business man in the United States also told the Lord Mayor that the Irish goods were of the best type, but the Irish manufacturers did not know how to display them. He spoke of the importance of good packing, and added that both Al Smith and Grosvenor Whelan, of Wanamaker's, commented on the need for putting goods up in a neat way for window displays.

PIG-PRODUCERS AND NEW BILL

PROPOSAL FOR ITS AMENDMENT

At a joint meeting of the Standing Committee of the National Agricultural Association and the Saorstat Pig Breeders' and Feeders' Association in Dublin, Mr. P. Belton, T.D., presiding, it was decided to put in amendments to the Pigs and Bacon Bill to provide for the setting-up of a single Marketing Board instead of two, as proposed in the bill. This Board would be representative of pig producers, and have a chairman nominated by the Minister for Agriculture. It would be divided into two sub-committees with different functions.

It was also agreed that if the Minister would not accept the principle of the amendment he should be requested to withdraw the bill, otherwise it would be the duty of every farmer deputy, without distinction of party, to vote against it.

Views were expressed at the meeting that the bill was a bacon curers' bill, and that the pig producers were not properly safeguarded by it. There was some opposition to the bill on the grounds of its cost and of the monopoly it would create, and the meeting agreed that minor curers had no grievance, as they were being given two years in which to qualify as such, and they would find the market value of their business increased by the monopoly. The question of compensation would, therefore, not arise.

THE MONKSTOWN HOSPITAL

MR. SETON PRINGLE'S ADDRESS

OUTLOOK FOR SMALL INSTITUTIONS

"I WANT you to believe that the Hospitals' Commission are making an honest effort to solve the trouble of the hospital administration of the Free State," said Mr. Seton Pringle, President of the Royal College of Surgeons, who presided at the annual meeting of the Monkstown Hospital, which was held in the Salthill Hotel, Monkstown, yesterday evening.

Mr. Pringle said that the Monkstown Hospital had an excellent staff—a really good team of doctors and nurses. It was a happy hospital, which meant that it had an efficient matron.

He congratulated the hospital on its pension fund for nurses. He knew of no other hospital in the city that had such a fund, but he felt strongly that not only hospitals, but all institution, should create pension funds for their staffs.

SMALLER HOSPITALS

It was hard to prophesy what was going to happen to the smaller hospitals. He was sure that the Hospitals' Commission would put up a scheme or various schemes. Those schemes might, or might not, be acceptable, but he wanted them to believe that from personal experience of the Commission he could say that they were making a really honest and hard effort to solve the difficulties of the hospital administration of the whole of Ireland.

The report, which was read by Mr. R. C. Davidson, hon. secretary, stated that the number of patients treated during the year was 490. There were 471 discharged cured or relieved, while eight had died. In the dispensary 938 patients had been treated, the total attendances at the dispensary being 2,549.

SUBSCRIPTIONS DOWN

The Committee regretted to report that the subscriptions and donations had shown a steady decrease for the past few years, and reached only a total of £309 3s. for the year 1934. No detailed scheme for the permanent endowment of the hospital or for structural alterations yet had been sanctioned by the Hospitals' Commission.

The Committee appealed for a greater measure of support, for, even with the payments from the sweepstakes, voluntary contributions still would be required to keep the hospital efficient and up-to-date.

MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE

Dr. R. C. de Courcy Wheeler proposed that the report and statement of accounts be adopted, and that the Committee of Management for 1935-36 consist of the trustees and of the following:—Mr. L. E. Steele, M.A.; Mr. H. Dudgeon, Mr. William Tatlow, M.A.; the Rev. Canon Chamberlain, B.D.; Major W. Kinsman, D.S.O., O.B.E.; Mr. F. M. Bentley, M.A.; Mr. H. H. Newton, Mr. H. P. Mayne, the Rev. Harold G. Forde, M.A.; Mr. J. F. Boydell, Mr. W. Y. Harrel, C.B.; Mr. E. Gayner Goodbody, M.A.; Mr. M. Weatherill, Mr. Louis Bewley, Mr. H. M. Hall, and Mr. C. T. Stewart.

The resolution was seconded by Dr. V. Dowse, and passed with acclamation.

Mr. L. E. Steele, M.A., proposed, and Mr. H. Dudgeon seconded, a motion of thanks to the honorary collectors, the secretary, voluntary workers, and the staff.

Dr. R. C. Peacocke, who replied on behalf of the staff, proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

CAR COLLIDES WITH TRAIN

ONE KILLED AND THREE INJURED

One man was killed and three persons were injured last night when a saloon car crashed into a Sheppey Light Railway train at the level crossing in Station road, Minster, Isle of Sheppey, Kent.

The dead man was Mr. Frank Mogni, an insurance agent, of Leysdown, Sheppey.

The injured are Mrs. P. Marshall, of Chequer Stores, Eastchurch, who was driving the car, and who was removed to hospital in a critical condition; Mr. Marshall, her husband, who was badly injured, and Mrs. Kate Harup, of Waterloo terrace, Eastchurch, who was also removed to hospital.

"ACTUALLY STARVING"

RATE DEFAULTERS' POSITION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNIS, Friday.

Before District Justice Gleeson, at Ennis District Court to-day, John Clune, Ballymarkham, Quin, who was sued for non-payment of £10 14s. 10d. rates, said that he and his eight in family were actually starving. He had a loan of a cow from a neighbour for some time, but even that had now gone back. He had not eaten a bit of meat for the past two years, and his children had to walk to school every morning after eating dry bread at their breakfast.

The rate collector said that there was no doubt about it, the defendant was actually starving.

Justice—Is their non-payment of rates due to the badness of the times?

Collector—Yes, the price of cattle being reduced to a couple of pounds has hit them very hard. They had only young cattle and had to sell them to feed their children. They had no money then to replace the stock.

The Justice said that he had to give decrees, but, of course, in cases where there was nothing to seize the Sheriff would make a return of "no goods."

DUBLIN'S DAY AT SLIGO FEIS CEOIL

SERIES OF SUCCESSES

CONNACHT CUP AND SARTO MEDAL

FROM OUR REPORTER.

SLIGO, Friday.

THE Sligo Feis Ceoil entered upon its last stages to-day with a very full programme. In the morning session there were some further honours carried off by Dublin entrants, both the Bass solo singing and the Intermediate Violin classes being won by Dublin competitors.

A feature of the Feis was the pianoforte accompaniment of the official accompanist, Miss Dorothy Stokes.

Intermediate Violin Solo—Tests: (a) Prelude and Bourree (Nos. 1 and 4 from Suite of pieces) (Somervell), (b) Piece at sight. There were nine entries—1, Mr. E. J. Byrne, 27 North Clarence street, North Strand, Dublin (193); 2, Hetty Wall, Collooney, Sligo (186); 3, Seumas Rossiter, Bridge street, Sligo (185); highly commended, Sean Horan, Lougnagall N.S., Sligo (182), and Miss Carmel Flannery, Ursuline Convent, Sligo (181).

Sir R. Terry once again commented on the standard of the violin playing. In this class, although there was faulty intonation the technique of bowing, fingering and holding of the instrument was all on the right lines, showing that the teaching was sound. The first prize-winner had a fine resonant tone and much beauty in the way of expression in the test piece. The rhythm and phrasing showed genuine musical temperament.

In this class too, Mr. Clandillon said, the standard was pleasingly high.

GOOD SINGING

There was some splendid singing in the competitions for the Connacht Challenge Cup and the Sarto Memorial Medal for plainsong, both event bringing four entries. The standard of the singing showed steady improvement.

Dr. Thiman said that in cup competitions adjudicators expected artistic feeling by competitors. In this class, as in most of the other classes he had heard, while the notes were played correctly, there was not much evidence of the fact that the competitors grasped the underlying music.

BELFAST SHOOTING CHARGE

ACCUSED MAN RETURNED FOR TRIAL

In the Belfast Custody Court yesterday David Alexander English, a young labourer, of North Thomas street, was returned for trial at the Commission, charged with having on April 13 shot at James Madden, a York street publican, with a revolver with intent to murder him. He was further charged, under the Firearms Act, with having in his possession or under his control a revolver and three rounds of ammunition.

James Madden, cross-examined by Mr. L. Y. Tughan, who defended, said he was perfectly certain who it was that fired at him.

Edward Lavery, employed as a barman by James Madden, of York street, said that at about 10.25 p.m. on April 13 he was in company with Mr. Madden when he locked up his premises. He walked along York street towards Earl street with him. When they stepped off the pavement to board a tram a shot rang out from behind them. Two more shots were fired from the same direction. Mr. Madden and witness then jumped on to the tramcar and got off and reported the matter at York Street Barracks.

After further evidence the accused man was returned for trial. Mr. P. J. O'Donoghue, R.M., said he would reconsider the question of bail at a later date.

DUN LAOGHAIRE'S NEW RATES

DUBLIN COUNCIL'S DEMAND

DEPUTATION TO WAIT ON MINISTER

ALTHOUGH Dun Laoghaire's "town rate" has been reduced by one penny in the £ this year, the increased demand by the Dublin County Council (£29,254 14s. 10d. more than the £43,682 2s. 11d. paid last year) means a "poor rate" 3s. 4d. in the £ more than in 1934-35.

The position created by the new demand was considered at a special meeting of the Dun Laoghaire Corporation last night. The summary of the "poor rate" charges, representing a rate of 10s. 2d. over the whole Borough, is as follows:—

Dublin County Council demand..	£72,936 17 9
Unemployment assistance contribution	14,236 16 5
Apportionment preparation	1,400 0 0

These figures would mean a consolidated municipal rate of 18s. in the £ in the Killiney and Ballybrack area, and 19s. 6d. in the £ in the remainder of the Borough.

After referring to the seriousness of the new position, the Chairman (Senator E. J. Duggan) asked for suggestions to deal with it.

UNEMPLOYMENT FUND

Many people in the Borough would be unable to pay the new rate, declared Mr. J. P. Cabe, who proposed that a deputation should be appointed to discuss the situation with the Minister for Local Government and Public Health. He suggested that the demand for a contribution to the unemployment fund was unfair, and the central government had transferred its responsibilities to the local authorities.

The increase in rates was a national question, in the opinion of Mr. T. Morgan Good, who considered that Dun Laoghaire was now supporting many people who had come from the country to look for work.

LOCAL LABOUR

Protests that the Corporation was forced to give its contracts to firms outside the district while local skilled tradesmen were unemployed and drew home assistance were made by Mr. W. Rollins. In many of the contracts there had been only one or two pounds in the difference. Would it not be far better to employ local labour on the contracts instead of paying them relief, he asked.

The resolution was passed, and the following deputation was appointed to meet the Minister:—Messrs. T. Delaney, W. Rollins and P. Fitzgerald, with Senator E. J. Duggan.

LONGFORD MURDER CHARGE

OLD CIVIC GUARD CAPS

FOUND BY HERD ON ROADSIDE

A GOOD deal of the taking of evidence in the Longford murder charge yesterday was occupied with the taking of statements regarding two cast-off Civic Guard caps and an old Civic Guard waterproof.

These articles are alleged to have been used by the raiders as a disguise at Lisard House, Edgeworthstown, on the night of February 9, when Mr. Richard More O'Ferrall was fatally wounded and his father, Mr. Gerald More O'Ferrall, seriously wounded and beaten.

Seven men are charged with the murder. They are—William Mulligan, Ward's terrace, Longford; John Shanley, Dromod, Leitrim, and two brothers, James Reynolds and John Reynolds, of Currycramp, Dromod.

These four, with Hugh Devine, Edgeworthstown; Michael Ferguson, Longford, and Michael Kelly, stated to be of Gardiner's place, Dublin, are also charged with conspiracy in connection with the matter.

FOUND ON ROAD

Thomas Neylon, Whitehill, Edgeworthstown, a herd employed by Miss Wilson Slator, deposed that he was going to work at about half-past seven o'clock on Monday, 11th February. He found on the edge of the road about 200 yards from his house, two caps and a coat.

Mr. Maguire, K.C.—What kind of caps were they?—They were like "peeler's" caps. (Laughter.)

Mr. Maguire—I thought we had forgotten Sir Robert Peel. (Laughter.)

Mr. Richard Tuske, commercial traveller, deposed that he spends the week-ends at home with his father in Tromount, Edgeworthstown. At 7.30 on the night of 9th February he met Hugh Devine (prisoner) in Main street, Longford. He told Devine if he was going home to Edgeworthstown he could give him a lift. Devine said he was not going home for some time; that he was down getting raffle tickets printed, and they would not be finished until about 9 o'clock. They had a drink in Molloys and witness told Devine he was going that night to Higgins' to have a game of cards.

CAR'S LIGHTS

Witness was afterwards at the rectory. As he was passing Bracklin Cross on his way home he saw the lights of a car coming from the Lisard road. Witness lives at one of the Lisard gates Firmount gate, and he arrived there at about 9.30. He did not go out again any more that night.

Next morning he was speaking to Guard McMorrow on the road when Miss Slator's maid, a Miss Reynolds, spoke to the Guard. Witness went over on the Whitehill road, where, on the left, about 200 yards from Neilan's house, he found two caps, a coat and a large sheet of brown paper.

He handed the three articles over to Guard McMorrow with whom was Detective Carr.

BANDMASTER'S EVIDENCE

William Adair, motor mechanic, Longford, deposed that he had charge of the Longford St. Patrick's Drum and Fife Band up to lately and was bandmaster. The two discarded Guards' caps identified by the previous witness were similar to the caps worn by members of the band. He knew one of the caps, No. 7177.

"That was the cap I used to wear myself as a member of the band," said witness. "There is a bit of paper on the inside, now partly torn off, on which my name had been written."

The witness said he had last seen the cap when attending with the band at the unveiling of a memorial in Drumlish in September or October last.

The caps were kept in a box in a store at his garage on Main street, in which the drum and other instruments were kept. He had not given anybody any authority to remove the caps. On Sunday, 10th February, he found the three caps missing, but their covers were there.

After further evidence, the accused men were remanded until Tuesday.

WHY THE KING IS POPULAR

EARL OF DERBY'S TRIBUTE

"HE HAS TRIED TO BE ONE OF OURSELVES"

"WHAT has endeared the King to this country is not only the way in which he has ruled; it is the feeling that he has tried to be one of ourselves, that he is as loyal to us as we want to be loyal to him." The Earl of Derby made this statement in the course of his speech at the Manchester Luncheon Club yesterday.

In loyalty to a King, Lord Derby said, there were two shades—loyalty to the Crown, as an established part of the Constitution, and loyalty to the man who wore the Crown. It was only when they got that combination of loyalty to the Crown and to the man who wore it that they could say that there was real loyalty.

Speaking of Queen Victoria he said that there was no doubt she was a wonderful old lady, but she was very terrifying. When I came back with Lord Roberts from the South African War we were stopped on the troopship. He took me up to be presented to her. I was the last person presented. That was on January 6, and she was dead a fortnight later. I can see her there now in a room—a little figure in black, standing up, and with a colour in her face that one felt must mean death, and yet with a clear voice speaking to each of us as we came up. I honestly confess I was never so terrified in my life.

KING EDWARD

Then came King Edward, and I always feel that nobody had a more raw deal than he had. For the greater portion of his life he bore all the burden of all the work of sovereignty without having the power that went with it. He was never able, therefore, during that time to really have his fair share of the credit of keeping up the prestige of Britain. But when he did come to the throne, in that all too short time he lived, I think he showed by his wisdom, by his conduct and by his knowledge of mankind that he was a worthy successor to his mother on the throne of this country.

Recalling the manner in which the country showed its loyalty to the King on Armistice Day, Lord Derby said that that was love for the man who had been through all with his troops, who had shared their sorrows, and who, by doing so and taking his part, had secured for all time the respect and devotion and admiration of those amongst whom he lived and over whom he ruled.

GREAT IRISH FRANCISCAN PILGRIMAGE TO LOURDES

The Cunard White Star Liner R.M.S. "LAURENTIC" (18,000 tons), which has been again chartered for the Franciscan Pilgrimage to Lourdes, September 7th, 1935.

The Great venture of last year when, for the first time, a transatlantic liner was chartered to bring Irish Pilgrims to Lourdes proved to be an unqualified success.

All those who had the privilege of taking part in the Pilgrimage agree that the ideal way of travelling to the Holy Shrine is by sea. The fact that 60% of last year's Pilgrims have already booked is sufficient proof of its marvellous success.

The advantages of the sea route are many:—

(1) There is only one change between Dublin and Lourdes—viz., Le Verdon—the port of Bordeaux.

The liner is met at landing stage by the electrically-driven Express, which takes only 6 hours to complete the journey to Lourdes.

(2) From the devotional standpoint there is nothing left to be desired.

(a) There will be an uninterrupted service of devotion. Ample facilities will be afforded to Priests for the celebration of Holy Mass.

(b) An Oratory will have the BLESSED SACRAMENT permanently reserved.

(c) High Mass will be celebrated each day, and the EUCHARISTIC Holy Hour, with Solemn Benediction, will be held each evening.

Five complete days will be spent at Lourdes.

The fares are the most reasonable for a Pilgrimage of its kind, and, despite the low fares, the standard in every department, both on the liner and at Lourdes, is the highest.

The best hotels only have been secured at Lourdes, which include the Moderne, Gallia, De la Grotte, Chapelle, Ambassadors, Metropole, Imperial, Heins, Joan of Arc, Belle Vue, etc.

Owing to the heavy Booking, even at this early stage, the Committee has been compelled to arrange for a second trip of the liner. The following is the schedule for both journeys:—

The first Pilgrimage leaves Dublin, September 7th, 1935, and arrives back in Dublin on September 16th.

The second Pilgrimage leaves Dublin, September 11th, 1935, and arrives back in Dublin on September 21st.

Both Pilgrimage parties will enjoy exactly the same privileges.

BIRD'S CUSTARD

NATIONAL TURF CUTTING

In view of the success which attended the first national turf-cutting competition held at Robertstown, Co. Kildare, last year, the public will read with pleasure that it has been decided to hold the competitions again this year, and that the date has been fixed for Saturday, 4th May, the site on this occasion being at Walsh Island, near Portarlington. The events will be under the auspices of the Co-operative Turf Societies, and President de Valera has again promised to be present.

The success which has attended the efforts to bring turf into the homes as a domestic fuel—not only in the country towns, but cities—must arouse in the minds of many of the public unfamiliar with the process, a desire to see for themselves how this commodity is won and converted into the soft burning article, which has brought a "whiff or the country" into so many city homes. The competition at Walsh Island will provide full opportunity to watch the different operations, and see the skill of the "cutter," the "catcher" and the "wheeler," and then the processes of "footing" and "clamping"—all done by people who have become experts. They will also have a chance to see the keen, personal pride these country workers take in their work.

For the city man, granted fine weather, there is nothing so bracing or novel as a day spent in the Bog of Allen, that great expansive tract of bog extending over a large tract of the Midlands.

The competitions themselves are wonderfully interesting, but there are other attractions to make the day enjoyable. Starting at 3 o'clock, summertime, the contests go on till half-past five, and to enliven the proceedings there will be an Aesidheacht, to be followed later by a Ceilidhe at Clonbullogue Parish Hall. During the afternoon music will be played by the Army and Garda Bands.

For the convenience of visitors from Dublin omnibuses will leave Aston's quay from 11.45 a.m. onwards, the return fare being five shillings. Intermediate routes are also being arranged, and the I.O.C. will make arrangements for parties desiring to make the journey from local towns.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

GAY ADVENTURE'S WIN

Bachelor's Bard Scores Easily from a Big Field

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT,

SANDOWN, Friday.

IF it was still cold, the weather kept fine for the opening day of the meeting here, but the going was on the heavy side. There was some interesting racing, even though the three-year-olds in the Tudor Stakes were well below the first rank.

A favourite was found in Mr. Loel Guinness's Woodstock, a handsome son of Blenheim, bred at Mr. Benjamin Guinness's stud in Normandy; but after he had flattered after turning into the straight when he had a clear run he could make no further improvement.

There were the usual changes in running that we see in fields of backward three-year-old. Copia, Wood Pulp, Appenine, and Peaceful Walter settled down in front, and the last-named was just in the lead after they turned into the straight, but dropped out soon.

Still Anyone's Race

At the distance Wood Pulp was still holding on, and it was still anyone's race. When Carslake, who had to change his position more than once, brought Gay Adventure, however, he soon settled them, and was an easy winner from Wood Pulp, who stayed on better than most of them.

Assignation came through late, to get third. Tiderace was fourth, and ran a good deal better than the penalised one, Cyrus.

Gay Adventure, who is by Gay Crusader out of Orby Lass, was bred by Lord Beaverbrook, who, when he retired from racing, made a present of him to Lord Castlerosse, for whom he ran second a few times before he sold him to Mr. Edward Robson, who kept him in the stable of Walter Nightingall. Gay Adventure was Carslake's first winning ride of the season.

A Spreadeagled Field

Four two-year-olds—Tetrazone, Desert Night, the Glenaffric gelding, and George Here—had put up shattering performances in their races, and they were joined by another to-day, Bachelor's Bard, a gelding by Bard of Avon out of Bachelor's Darling, trained by Ted Gwilt, who spread-eagled a field of seventeen others in the Cobham Maiden Plate, which he won by four lengths from The Grove, the judge being most conservative in his estimate of the distance, for there seemed to be a field between him and the others.

They had only gone two furlongs when The Grove was in front. When he began to draw away none of the others had a chance with him. He is a fine-actioned colt, who only cost Gwilt 110 guineas at the Dublin Sales. The Grove was a 25 to 1 chance, while Fred Darling's other runner, Courtship, who belongs to Lord Glanely, was favourite.

Another Grey Winner

Another grey horse, Lord Portman's five-year-old horse, The Font, was an easy winner of the Twickenham Handicap, for which he started favourite. Palmeira came into the straight in front, but two furlongs from home The Font began to draw away, and was always beating Litigation.

Prize Law and Potiphar ran a dead-heat for third place. Potiphar came from nowhere to force himself into the small money for this place. Kirk Royal, who has recently come from Ireland to Mr. Persse's stable, was given his first race in England, but was never dangerous.

Miss Elegance, who was a good deal fancied for the Athlone Handicap, found one just too good for her in Subrosa, a filly by Sir Cosmo, trained by Walters for Mrs. Barlow, one of the late Sir Richard Barlow's daughters.

Speed Retained

She had showed fine speed in several races last year, and has retained it; for she was a clever winner here. Whin was one of the first to strike the gate, but Morstone was in front at half-way, after which he lost his place. Whin ran on to finish third.

Grey horses were not so much in the judge's eye as they had been yesterday at Epsom, but a grey mare, Tom Leader's Doreen Jane, won the opening selling race. She had been running consistently well over hurdles all the season, and was a comfortable winner here from Lumiar and Knight of Lorn.

It is a curious thing that platers trained by Ted Gwilt this season have been running contrariwise. The fancied ones have been finding another just too good for them, and the ones that have started at long prices have been winning.

Started at 20 to 1

The gelding by Somme Kiss out of Goosie from the stable started at 20 to 1 before he won the Juvenile Plate by a length and a half and three-parts from the gelding by Poor Man out of Casilda and Cricket. It was Cricket that just ran the winner's stable companion, Glistening Armour gelding, out of a race at Newbury.

Sir Delves Broughton's filly, who was a 3 to 1 chance now, was in front of Habnab at half-way, but the Goosie gelding was going better anything and was an easy winner. Lord Nunburnholme took such a liking to him that he bought him for 630 guineas.

Selections

There will be a big field to-morrow for the Esher Cup, a similar race to the Tudor Stakes as regards the class of horse engaged, but a handicap. The Leicester winner, Pashley, has a 10lb. penalty, but still has only 7st. 3lb. to carry. He may run well as he was an easy winner at Leicester after his good second at Lingfield to Felswood. The best, however, may be Technocracy, whom I saw running very well in the Free Handicap when he was not thought to be anything like ready.

Of the unknowns in the Sandown Park Stud Produce Stakes the best accounts are of one of the Aga Khan's, PRINCE ALY, who has been well galloped by Frank Butters.

There are two penalised ones in the Guildford Handicap—Apple Peel, the easy winner of the Queen's Prize, and Kyles of Bute, a winner on the first day of the Kempton meeting, while Spring Morning and Brush and Comb are also winners this season. John James ran so badly in the Queen's Prize that I fear he is unreliable.

Although Kyles of Bute only won narrowly he had lost several lengths at the post, so his performance was better that it looks. I think APPLE PEEL is a much improved horse, who won on Monday with a lot in hand, and he should certainly finish in the first three. Only in his absence would I choose Kyles of Bute

At Stockton the Stockton Spring Handicap may be won by LAOS, who took a hurdle race the other day at Manchester; and the Fairfield Plate by OBLITERATE.

GALTEE MORE.

TECHNOCRACY'S TEST

Prince Aly May Carry Off the Produce Stakes

THE field for the Esher Cup at Sandown Park to-day will be below the average as regards class, yet the handicapper has done his work so well that it presents one of the most open problems of the week. The Jesuit, Technocracy, Ankaret and Eton Blue all contested the Free Handicap, in which Technocracy, who was sixth, came out best.

They meet on similar terms, so Technocracy should be well up with the leaders at the judge's end of the race. Cundell's charge probably needed that race to sharpen him up. He was a model of consistency as a juvenile.

A message from Newmarket suggests that Eton Blue is expected to step up on the Free Handicap form, and I recall that there was good support for him. Willowmead appears to have a nice chance at the weights. He won three of his five races last season, and was runner-up in another. Tract finished his first season with a couple of victories, at Haydock Park and Wolverhampton. I understand that the improvement has been well maintained.

Pashley and Watchdog were first and third, respectively, at Leicester last week. With his 10lb. penalty Pashley now has to allow Watchdog 6lb. for three lengths. I think the difference will be sufficient to enable Watchdog to get his revenge.

Among the bottom-weights, West Highland, Miltonic may prove the best of this trio, for Miltonic may prove the best of this trio; for he finished fourth in the mile race won by Sans Pride at Nottingham. My choice is for for he has done really well at home with yesterday's Tudor Stakes third, Assignation.

The Sandown Park Produce Stakes is invariably won by a horse which is making a first appearance. According to reports His Grace, Pizarro and Prince Aly are smart newcomers, who will be hard to beat. Prince Aly, a colt by Tetratema out of Theresina, is said to be one of the best-looking youngsters trained by Frank Butters. Moreover, he is well forward in condition. Crock Gold filly is the pick of those who have had public experience. I am not certain that she runs, so I take my chance with

PRINCE ALY.

The runaway Queen's Prize winner, Apple Peel, is due to carry his 10lb. penalty in the Guildford Handicap. I think he will find the weight too much. Spring Morning is at the top of her form, and well fancied to repeat last year's victory. I shall recommend who ran extremely well under a 10lb. penalty at Newmarket. He was an easy winner first time out this season over a mile and three-quarters at Liverpool.

Nil Nisi (2.30), Light o' Love (3.0), and Jonker (4.0) are fancied Newmarket runners at Stockton. JONKER appears to represent the safest bet at the meeting. Another attractive proposition is GREY EYES in the Carlton Plate. This Irish filly was none too lucky last time out.

NAAS PROGRAMME

TWO VALUABLE RACES

Irish Fun and Step Aside Lord Fancied for Chief Events

Train—Kingsbridge, 2 o'clock.

THE programme for Naas this afternoon includes two very valuable races which should provide excellent contests. The Dublin Maiden Hurdle Race, which is endowed with 200 sovs. in prize money, will bring into opposition such promising timber jumpers as Irish Fun, Mariegoulde, Hoar Abbey, Ahanesk, Wrangoo and O Toro San. Irish Fun, who won the King's Plate at the Curragh on Thursday, is nearly certain to be favourite, but she has to concede 31lbs. to the useful four years old, Wrangoo, who, as well as winning a long distance flat race from a big field over this course last November, won a hurdle race there last month. It looks to be a match between the two named, and Irish Fun may be the better to stand on.

Twelve runners have been declared for the Champion Steeplechase, including Step Aside Lord, who, at the last meeting at this course, finished fourth behind High Tenor, Lightfoot and Pride of Munster, to each of whom he was conceding weight. Lightfoot is also in to-day's race, but Step Aside Lord now has a pull of 14lb. in the weights, and if he jumps as he did on the previous occasion he will take a lot of beating. Selections:—

Dublin Hurdle—Irish Fun.
Kingsfurze Plate—Gipsy Jack.
Champion Steeplechase—Step Aside Lord.
Fishery Plate—Oranone.
Maudlins Plate—Under Bid.
Totalisator Plate—Turn Coat.

Tote Double on Third and Fourth Races.

TOTE DOUBLE.
Step Aside Lord and Oranone.

BIG FIELDS LIKELY AT PUNCHESTOWN

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR NEXT WEEK

Everything points to the annual two days' meeting at Punchestown, which will be held on next Tuesday and Wednesday, living up to its reputation for providing sport of a unique and entertaining character. It is remarkable that no matter what trouble arises this famous old meeting carries on in the grand style year after year. The present trouble in the shape of a tram and 'bus strike happily will not affect the meeting. 'Buses and trains will run as usual, and, with the weather continuing in its present pleasant state, it is safe to anticipate that the usual crowds will flock to the beautifully situated course in the County Kildare.

It looks as if fields on both afternoons will be of exceptional strength. The Prince of Wales's Plate on Tuesday may afford an opportunity to that useful mare, Avondale, to atone for a defeat at Fairyhouse, which most of us believed to be due to the heavy state of the going. The Maiden Plate on the same afternoon is a prize well worth winning, since it is endowed to the extent of 600 sovs., and the race on this occasion bears a very open appearance.

The feature of the second day's racing will be the Conyngham Cup, which, for the first time, is a handicap, and raised to the value of 1,000 sovs. A splendid acceptance has been received, and over the testing journey of four miles the horses engaged will be tried out to the fullest. In recent years fields for this event have not been numerically strong, but we are promised on this occasion the spectacle of some twenty horses or so going round a course the setting of which has no equal anywhere.

TURF CLUB ECONOMIES

Hope of a Better Season after Two Bad Years

The financial meeting of the Turf Club was held at the Registry Office, Dublin, on Tuesday, April 23rd. Present:—Stewards—Major E. Shirley (presiding), Mr. I. J. Blake and Captain G. A. Boyd-Rochfort. Members—The Right Hon. Earl of Fingall, the Right Hon. Lord Talbot de Malahide, Sir Walter Nugent, Sir James Nelson, Lieut.-Colonel S. S. Hill-Dillon, Major D. McCalmont, Major Blennerhassett, Major Conolly, Captain G. F. Dunne, Captain C. Stafford-King-Harman, Messrs. E. Bellaney, A. D. Comyn and H. S. Gill.

Apologies regretting unavoidable absence from the Earl of Granard, the Duke of St. Albans, Colonel Charteris, Major Durham Matthews, Captain C. Moore, the Right Hon. T. K. Laidlaw, Captain Fowler, Mr. W. Barnett, Mr. S. Grehan, Mr. C. L. Mackean and Mr. J. Porter Porter were read.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Major Shirley said: "Before commencing the business of this meeting I wish to propose a vote of sympathy to Mrs. Maher on the death of her husband. By the death of Mr. J. J. Maher we have all lost a very good friend and colleague whose wide knowledge of racing and breeding has always been of the greatest assistance to this Club. Mr. Maher always declined to become a Steward of the Turf Club, but his excellent advice and loyal support was always of the greatest benefit to the Club and he will be very much missed."

Captain Boyd-Rochfort, in seconding the resolution, expressed his deep regret, and said he endorsed every word spoken by Major Shirley.

The motion was passed in silence, and the Keeper of the Match Book was directed to send a copy to Mrs. Maher.

THE ACCOUNTS

Major Shirley then said: "I have now to present to you the Club's accounts for 1934, and as you will have seen by the accounts, of which each member has received a copy, the year's working shows a greater loss than the previous year. We have been through two very bad financial years, and as it is impossible for the Club to go on losing money at the rate it has been doing during the past two years we were reluctantly compelled to reduce the value of the Classic races for 1935, which closed in 1933, and by so doing a saving has been made. We were also compelled to reduce the value of some of the minor races, and by adopting these economies, which appeared to be the only course open to us, I trust the present year's accounts will show an improvement on the accounts for the last two years."

A general discussion took place, and it was proposed by Sir Walter Nugent, and seconded by Captain G. F. Dunne that the accounts be passed.

Major Shirley said: "My period of stewardship has now expired, and I have pleasure in nominating Captain Gerald Dunne as the new Steward." Captain Dunne's appointment as Steward was accepted unanimously.

TRIBUTE TO RETIRING STEWARD

Captain Dunne thanked Major Shirley and the members for the honour conferred upon him and said:—"Although I feel it will be a very hard task to follow such an able Steward as Major Shirley, I will endeavour to do my best in the interests of the Turf Club and of racing."

Sir W. Nugent said he had much pleasure in proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Major Shirley, and he could only repeat the words he used when proposing a vote of thanks to Major Shirley when his Stewardship of the I.N.H.S. Committee terminated—viz.: "I am sure the members all agree with me when I say we have never had a Steward who devoted himself more assiduously to the interest of racing than Major Shirley, and who at all times put his whole heart and soul into the duties of Stewardship."

Captain G. F. Dunne, Mr. E. Bellaney and Mr. H. S. Gill of the outgoing Lands Committee were re-elected.

Sir Walter Nugent, Mr. A. D. Comyn, Major Conolly and Mr. H. S. Gill of the outgoing Rules Committee were re-elected. Lord Fingall was appointed in place of the late Mr. J. J. Maher.

Major D. McCalmont was appointed Trustee in place of the late Mr. J. J. Maher.

Major Shirley submitted a statement of the Jockeys' Accident Fund Account, certified by the Auditors.

The meeting then terminated—Irish Racing Calendar.

I.N.H.S. COMMITTEE

The financial meeting of the I.N.H.S. Committee was held at the Registry Office, Dublin, on Tuesday, April 23rd. Present:—Stewards—The Earl of Fingall (presiding), Mr. A. D. Comyn and Lieutenant-Colonel S. S. Hill-Dillon. Members—Sir Walter Nugent, Sir James Nelson, Colonel G. W. Stacpoole, Major E. Shirley, Captain G. F. Dunne, Major T. G. Gerrard, Messrs. E. Bellaney, P. Dunne Cullinan and T. Levins Moore.

Apologies regretting absence, were received from Sir Thomas Ainsworth, the Right Hon. T. K. Laidlaw, Captain H. de Burgh, Captain R. A. B. Filgate and Mr. E. W. Hope Johnstone. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Lord Fingall said—It is my sad duty to propose a vote of sympathy to Mrs. Maher on the death of her husband. Mr. J. J. Maher's loss to the I.N.H.S. Committee and racing in general will be keenly felt; we all know what a lot he did for steeplechasing and for all racing; he was ever ready to place his knowledge and experience of racing at the disposal of the Committee, and was a good adjudicator. We have lost a very valuable and esteemed member of our Committee.

Mr. A. D. Comyn, in seconding the resolution, expressed his deep sorrow for the great loss the I.N.H.S. Committee had sustained.

The motion was passed in silence, and the Registrar was directed to send a copy to Mrs. Maher.

The accounts for 1934 having been certified as correct by the auditors were submitted in detail by Lord Fingall, and were thoroughly discussed by the members present. Major Shirley proposed and Sir Walter Nugent seconded that the accounts be passed.

The accounts were considered satisfactory and passed.

Mr. T. Levins Moore was appointed Trustee in place of the late Mr. J. J. Maher.

Several other matters were considered and discussed.

The meeting then terminated.—Irish Racing Calendar.

NEWMARKET NOTES

Barling's Horses in a Good Mile Gallop : Hints for To-day

NEWMARKET, Friday.

ONE of the best gallops that took place was that in which Barling's Symptom, Lord Gordon and Lady Worlington were engaged. They were stripped and sent one mile at a striding pace. Symptom is very well and is handicapped with a good winning chance in the Thurlow Handicap at Newmarket next Tuesday.

Voice of Spring was smart out of the slips with Ward End and Marmion in a good five furlongs spin. She figures at the top of the Quorndon Handicap at Derby on Monday. Considering that Marmion was short of a few good gallops, he did well to finish second to Merci at Lingfield, and I may write favourably about him if he is pulled out for the Culford Stakes here next Friday.

Gilpin gave Fairbairn and Verglas a nice-pace gallop over one mile and a quarter. I shall be interested in the running of Fairbairn in the Two Thousand Guineas. He has little chance of winning, but I am of opinion that he is likely to train into a useful colt. Aboukir, Fartuch and Sanquesta had a nice-pace gallop over one mile and a quarter.

Lord Glanely's Two Thousand Guineas candidates, Buckleigh and Screamer, with Buckland and Cresset, galloped sharply five furlongs. To-morrow they will be sent a longer distance.

C. Leader gave Bobsleigh, with Arctic Light and Shining Tor, a sharp five furlongs gallop.

D. Waugh gave Quillon (Simpson) a good pace gallop over one mile and a quarter with Northmore, Shelly, Sewin and Gorget. Quillon moved well and will give a forward display in the Thurlow Handicap here on Tuesday. Lawn Meet had a nice mile and a quarter gallop with Birdcage Walk, St. Oswald and Plantagenet.

Frank Butters gave Bahram, Theft and Powerful Prince useful gallops over six furlongs. They are very well.

At Sandown Park to-morrow we shall be represented in only four of the six events. In the Esher Cup J. Jarvis has Eton Blue in good trim. Leger Day is fit, and while The Jesuit appears to have quite his share of weight he should beat Willowmead. If in good humour Perseverance could win, but I shall rely on who has pleased in his gallops of late. He is sure to prove hard to beat.

Allensford has benefited by his race at our last fixture, and is expected to run well for the Sandown Park Stud Produce Stakes. He should beat Lavery, Asphodel and Pizarro, but my vote goes to the well galloped who won the Queen's Prize on Monday. On that running he should again account for John James.

PRINCE ALY.

The Guildford Handicap may be won by

APPLE PEEL,

Baystar I prefer to Revelation and Petit Bleu for the Marcus Beresford Stakes. He may prove the danger to KINGMAKER.

At Stockton my fancies are:—2.30, Nil Nisi; 3 o'c., Light o' Love; 3.30, Last Roundup; 4 o'c., Jonker (nap); 4.30, Gloriana (next best).

SPORTING GOSSIP

Gloria Mia Purchased

Mr. Botibol's five years old gelding Gloria Mia was offered for sale during an interval of racing at Sandown Park yesterday, and was purchased by his trainer, J. Reardon, for 220 guineas. He is engaged in the Claygate Selling Plate at Sandown Park to-day.

S. Donoghue's Retainer

The first claim for this season on Stephen Donoghue's services is held jointly by Mr. and Mrs. Corlette Glorney.

London Betting

The card on the Two Thousand Guineas will be called-over at the Victoria Club on Monday at 12.30 and at 7.15 p.m. on Tuesday.

Injured Jockey's Condition

There is no improvement in the condition of R. Lyall, the jockey, who is partially paralysed as the result of a serious smash at Brocklesby Steeplechases three weeks ago.

Grey Horses to the Fore

A remarkable feature of current racing is the unusual run of nine successes registered by grey horses in the last two days. At Epsom on Thursday four greys were successful—Flanagan, in the Banstead Selling Plate; The Old Pretender, in the King's Prize; Pampas Grass, in the Nonsuch Plate; and Crosspatch in the Westminster Stakes; and at Pontefract on the same day The Tatler, also a grey, won the Carleton Handicap. At Sandown Park yesterday Doreen Jane, winner of the Long-Distance Selling Handicap, and The Font, winner of the Twickenham Handicap, are both greys; while at Stockton two greys were successful—Borrow, in the Hartburn Handicap, and Carminowe, in the South Durham Plate.

Arrangements with Jockey

Mr. Maxwell Arnott will have first claim on the services of Joe Canty during the season.

GAELIC GAMES

THE HURLING LEAGUE

Important Games Down for Decision To-morrow

(BY PAT'O.)

Whatever prospects St. Joseph's had of defeating Garda in the Dublin Senior Championship, they are weakened in the absence of R. Beggs, who has gone to Galway and applied for transfer. St. Joseph's always gave Garda a good game, for their styles are different. Garda depend on long, accurate kicking and straight shooting; St. Joseph's play a skilful ground game, with short, effective passing before goal. Garda have had little leisure for training in recent weeks, yet their individual strength must pull them through. In their last dozen games they always had a few scores in hand, and I look to them to pass into the next round.

Keenest interest is centred in to-morrow's round of hurling league games, with Kilkenny and Limerick offered severe tests from Tipperary and Dublin respectively. Neither side can afford the loss of a point. Kilkenny are as much at home in Carrick-on-Suir as Tipperary. The Mooncoin and Carrickshock clubs have not many miles to travel, whilst the Nenagh and Boherlahan members of the Tipperary side are as far from Carrick as are Tullaroan and Dixboro. With Tipperary's improved showing on April 14th at Cork, the league leaders will take no risks, and I learn that their full championship team will be on the field.

DUBLIN'S CHANCE

Kilkenny should win well in the last quarter, but Dublin may run Limerick very close at Croom, should O'Riordan, McCormack and Flanagan fit into last year's clever championship side. Dublin, at their best, will always extend Limerick, and the Croom pitch will suit the visitors at present, for the Dublin hurlers play best on a fast surface.

In conversation with the Limerick representatives at the Easter Congress, I learnt that they consider the Croom game a useful test for the major struggle against Kilkenny on May 12. Limerick's front line still gives trouble to the selectors; the old weakness of erratic shooting perseveres, despite many lessons. They may try out a few new men to-morrow, with a view to a steadier attack at Nowlan Park.

GALWAY PREPARING

Waterford and Laoighis are at the foot of the league, but the home side should win to-morrow, on their showing against Kilkenny. Galway are making due preparation for the Cork hurlers' visit. They will be fighting for third place in the league, and seem to me to be well matched. Galway have half-a-dozen newcomers of promise, whilst Cork will be minus the useful Blackrock pair—Garrett and Quirke—whose club is engaged in an important senior championship match at home. So wide is Cork's selection that good substitutes are available, and they should capture another brace of points.

The 1934-'35 Hurling League has brought the best gates and closest hurling since the competition started. Kilkenny and Limerick are on top because they opened well. Had Cork been more ready a closer wind-up would have been assured. I think there is little danger that Kilkenny and Limerick will be defeated before they meet.

KILKENNY'S BIG DAY

Mr. Liam Coady, the Kilkenny Secretary, tells me that extensive preparation is being made for the big Limerick game at Nowlan Park. The pitch is being rolled and trimmed, stand and sideline accommodation is doubled, and a new entrance is being opened at the railway side for reserved seats. Should the champions of 1933 and 1934, respectively, remain unbeaten May 12 will be the biggest day in Kilkenny City for many years. Organising committees are arranging catering, and special trains and 'bus services will run from many centres. A draw would make Kilkenny league champions, and there are suggestions of a hurling shinty challenge between the league winners and Kyles Athletic, the Scottish Camanachd Cup holders.

Dublin's hurling championship will occupy attention immediately, with Civil Service and Faughs engaged on May 5, whilst U.C.D., last year's dual winners, are in strict training. Army Metro and Young Irelands hold strong hands. The competition is open, and Faughs may possibly go on to meet Army Metro in the final, for neither U.C.D. or Young Irelands strike me as being so strong as in 1934. O'Toole's and Garda are favourites for the football title, with odds on Garda holding their unbeaten record.

EASTER MEETING AT LAHINCH

D. M. SEXTON BEATEN IN CUP FINAL

The Easter competitions, held in inclement weather, concluded at Lahinch on Wednesday. Excellent entries were received for all the events, and but for the conditions on the last day the meeting would have been a signal success. There was a surprise in the final for the President's Cup, in which D. Torrens, of Ennis, defeated D. M. Sexton, of the home club, at the twenty-second. ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

JOINT LEADERS TO MEET

INTERESTING POSITION IN CITY CUP

THE Dublin City Cup is in a very interesting position at the moment, for with two matches more to be played Dolphin and Waterford are joint leaders. Drumcondra are two points behind them, and St. James's Gate, Sligo Rovers and Shamrock Rovers are a further point behind. In the only match to-day Bohemians and Shamrock Rovers meet at Dalymount, and, despite the greatly improved form of Rovers, it is doubtful if they will be capable of capturing both points. If they are to keep in the running this will be necessary. Bohemians make two changes, Dwyer coming on at left-wing and Ronan at left full-back.

The big match of the competition takes place to-morrow, when Waterford entertain Dolphin. By winning at Dundalk and Sligo, Waterford brought off a remarkable double last week-end, and they are playing splendid football, their defence proving very sound, and the forwards capable of snapping up chances. Dolphin, too, are hard to score against, and their forwards showed improved scoring ability last Sunday; but Waterford seem likely to win. If they do, the Cup should be theirs.

Drumcondra entertain Dundalk at Tolka Park, and if they can maintain the punch and cleverness in attack they showed recently at Bray they may emerge victorious, and so keep in the running. With their reliable defence and steady half-backs, Dundalk will be difficult to overcome, and this should be a very keen struggle.

With Bermingham back in the defence, St. James's Gate should prove too strong for Cork at Crumlin; for the latter have fallen away a good deal; while Bray Unknowns can have little hope of returning with even a point from Sligo.

Two strong teams, Sheffield Wednesday and West Bromwich Albion, meet in the English Cup final, at Wembley Stadium, this afternoon. Having overcome Arsenal in their path to the final, Wednesday will start favourites, particularly as they are reckoned to be sounder in defence, and this quality is all-important in the electric atmosphere of Wembley. On the other hand, eight of the West Bromwich team which won the trophy four years ago will be playing, and this experience will prove valuable. They have a fast and dangerous forward line, but Wednesday look the more solid lot, and the more likely side to win.

C.U.A.C.O. .... 2 IRISH NATIONAL 0

C.U.A.C.O. won the Dublin Insurance Cup at Claremont road yesterday, when in the final they defeated the holders, Irish National Assurance, by 2 goals to nil. J. C. Williams was the outstanding player on the ground, and at centre half for the winners he initiated many clever attacks, while he often went clean through the National defence on his own. He scored both goals, and each was an excellent effort. The first, midway through the opening half, was scored when he netted with a left-foot drive, and in the second half he went clean through, and left Courteney no chance to save.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN UNCERTAIN

SECOND NATIONAL LOAN STRONG

BRITISH INDUSTRIALS FIRMER

Yesterday being the last day of the three weeks' account on the Dublin Stock Exchange, more active conditions prevailed, due principally to the adjusting of open commitments.

The National Loan eased to 100¼ x.d., but the Second Loan jumped 15s. and New Land Bonds advanced to 105 in a small way.

War Loan was a shade lower at 106 1/16 x.d. and the New Dublin Loan gave way to ⅛ discount.

Banks were easier for choice. Guinness units held steady, but "Scotch" Distillers shaded off.

Great Southern Rails made a mixed showing and Dublin Tram Ord. lost a few pence. Todd Burns Deb. marked a sharp rise of 2s. 6d.

Other local Industrials were very quiet, but held generally steady.

British Industrials claimed a good deal of attention at mostly firmer levels. Courtaulds added several pence, as did B.A.T. Ordinary, but Imperial Tobaccos failed to hold an opening improvement.

Ford Motors advanced to 34s. 3d. and Austin Motors to 49s. 6d. Dunlop Rubbers and Imperial Chemicals also tended higher, while Boots Ordinary moved up to 49s. 3d.

LONDON BRIGHT

INDUSTRIALS ADVANCE

In spite of the fact that a new account commences on Monday, more active conditions developed in certain sections on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and several good features resulted. Outstanding was the further rise in Industrials, which responded to the encouraging annual reports and dividends of prominent companies recently published. In other directions Silver shares continued to advance, while more interest was displayed in Oil shares, and generally a bright tone prevailed.

In the gilt-edged market investment support was again received, and, although profit-taking reduced early gains, several stocks finished fractionally higher. A feature was the dealing in War Loan in ex-interest form, the quotation being 106 1/16, against 108¼ yesterday. An adverse movement was a decline of ½ to 109½ in Irish Free State Land Bonds, while India stocks attracted less attention, and finished easier. Little business was transacted in the Foreign Bond market, and a lower trend resulted.

British Rails were less active, but quite firm. Chief interest was confined to Southern issues, which again finished higher. In the Foreign Rail group Argentine stocks were in demand in early business, but later in the day quieter conditions developed, and final rates were practically unaltered. The recent inquiry for Cordoba Central First Debentures was not maintained, and the stock closed a point higher at 31½. Colonial and American Rails improved on New York advices.

Interest in the Industrial market was stimulated for the reason mentioned above, and there were numerous good rises. Pride of place among them was taken by Tate and Lyle, which rose sharply on the capital bonus announcement, while Ever Ready results were pleasing, as a reduction in profits was feared in some quarters, and in consequence a good rise was recorded. General Electric went ahead on the news of the company's expansion plans, while in other directions Building issues continued to make good progress, and Motor and Aviation issues also improved.

The feature in the Mining groups was a fresh improvement in Silver shares, due to the recent sharp rise in the metal price. Certain "Kaffirs" attracted buyers, and Government Areas reached a new high record, while Union Corporation made good headway, in view of the recent rises in Grootvlei and the two Gedulds. West Africans were steady, and Australian Gold shares slightly better. Revival of rumours of an early advance of the price of petrol in England were partly responsible for a renewal of interest in the Oil share market, while another helpful influence was the Anglo-Egyptian dividend announcement, and most issues made good improvement.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

STRONG FEATURES: TATE AND LYLE PROMINENT

Despite the fact that yesterday was the last day of the account, good support was noticeable for the leading Home Industrial issues, some of the buying being for "new time." This was attributed to the many encouraging dividends and reports published recently. The best showing was made by Tate and Lyle, the capital bonus announcement coming as a pleasant surprise to the market.

Some irregularity developed among the trans-Atlantic counters in the late dealings, when prices generally showed a reactionary tendency.

"Emmies" continued on the quiet side, though closing a few pence harder. Cable and Wireless stocks seemed rather undecided in their movements, and, after being easier at one time, finished steady at around the overnight levels.

EVER READY PROMINENT.

Activity and strength characterised Electrical Equipments. Ever Ready were prominent, rising 2s. to 24s., buying being attributed to satisfaction with the maintenance of the dividend and the increase in profits. Favourable dividend anticipations were responsible for a good demand for General, which rose 2s. to 52s 6d. Crompton Parkinson were again in request, further buying of the shares being accompanied by talk of a possible capital rearrangement scheme. The shares were finally 2s. up at 44s. 6d.

ROLLS-ROYCE STRONG.

Among Aviation and kindred descriptions Rolls-Royce provided a strong feature, good buying following the publication of the report. At the close an improvement of 2s. 1½d. was recorded at 118s. 1½d. De Havillands continued in keen request, and further rose 1s. 4½d. to 60s. 7½d. Motor shares commanded quite a good deal of attention, and higher prices were general.

In the Iron, Coal and Steel group a satisfactory tendency prevailed. There was not a great deal doing among Breweries, and prices moved within narrow limits.

TOBACCOS ATTRACT.

The Tobacco leaders came in for further attention. "Bats" again changed hands freely, and closed the turn higher at 6 1/16. Carreras "A" further improved 1/16 to 8, the "B" shares being 3d. harder at 20s. 3d. Gallahers strengthened to 5 1/16. "Imps" remained around the overnight level.

Interest in the provision and catering section centred around Tate and Lyle, which, as a result of the scrip bonus announcement, went ahead to 110s. at one time, eventually closing 6s. 3d. up on balance at 108s. 6d.

Scribbans and Slaters were inquired for. The Unilever issues ruled quietly steady at former levels.

There was some irregularity among drapery and departmental store issues.

BRIGHT SPOTS.

There was no dearth of bright features in the miscellaneous section. British Portland Cements met with renewed support, and left off finally 1/16 higher at 4¼. British Oxygens came into request on the increased dividend, and closed 2s. to the good at 81s. 6d. Imperial Chemicals held around the previous close. Dunlops returned to favour, and recovered to 44s. 7½d., but Triplex Glass gave way to 67s. Spillers were dull at 61s. 3d., and the Deferred at 48s. 9d., despite the excellent figures, but United Molasses rallied to 19s. 4½d.

OILS CHEERFUL

Oil shares finished the week and the three weeks' account in cheerful fashion, business being of a more active character than for some time. Right from the start business prevailed, and some strong buying, described as of a knowledgeable character, was quickly reflected in the prices of the leading counters. A feature of the day's business was a broadening of interest, several of the more speculative favourites, which have been extremely quiet of late, receiving attention. Accompanying the demand there was a revival of the rumour of the possibility of an advance in the price of petrol in the United Kingdom in the near future.

The Anglo-Egyptian Oilfields dividend caused satisfaction in the market, inasmuch as little surprise would have been created had a slightly lower distribution been made this time in view of the smaller production last year.

RUBBERS QUIET

Business in the Rubber Share Market continued to be of small dimensions, and final rates showed little alteration. United Sua Betong recovered Thursday's loss of 6d., and Pataling, at 32s. 9d., were higher by a similar amount. Adverse movements were unimportant. Steady conditions characterised the commodity section, and spot rubber improved to 5⅜d. per lb. United Kingdom stocks of rubber are estimated to have increased by 500 tons during the past week.

BIRMINGHAM

Prices again buoyant. Fords very active, 34/6. Austins stronger, 50/3; do. New, 48/10½. Hudsons higher, 22/10½. Raleighs 43/9 and Alvis easier, 10/10½. Singers firmer, 8/6. Rovers dull, 14/3. Dunlops better, 44/7½.

LONDON MINING MARKET

ACTIVITY IN SILVER SHA RES: BUSINES IN KAFFIRS MAINLY PROFESSIONAL

The carry-over presented no difficulties in the Mining market, continuation facilities being readily forthcoming. The open account was small, and, as regards "Kaffirs," trading has been mainly of a professional character, with the result that movements on the account are of little importance.

With reference to the day's dealings, there was still a quiet investment demand for some of the leaders, but this was of such modest proportions that prices were not materially affected, as neither the Cape nor Paris seemed inclined to take a hand.

Among the finance descriptions, African and European were prominent, a demand coming on a market but poorly supplied with shares lifting the price substantially. The list, as a whole, presented a firm appearance at the close.

Rhodesians generally claimed little attention, but a feature was provided by Selukwe, which jumped up sharply in sympathy with the continued rise in the price of silver. The De Beers issues, among Diamonds, were easier on profit-taking, and, of the outside Coppers, Rio Tinto and Tharsis receded.

In the almost entire absence of demand, West Africans were inclined to droop. Australians were no exception to the general rule, and most of the leaders left off lower on the day. The barriers, however, moved up in response to the further rise in the price of silver. In this connection the shares of other concerns interested in the production of the metal were well to the front, and the activity in Burmas, El Oro, Mexican Corporation, Trepca and San Francisco constituted the outstanding feature of the whole market. Tin descriptions were without interest, but Indians were harder inclined.

THE MONEY MARKET

SILVER SOARING

Silver shot up by a further 1⅛d. per ounce yesterday as the result of an extraordinary rush to buy. The cash price reached 36¼d. per ounce, the highest since 1922, while the forward quotation soared to 36⅜d. per ounce. So heavy were the orders with which brokers had to cope that the prices were not announced until more than three-quarters of an hour later than usual. Not until 3.30 p.m. did the four big firms of brokers make known the result of their meeting.

At 144s. 9½d. gold was 4½d. per ounce higher. About 155 bars, approximately £477,000 in value, were disposed of at the price, including a premium of 6½d. over the dollar at 4.82 and 10d. over the franc at 73.

In Lombard street yesterday brokers reported a fair demand for money at ½ per cent. Discount rates steady, 9/16 per cent. being quoted for short bills and three months' maturities.

Applications were received at the Bank of England for £35,000,000 Treasury bills. Tenders dated Monday, Tuesday and Saturday of next week at £99 17s. 6d. and above, receive in full. Tenders dated Wednesday to Friday at £99 17s. 5d get about 54 per cent., above in full. The average rate indicated is about 10s. per cent., or practically the same as for last week's bills.

The foreign exchange market was again eclipsed by the wild speculaiton in silver yesterday. Nevertheless the market was by no means inactive, the turnover being heavier than for some time, while fairly wide movements occurred in the principal exchanges. The selling pressure on the pound was maintained. The £ suffered a set-back immediately after the commencement of business, and only showed signs of resistance in the closing dealings. Simultaneously nearly all the European gold currencies were in demand for forward delivery, rates of discount being considerably reduced. The sensational rise in silver prices only affected the Far Eastern section, where wide fluctuations were seen in the rates for Hong Kong and Shanghai dollars, the chief silver currencies. Dealers reported extreme difficulty in arranging transactions.

Horrockses Crewdson's Drastic Plan

A drastic capital reconstruction is proposed by the directors of Horrockses Crewdson and Co., cotton spinners and manufacturers. The scheme provides for the cancellation of the Ordinary shares, which are held by the Amalgamated Cotton Mills Trust, while the Preference shareholders will receive one 6s. 8d. Ordinary for each £1 Preference held. The existing Six per cent. Debentures are to be exchanged for Four per cent. Stock in the proportion of £1 for every £3 held.

Imperial Chemical Financial Plan

The Financial Times understands that several influential Deferred shareholders of Imperial Chemical Industries have met, but were unable, in the short time available, to arrange for a further meeting at which the merits or demerits of the Deferred share scheme could be ventilated. They have decided to oppose the scheme in the Courts in the event of the resolutions being carried.

Royal Mail Rumours

The Financial News understands that reports of the formation of a new company to acquire certain assets of the Royal Mail and Elder Dempster Realisation Companies are premature. While various suggestions for dealing with these assets have been put up to the boards of the respective companies, no definite schemes of the nature suggested are at present under consideration.

Transvaal Gold Progress

The report for the quarter ended March 31 last of Transvaal Gold Mining Estates, a member of the Central Mining-Rand Mines group reveals that milling has commenced at the company's Bourke's Luck Mine. Revenue from this mine amounted to £446, and expenditure to £930, resulting in a loss of £484, equal to 10s. 9d. per ton milled.

Rhokana's Copper Quota

The Rhokana Corporation has officially announced that as a result of the agreement reached at the conference of copper producers, held in New York recently, the production quota allotted to it is 4,800 long tons for May, and for June and thereafter, until altered under the terms of the agreement, 4,200 long tons per month. The directors of the corporation consider the arrangement satisfactory, and express the hope that a stable and remunerative price for copper will result.

U.S. Reconstruction Corporation and Utility Companies

It is reported from Chicago that Mr. Harley L. Clark, a director of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, won the first round of a battle with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the control of his company when the annual stockholders' meeting scheduled for yesterday was postponed until June 26. It is said that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had planned to acquire the management this time, but apparently found it no easy matter. Therefore, the postponement of the meeting was deemed expedient. Financial circles hold the opinion that an agreement will be reached whereby the control of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation will be permitted to remain under the present management, at the same time assuring full payment of its indebtedness to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Crosse and Blackwell

At the general meeting of Crosse and Blackwell, Ltd., yesterday, the Chairman (Sir Frederick Eley), after a general discussion with reference to the accounts, said that he would be pleased to meet representative shareholders to discuss the question of reconstruction. Later, at an informal meeting of shareholders, a committee of six shareholders was appointed to discuss with the chairman the company's affairs.

DUNLOP RUBBER COMPANY

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The directors of the Dunlop Rubber Company, Ltd., submit the balance sheet of the company as at 31st December, 1934, together with the profit and loss account for the year 1934. A statement of aggregate profits for 1934 and a consolidated statement of assets and liabilities as at 31st December, 1934, are also submitted.

General conditions in the home market during the past year continued to be favourable, and in particular there was a marked expansion in the motor and cycle industries.

Following the introduction of rubber restriction, there was a marked rise in the price of that commodity, thus increasing the costs of the company's products. Further, conditions in many countries abroad continued to be extremely difficult. In these circumstances the Board considers the results achieved by the company during 1934 to be highly satisfactory.

TRADING RESULTS

The net profits for the past three years have been as follow:—

1932	£860,077
1933	£1,512,866
1934	£1,687,687

The total available profits for appropriation amount to £2,266,102.

The directors' appropriations and recommendations are as follow:—Transfer to taxation reserve, £550,060; transfer to dividend equalisation reserve, £250,000; transfer to reserve for contingencies, £100,000; Preference dividends paid for the half-year to 30th June, 1934, less income tax at 4s. 6d. in the £, £145,312.

The Board proposes paying dividends on the "A," "B" and "C" Cumulative Preference shares for the half-year to 31st December, 1934, less income tax at 4s. 6d. in the £, absorbing £145,312. The Board proposes the payment of a dividend on the Ordinary Stock of 8 per cent. less income tax at 4s. 6d. in the £, payable on the 21st May, absorbing £486,764. Balance carried forward to next account, £588,651. Total, £2,266,102.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES

The whole of the Guaranteed Preference dividends in respect of Dunlop Cotton Mills, Ltd.; Dunlop Rubber Company (India), Ltd., and Dunlop Plantations, Ltd., have been provided for out of the 1934 profits of those companies. The Dunlop Rubber Company (India), Ltd., has, in addition, repaid out of profits of 1934 the sum of £23,560, which represents the whole of the balance outstanding in respect of Guaranteed Preference dividends paid by this company in previous years. This amount has been credited to the company's profit and loss account for 1934.

In accordance with established practice, provision has been made in these accounts for this company's proportion of losses incurred during 1934 by any subsidiary and associated companies that have incurred losses, and the profits of subsidiary companies have been included in this company's profits only to the extent of:—(a) dividends declared in respect of the year 1934, and (b) an appropriate amount in respect of the profits earned in 1934 by certain subsidiary companies which had previously sustained losses for which this company had made provision in full.

Throughout the organisation, as in preceding years, inventories have been conservatively valued; very ample provision has been made for bad and doubtful debts, and every known loss at home and abroad has been provided for in the accounts.

INCREASED ASSETS

The following statement shows, in comparative form for 1933 and 1934, the assets of the company:—

	1933.	1934.
Fixed Assets	£4,244,610	£4,045,555	-£ 199,055
Investment & Advances...	£13,014,396	£13,713,130	+£ 698,734
Current Assets	£4,954,143	£5,586,286	+£ 632,143
Totals	£22,213,149	£23,344,971	£1,131,822

In the fixed assets adequate provision has been made for depreciation, and all fixed assets have been thoroughly maintained. Regarding investments and advances, the increase is mainly due to advances to the South African Co. in connection with the building and equipment of a new factory and advances to Dunlop Plantations, Ltd.

CURRENT ASSETS

Current assets inventories as at the 31st December, 1934, show an increase over the previous year of £1,092,435, due to increased quantities and prices. Securities, bank balances and cash have decreased by £461,167:—

	1933.	1934.	Increase
Share Capital	£12,251,045	£12,251,045	Nil.
Surplus & Reserves	£4,346,887	£4,655,936	+£ 309,049
Totals	£16,597,932	£16,906,981	+£ 309,049
Debentures	£2,340,971	£2,789,367	+£ 448,396
Amounts owing to subsidiaries..	£1,513,659	£1,685,752	+£ 172,093
Current liabilities...	£1,760,587	£1,962,871	+£ 202,284
Totals	£22,213,149	£23,344,971	£1,131,822

The amounts written off during the year to the reserve for contingencies were mainly in respect of losses on realisation upon the closing down of various businesses, etc. The general reserve and the reserve for contingencies are practically unchanged.

DEBENTURES

Subsequent to the date of the balance sheet the balance of £169,227 of the First Mortgage 5½ per cent. Debenture Stock was redeemed on the 2nd January, 1935. On the other hand the unissued balance of £879,800 of the 4 per cent. First Mortgage Debenture Stock was issued during the current year with a view to strengthening the working capital of the company. This completes the directors' Debenture redemption scheme.

GERMAN COMPANY

During 1934 exchange restrictions in Germany increased, and in consequence it has become impossible to remit dividends or surplus out of Germany. In view of these exceptional circumstances the directors are of opinion that it would be inadvisable to include the various items from the balance sheets of the German companies as was done in 1933. The investment of the Dunlop Rubber Co., Ltd., in the German companies is, therefore, shown separately.

For the same reasons the profits made in Germany, which are substantial, have not been included in the aggregate profits shown in the statement of profits.

In the opinion of the directors this change in the form of presentation is necessary in order to give the members the clearest view of the position. This view is supported by the company's auditors.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

PROFIT-TAKING IN MININGS

From Reuter's Correspondent. NEW YORK, Friday.

Authorities in brokerage circles were mostly still optimistic on the Stock Exchange to-day, but the recent sharp upturn in Mining stocks induced the issuance of cautionary advices, with the result that the market generally was rather indecisive. Both gains and losses were registered after a turnover of 1,520,000 shares.

Quotations were narrowly irregular at the opening. With the world prices of silver continuing to soar, Mining shares staged an early advance, U.S. Smelting, American Smelting and Cerro Copper rising 1 to 2 points, and Homestake Mining 10. Elsewhere in the list the movements were erratic, fractional losses predominating. The Mining group encountered profit-taking in the afternoon, but gave ground in a grudging fashion. Though various specialties rose briskly, the recognised leaders eased fractions to a point.

Rails were narrow. The more-than-seasonal increase in the figures of freight-car loadings was construed as very encouraging, but had apparently been discounted so far as the market was concerned.

The close was irregular.

Call money remained at ¼ per cent., and the outside rate was unchanged at ¼ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered at 3/16 per cent. bid and ⅛ per cent. asked for 90-day bank bills, and ⅜ per cent. bid and 5/16 asked for six months' bills.

Sterling exchange opened 1¼ down at 4.81⅜ and fell to 4.81 during the morning. The rate improved to 4.81¼ in the afternoon, but finally closed 2⅛ lower compared with the previous close at 4.81⅛.

Silver was 4c. higher at 81c.

MERCANTILE ASSOCIATION

A SATISFACTORY YEAR'S WORK

TRANSPORT STRIKE'S EFFECT ON TRADE

MATTERS of importance to traders were discussed at the fifty-third annual meeting of the Dublin Mercantile Association, Ltd., in Jury's Hotel, yesterday. Mr. John Wallace (President) was in the chair.

In moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, Mr. Wallace said that the Association had had a successful year's working. Returns from the various departments were most satisfactory. Since its inception in 1882 the Association had steadily increased its activities and had justified its existence, as could be seen from the returns in the debt department, which last year amounted to over £61,000. The amount of accounts collected in proportion to those sent into the association for collection had increased from 63.5 per cent. for 1933 to 76.8 per cent. for 1934. This, in the present economic conditions, was certainly most interesting, and showed the highly efficient working of the association.

The Dublin Mercantile Association, however, was not only a debt collecting association. It was of much more importance, for any matter affecting or concerning the welfare of traders received careful and serious consideration from the Committee.

It was not one of the objects of the Association to show a profit; for, being a mutual trade protection association; service to its members was its first aim, and with this in mind, and taking into consderation the small profit shown on the year's working—£9 12s. 3d.—it looked as though the Association had been justified in this way.

Mr. A. Fannin, in seconding the motion, said that it was satisfactory to find so many doctors and dentists becoming members of the Association.

TRANSPORT DISPUTE

Mr. W. F. Hanna expressed the hope that something would be done by the powers that be to settle the transport dispute, and also to help those who were feeling the effects of it most. The travelling public, he said, were being looked after to some extent, free, gratis and for nothing, but they could not afford to do that in business. Business firms were carrying large staffs with greatly diminished business. One member of the Association had stated that his business had fallen by fifty per cent., and, in the case of his own firm, it had dropped by twenty to twenty-five per cent. He hoped that somebody—Alderman Byrne, Mr. Fleming or the Archbishop—would bring the parties together.

Mr. John Kelly said that for some time past the Circuit Courts had been overcrowded with business, and two extra judges would be needed to deal with civil bills. There were many complaints of delay on the execution of Sheriff's decrees. It was nothing short of a public scandal that decrees should be kept in the sheriff's hands for over two years. It should not be tolerated. A reasonable time to keep a decree would be six months. This was a matter which should be taken up by the committee, and he would supply data.

The report was adopted.

A moiety of the committee was re-elected, as also were the auditors, Messrs. J. A. Kinnear and Co.

Mr. T. F. Laurie, Chairman of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, then delivered an address on "The Port of Dublin," which is reported in another column.

A MOTOR COLLISION AT BRAY

James Keogh, lorry driver, Bray, was fined £3 and his licence suspended for six months on a charge of dangerous driving of a motor lorry, at Bray District Court yesterday. A similar charge against Dr. Scribner, Osborne House, Seapoint, Co. Dublin, was dismissed.

The prosecutions arose out of a collision between Dr. Scribner's motor car and the motor lorry on the Upper Dargle road, Bray.

IRISH TOUR IN BELGIUM

VISIT TO BATTLEFIELDS

A tour of the battlefields of Belgium is being organised by the British Legion (Irish Free State Area), and will take place in July. The party will be under the leadership of Major-General Sir W. B. Hickie, K.C.B., and Mr. A. P. Connolly. Starting from Dublin on July 5th, the party will travel to Ostend, which will be made the headquarters during the tour, and to which the tourists will return each night.

The party will arrive in Ostend in the evening of July 6th, and on the following day (Sunday) there will be a ceremony at the War Memorial and a reception by the Town Council. The next day a tour of the battlefields will be made. Tuesday will be a free day in Ostend, and it will be followed on the Wednesday by a coast excursion, taking in Zeebrugge. After a second free day in the city, the party will leave Ostend on the Friday and reach Dublin on Saturday, July 13th, at 6 a.m.

The tour is open to all ex-Service men and women and their friends, but nobody under fifteen years will be included.

Particulars of the tour can be had on application to 28 Harcourt street, Dublin.

BASKET BALL

5TH BATTALION'S SECOND CHAMPIONSHIP

The 5th Battalion, favourites for the Army basket ball championship, beat the Cavalry Corps by 21 points to 7 in the final at the Curragh yesterday. It was the battalion's second consecutive championship. It was a decisive victory, but the Cavalry put up a plucky fight.

The 5th led at the end of the first quarter by 7-5. In the second period it was obvious that the Cavalry were a spent force, and the result was never in doubt. The Cavalry were definitely off-colour. From 28 penalties they scored only five times. The 5th had six penalties and scored once.

5th Battalion—Corporal Walsh, Privates McCormack, Dowling, Fanning, and Martin.

Cavalry Corps—Lieutenants O'Byrne and O'Sullivan, Privates Moran, Byrne, and Myles.

ATHLETICS

IRISHMAN'S SUCCESS IN BOSTON MARATHON

An Irishman, Johnny Kelly, of Lean, Arlington (Mass.), won the Boston A.A. marathon race from Hopkinton to Boston, a distance of 26 miles 385 yards in 2 hours 32 minutes 7 2-5 seconds. His time was a little more than a minute slower than the record (2 hours 31 minutes 1 3-5 seconds) set by Leslie Pawson in 1933. Kelly, who finished second last year, took the lead early, and held it throughout.

There was an extraordinary incident at Doorn yesterday, when a Belgian woman tried to throw herself under the wheels of the ex-Kaiser's motor car. The woman had made persistent attempts to gain access to the ex-Kaiser. She was arrested by the Dutch police, who conducted her back to the Belgian frontier.

The British motor vessel Titanian has sent out an appeal for immediate assistance, her stem having been badly damaged in an ice-field, 150 miles from the coast of Newfoundland.

CRICKET

INTERNATIONALS IN OLD BELVEDERE SIDE

Though the various League competitions will not start until next Saturday, several of the clubs, senior and junior, will be engaged this afternoon. With the exception of Leinster, who will not make a start until this day week, all the senior clubs are engaged.

Pembroke will be opposed by a strong XI. representing Old Belvedere, and the proceeds of the match, which will be played at Sydney parade, will be devoted to the Belvedere Newsboys' Fund. The Belvedere side will include three international players—E. A. Ingram, J. C. Boucher and G. J. Morgan—while several interprovincial players will also figure on the team. With Pembroke also turning out a strong team, much interesting play may be expected.

Dublin University will be at home in the College Park to Merrion. The students have been at practice for some weeks past, and they are likely to beat Merrion. Phœnix will not have a strong side out against Clontarf, and may have all their work cut out to win, while Civil Service, engaged against Y.M.C.A. in the Park, having lost several of the leading players this season, will find it no easy task to beat the ex-juniors, who have a useful all-round side.

LOSS TO WORCESTERSHIRE

Worcester this season will be again without the Nawab of Pataudi, who has cabled Captain F. W. C. Morgans, the manager, stating that ill-health will prevent him from playing. Last year Pataudi was troubled by poor health to such an extent that he was able to appear in no more than six county championship engagements.

BOXING

LOUIS WINS AGAIN

CHICAGO, Friday.

Joe Louis, the negro, known as the "Detroit Bomber," scored his eighteenth consecutive victory as a professional on a technical knock-out verdict in the third round over Roy Lazer, of Paterson, New Jersey. Lazer was so badly beaten that his seconds threw in the towel.

Max Baer, the heavy-weight champion, was among the 18,000 spectators who saw the fight.

PAT BUTLER MATCHED

WORLD FLY-WEIGHT TITLE

Jackie Brown, of Manchester, the holder, will meet Benny Lynch, the Scottish champion, for three fly-weight championship titles—the World, European and British. The British Boxing Board of Control announced yesterday that as Lynch had defeated Tommy Pardoe (Birmingham), it was decided to match the Scottish boxer against Brown.
